CRUSHING DEFEAT FOR COOLIDGE

TAX BILL VOTE A HEAVY BLOW TO PRESIDENT

Democrats and Insurgents Decisively Repudiate Mellon Reduction Plan In Face of Possible Veto.

(International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The Coolidge administration met a crushing legislative defeat today when the senate passed the new tax reduction bill based upon rates prepared by a democratic-insurgent coalition.

Sweeping aside all administration protests, the coalition decisively repudiated the Mellon tax plan, ignored recommendations from the white house and adopted only those rates which were endorsed by democratic finance leaders. The final vote was 69 to 15.

The senate's action was taken in the face of current reports that President Coolidge would veto the bill if the Mellon rates were abandoned. With this report circulating the coalition virtually challenged a presidential veto by adopting every democratic schedule offered

In its final form, the senate bill contained normal tax rates ranging from 2 to 6 per cent and surtaxes ranging from 1 to 40 per cent, all proposed by Senator Simmons, democrat of North Carolina.

A dozen republican insurgents led the G. O. P. march toward the democratic rates. Time after time they threw their balance of power in support of democratic schedules and against administration compromises. They first voted down the Mellon plan with its 25 per cent maximum surtax, then a 32 per cent compromise and lastly the Longworth house rates, ranging to 37½ per cent

End of Four Month Fight.

The bill's passage ended a four month fight in which the administration used every weapon at its command to enact the Mellon plan.

The final vote was as follows:

PLAN ATTEMPT TO MOVE CARS AT PITTSBURGH

Trolley Strike at Pennsylvania City Results in Chaotic Traffic Conditions and Business Seriously Is Affected.

MANY ARE INJURED AS INDIRECT RESULT

Strikebreakers Arriving and Effect Will Be Hade to Resume Service Monday Morning — Housed In Commissary.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 10.—Pittsburgh tonight was in the grip of a street car strike which has seriously affected business, made traffic conditions chaotic, and indirectly caused injuries to more than fifty persons.

Not a trolley car wheel has turned here since midnight Friday when 3,200 motormen and conductors walked out on strike because officials of the Pittsburgh Railways company refused to grant them a wage increase.

Both sides of the controversy tonight are defending their stands. Representatives of the carmen claim they are justly entitled to increased wage. Officials of the company stated a wage increase could not be granted without an increase in fares.

Strikebreakers began arriving in town tonight, and an effort will be made to restore trolley service Monday morning.

AIRMEN SET FOR DANGEROUS JUMP ACROSS PACIFIC

American Globe Fliers Prepare For Flight to Kurile Islands.

Confident Of Ability of Planes to Accomplish Ten Hour Journey.

CORDOVA, Alaska, May 10.—Three United States aviators stood on the threshold of another hemisphere here tonight awaiting "flying weather" for the long hop to Paramashiru in the Kurile islands, the most hazardous flight of their attempt to encircle the world by airplane.

The three planes reached Chicagoff on the island of Attu, western most island of the Aleutian archipelago, after a hop from Nazan on the island of Akta. The flight was made without incident.

Under the direction of Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, the three flying officers and their mechanicians, were at work until late tonight tuning up their planes so that as little hazard as possible will attend their attempt to cross the 800 miles of open Pacific ocean water.

The "polishing up" process is expected to be completed by Monday night, according to word received here, and early Tuesday the three expect to hop off, leaving behind them the soil of the United States.

They will not glimpse another American possession until they roar into the air of New England from snowy Greenland, some time next summer.

From the Kurile islands, their route lies southward through Japan by way of Tokio where a great welcome awaits them; thence to the continent of Asia and along its southern coast, working gradually westward.

Martin Hunt Continues.

JEWELRY CLERK SHOT BY BANDITS

Victim Fatally Wounded In Unsuccessful Attempt to Halt Robbers.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 10—Fufus Eller, 25, clerk in A. H Hoyler's Jewelry store in Genese street, was fatally shot tonight while attempting to prevent the theft of $5,000 worth of diamonds by automobile bandits

Shortly before closing time a man accompanied by a well dressed young woman, stepped from an automobile and entered the store. The man asked to be shown some diamonds While the woman examined the jewelry, her male companion snatched a tray ful of gems and bolted for the door

Eller moved to intercept them and was shot in the temple. The couple then escaped with the jewels

Business Men Want Weichel Back On Force

A petition signed by fifty business men on the beat of former patrolman A W. Weichel, was presented to Chief of Police Peter Johnstone Saturday afternoon, asking that Weichel be re-employed at once by the department and be given his old beat back Chief Johnstone said that he would take the petition under advisement.

Weichel was dismissed from the service following an alleged assault upon Richard Carver at Thirteenth and O streets last week. Carver failed to obey a traffic signal and nearly struck the officer with his car, Weichel said

Saturday morning Weichel was completely vindicated by Justice W T. Stevens when he found Weichel not guilty of a charge of assault and battery which had been brought against him

Two Automobiles Reported Stolen

Two automobiles were reported to police Saturday as stolen.

A Buick automobile was stolen from the Farmers' Used Car exchange, 1624 O street, early Saturday night. The door of the place was found open by Officer Frank Jones and shortly afterwards the theft of the car was reported. It carried the license plate 2-D20.

A Dodge touring car, license 2-8885, belonging to Frank Enright, 1841 South street, was reported as stolen in the afternoon from near Ninth and N streets.

SUITS FOR LARGE SUM TO BE FILED

Philippine National Bank Trying to Place Responsibility For Big Losses.

MANILA, May 10.—It was learned tonight that two suits for $600,000, the first of a series totalling several million dollars, will be instituted Monday by the Philippine National bank in an effort to establish responsibility for the alleged $38,003,000 losses sustained by the institution in 1918 and 1919.

The suit will be directed against several American and Filipino former directors and will allege that loans were made in violation of bank law.

Filing of the suits will bring to a culmination two years of effort on the part of Gov. Gen Leonard Wood during which he has met powerful opposition at the hands of politicians The suits, it is understood, will involve prominent members of the Quezon party and desperate efforts have been made at the last minute to hold the suits off until the end of the month when it is understood the statute of limitations would have applied

It is charged that an effort was made by the politicians to make a scapegoat of former President Concepcion, now imprisoned, and six minor officials of the institution

"Despite efforts of political leaders to prevent prosecution of former directors of the Philippine National bank, who are believed responsible for many losses the institution suffered during their regime," Governor Wood declared in a statement, "the complaints will be filed and justice administered as it should be."

EXCLUSION MAY BRING CRISIS OBSERVERS SAY

America's Relations With Japan And Possibly Status Of Secretary Hughes In Coolidge Cabinet May Be Affected.

FIRST REAL CLOUD IN FOREIGN RELATIONS

Senate and House Conferees Reverse Decision and Agree Upon Next July 1 As Date After Which Japanese to Be Barred.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—A real crisis, involving America's future relations with Japan and possibly the status of Secretary or State Hughes in President Coolidge's cabinet, is developing over the Japanese immigration problem, observers believed tonight.

The controversy over the immigration bill, carrying the exclusion clause against Japan, is the first real cloud that has arisen on the horizon of Hughes' stewardship of the foreign relations of the nation, it was pointed out.

House officials close to President Coolidge tonight generally were inclined to take the attitude that "finis" has been written across the president's efforts to change the exclusion measure before it leaves congress.

The senate and house conferees today swiftly agreed on July 1 next as the date for applying exclusion against Japanese, following the re-

Long Feet Save Life Of Owner

CHICAGO, May 10—The extra long feet which have been the curse of Peter Summish's life and the despair of shoe salesmen were receiving only kind words from Peter tonight. He fell off a viaduct, forty feet above ground, and was saved from being dashed to death on the railroad tracks below when his feet caught between two beams and held him head downward until he was rescued by passersby.

DENY JAPS PLAN MEXICAN COLONY

Cannot Compete With Peon Labor In Southern Republic, Says Embassy.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Reports that Japanese are shortly to undertake extensive colonization in Mexico because of resentment over exclusion, were denied here today in both American and Japanese official quarters

It was stated at the embassy that there are no more than 3,000 Japanese in Mexico and there is no probability of heavy emigration to the southern republic.

It was pointed out at the embassy that Japanese cannot compete with peon labor in Mexico and in order to operate on any comprehensive scale it would be necessary to have financial backing of proportions such as are not feasible in the present condition of Japanese finances

The earthquake has made economy necessary for the next two years at least.

Peon labor before the regime of President Obregon was rated at hardly more than 15 cents a day. Japanese, too, are essentially agricultural workers, it is pointed out, while the rich resources of Mexico consist mostly of gold, silver and iron. Officials do not believe Japanese labor would be especially adaptable to the conditions in Mexico and so would not show any particular economic superiority over the local labor such as has given them an advantage in California

Contrary to the general opinion, Japanese embassy officials assert there are not more than 3,000 Japanese in Mexico today. This number, officials state, in all probability will not be heavily increased by transfer from California

All foreigners are required by the Mexican constitution to give consent to abide by Mexican laws and to disclaim any rights which they may have to appeal to the home government and this is a condition not relished by Japanese.

NAVY OF U. S. RANKS SECOND REPORT SHOWS

Roosevelt Says Force No Longer Maintains Position In 5-5-3 Naval Treaty ---Blames Deterioration.

WASHINGTON, May -0.—The American navy ranks second among the navies of the world instead of being on an equality with Great Britain as contemplated in the 5-5-3 naval treaty evolved by the Washington arms conference.

This was officially admitted in a letter written by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt to Representative Butler, chairman of the house naval committee, made public tonight.

Instead of the 5-5-3 ratio established by the arms conference, the American navy has now deteriorated to the point where it is five for Great Britain, four for the United States and three for Japan

This represents an "approximate" strength, according to Roosevelt's report. On this point, it said:

"About the best we can truthfully say is that if five and three represent the present fighting strength of Great Britain and Japan, respectively, then the United States would appear to be approximately four."

The expectation prevails that Roosevelt's report will form the basis for a renewed drive in congress for more appropriations to bring the navy up to treaty strength.

Short On Cruisers.

In some respects it was shown that the ratio of the United States to Great Britain was not even four, but one This was true of light cruisers, Roosevelt's report showed, and in some degree of most other classes of auxiliary vessels under 10,000 tons which were not restricted by the arms conference.

The ratio strength as between Great Britain and the United States does not take into account "strategically located and well equipped naval bases which add greatly to the sea power of a nation, nor does it take into consideration the relative strength of the various merchant marines," Roosevelt's report stated. "Naval experts estimate," Roosevelt reported, "that the United States would have to have

SAYS GASOLINE PRICE TO DROP

State Official Looks For Reduction In Nebraska During Coming Week.

Governor Prepared to Furnish Motor Fuel at Wholesale Prices.

Attorney General Spillman predicted Saturday afternoon that the retail price of gasoline will drop in Nebraska during the present week, and perhaps in some of the other states He expects a cut of at least 1 cent per gallon in the next few days, and another within a week following. In fact, Spillman has information from dealers in gasoline that the Nebraska price right now is 4 cents higher than it ought to be, and he thinks it will be forced down by successive steps until a level is reached about that much below the price of 20¼ cents per gallon right now being charged.

Governor Bryan has been giving the gasoline situation his attention and claims to have things lined up to begin furnishing motor fuel at wholesale prices in carload lots for sale to consumers through public agencies throughout Nebraska, unless the companies make immediate reductions. The governor believes the oil concerns will do this for fear of losing a large part of their business But if they do not, he is prepared, he says, to go ahead with his selling organization

Both the governor and the attorney general assert that the country is full of gasoline and that refiners are cutting the price in order to sell it. City Commissioner Hopkins at Omaha has had no difficulty in getting all the fluid he wants to sell at the municipal filling station there. Hopkins retails gasoline at 17 cents a gallon, or 3¼ cents below the established price of private dealers

The drop in gasoline prices in South Dakota has made it more difficult for the trade to maintain existing rates elsewhere. For that reason, if for no other, the expectations of Governor Bryan and Attorney-General Spillman that the price will go down in Nebraska are likely to be fulfilled in a very short time

Loved Man And Needed Money; Turned Bandit

BOSTON, May 10—Love for a man and the need of money—these were two reasons given tonight by pretty Leona Sheehan, 20-year old Manchester, N. H. girl or haveing followed in the footsteps of Cecelia Cooney and turned bobbed haired bandit.

Wife of a Movie Director Attempts To Take Own Life

LOS ANGELES, CALIF., May 10.—The spotlight of a police investigation was turned tonight on the tangled marital affairs of Alfred Santell, film director, and his pretty 19-year-old bride, Mrs. Ruth Santell, following her attempt today to commit suicide, according to the police, by taking poison while automobile riding with her husband. The Santells are well known in the Hollywood film colony and in the east.

Mrs. Santell, who is said to have taken the poison after a futile attempt to effect a reconciliation with her husband, was in a serious condition tonight at the Hollywood community hospital, although physicians declared she probably would recover.

A Crowd Of 500 Mobs Agents Engaged In Destroying Liquor

CHICAGO, May 10—A crowd of 500 men and women of Thornton, Ill., a suburb, south of here, mobbed twenty federal dry agents late today in an effort to prevent the destruction of liquor seized in a raid on a roadhouse.

The agents, using their guns as clubs, beat the crowd back and then, while half of the little force stood guard with drawn revolvers, the others poured a large quantity of whisky, wine and beer into the street.

Many of the residents of Thornton were in the Biefeldt Brewing company's employ, which was raided by agents some time ago. Several days ago 2,000 barrels were taken from the brewery and destroyed.

Angered when the roadhouse of Joseph Strajon was raided this afternoon, the crowd attacked the agents in an effort to seize the confiscated liquor. Hamlet C. Ridgeway, leader of the dry agents, had planned to remove the evidence to Chicago, but when the crowd made its attack, he ordered immediate destruction of the liquor.

CORDOVA, Alaska, May 10.—Three United States aviators stood on the threshold of another hemisphere here tonight awaiting "flying weather" for the long hop to Paramashiru in the Kurile islands, the most hazardous flight of their attempt to encircle the world by airplane.

The three planes reached Chicagoff on the island of Attu, western most island of the Aleutian archipelago, after a hop from Nazan on the island of Akta. The flight was made without incident.

Under the direction of Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, the three fying officers and their mechanicians were at work until late tonight tuning up their planes so that as little hazard as possible will attend their attempt to cross the 800 miles of open Pacific ocean water.

The "polishing up" process is expected to be completed by Monday night, according to word received here, and early Tuesday the three expect to hop off, leaving behind them the soil of the United States.

They will not glimpse another American possession until they roar into the air of New England from snowy Greenland, some time next summer.

From the Kurile islands, their route lies southward through Japan by way of Tokio where a great welcome awaits them; thence to the continent of Asia and along its southern coast, working gradually westward.

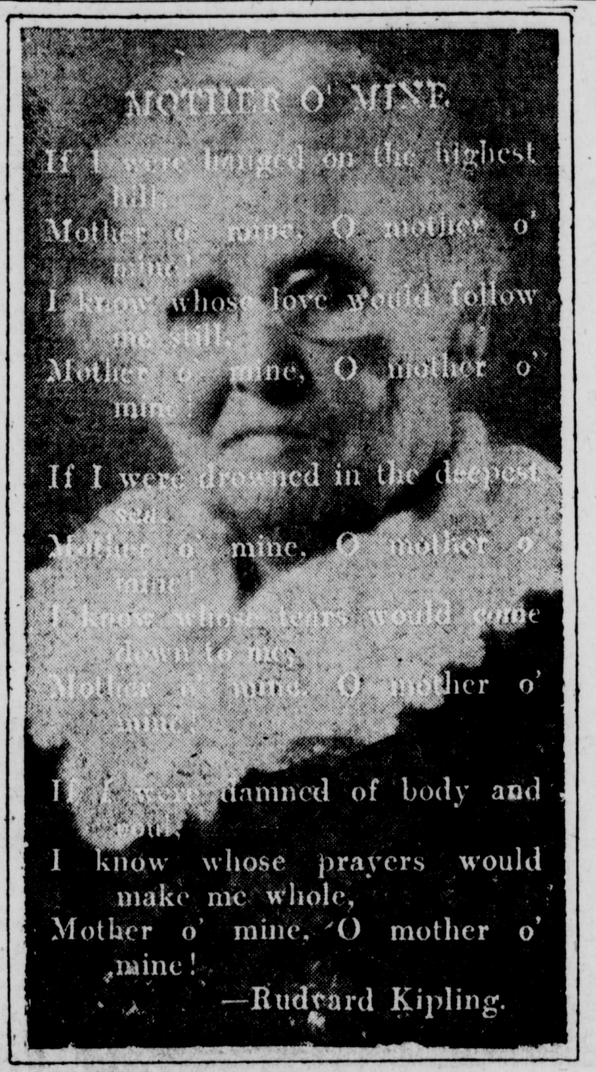
LAY PLANS FOR TRIAL OF GEER

Edna Purviance, Film Star, Confers With Deputy District Attorney.

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—Plans for the trial of Horace Greer, former chauffeur for Mabel Normand, charged with shooting Courtland S. Dines, Denver sportsman, were started today when Edna Purviance, film luminary, present at a party in Dines' apartment when the shooting occurred was called to the office of Deputy District Attorney L. T. Hammer for a conference.

The trial is set for May 26. Miss Purviance was expected to discuss with Hammer her testimony at the coming trial. Similar conferences will probably be held with Miss Normand after her return here from the east, and Dines, now in San Francisco, within a few days.

The Spirit of Mother's Day



Rehabilitation Aid Is Favored

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Continuation for four years of federal aid in co-operation with states in the vocational rehabilitation of persons disabled in industry is provided in a bill which passed the house today.

During 1923, the United States contributed $525,387 for this work and the thirty-six states $6,381. It has been estimated there are 112,000 persons in the United States in need of vocational rehabilitation.

JEWELRY CLERK SHOT BY BANDITS

Victim Fatally Wounded In Unsuccessful Attempt to Halt Robbers.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 10.—Fufus Eller, 25, clerk in A. H. Hoyler's Jewelry store in Genese street, was fatally shot tonight while attempting to prevent the theft of $5,000 worth of diamonds by automobile bandits.

Shortly before closing time, a man accompanied by a well dressed young woman, stepped from an automobile and entered the store. The man asked to be shown some diamonds. While the woman examined the jewelry, her male companion snatched a trayful of gems and bolted for the door.

Eller moved to intercept them and was shot in the temple. The couple then escaped with the jewels.

Business Men Want Weichel Back On Force

A petition signed by fifty business men on the beat of former patrolman A. W. Weichel, was presented to Chief of Police Peter Johnstone Saturday afternoon, asking that Weichel be re-employed at once by the department and be given his old beat back. Chief Johnstone said that he would take the petition under advisement.

Weichel was dismissed from the service following an alleged assault upon Richard Carver at Thirteenth and O streets last week. Carver failed to obey a traffic signal and nearly struck the officer with his car, Weichel said.

Saturday morning Weichel was completely vindicated by Justice W. T. Stevens when he found Weichel not guilty of a charge of assault and battery which had been brought against him.

Two Automobiles Reported Stolen

Two automobiles were reported to police Saturday as stolen.

A Buick automobile was stolen from the Farmers' Used Car exchange, 1624 O street, early Saturday night. The door of the place was found open by Officer Frank Jones and shortly afterwards the theft of the car was reported. It carried the license plate 2-D20.

A Dodge touring car, license 2-8885, belonging to Frank Bright, 1841 South street, was reported as stolen in the afternoon from near Ninth and N streets.

SUITS FOR LARGE SUM TO BE FILED

Philippine National Bank Trying to Place Responsibility For Big Losses.

MANILA, May 10.—It was learned tonight that two suits for $600,000, the first of a series totalling several million dollars, will be instituted Monday by the Philippine National bank in an effort to establish responsibility for the alleged $28,000,000 losses sustained by the institution in 1918 and 1919.

The suit will be directed against several American and Filipino former directors and will allege that loans were made in violation of bank law.

Filing of the suits will bring to a culmination two years of effort on the part of Gov. Gen. Leonard Wood during which he has met powerful opposition at the hands of politicians. The suits, it is understood, will involve prominent members of the Quezon party and desperate efforts have been made at the last minute to hold the suits off until the end of the month when it is understood the statute of limitations would have applied.

It is charged that an effort was made by the politicians to make a scapegoat of former President Concepcion, now imprisoned, and six minor officials of the institution.

"Despite efforts of political leaders to prevent prosecution of former directors of the Philippine National bank, who are believed responsible for many losses the institution suffered during their regime," Governor Wood declared in a statement, "the complaints will be filed and justice administered as it should be."

Threatening Letter Sent to President

PENSACOLA, Fla., May 10.—Charged with sending a threatening letter to President Coolidge, Clarence H. Carlip, a German was taken into custody here t oday by government agents.

Carlip is a native of Florida, but has never been nationalized in this country, retaining his German citizenship. The arrest was made by George N. Broadnax, a secret service agent.

His affidavit said that Carlip's letters contained threats "to inflict great bodily harm" on the president.

Carlip has been denied bail. He lives a lone fifty miles from Pensacola. It is believed that his mind is affected.

Student Ends Life When Wife Leaves

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., May 10.—Emmett B. Cottee, vocational student at the American School of Osteopathy here, shot and killed himself late today. Cottee was despondent because his wife left him autnorities said. His father lives in Great Falls, Mont. He was a veteran of the world war.

EXCLUSION MAY BRING CRISIS OBSERVERS SAY

America's Relations With Japan And Possibly Status Of Secretary Hughes In Coolidge Cabinet May Be Affected.

FIRST REAL CLOUD IN FOREIGN RELATIONS

Senate and House Conferees Reverse Decision and Agree Upon Next July 1 As Date After Which Japanese to Be Barred.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—A real crisis, involving America's future relations with Japan and possibly the status of Secretary or State Hughes in President Coolidge's cabinet, is developing over the Japanese immigration problem, observers believed tonight.

The controversy over the immigration bill, carrying the exclusion clause against Japan, is the first real cloud that has arisen on the horizon of Hughes' stewardship of the foreign relations of the nation, it was pointed out.

House officials close to President Coolidge tonight generally were inclined to take the attitude that "finis' has been written across the president's efforts to change the exclusion measure before it leaves congress.

The senate and house conferees today swiftly agreed on July 1 next as the date for applying exclusion against Japanese, following the re-

Long Feet Save Life Of Owner

CHICAGO, May 10—The extra long feet which have been the curse of Peter Summish's life and the despair of shoe salesmen were receiving only kind words from Peter tonight. He fell off a viaduct, forty feet above ground, and was saved from being dashed to death on the railroad tracks below when his feet caught between two beams and held him head downward until he was rescued by passersby.

DENY JAPS PLAN MEXICAN COLONY

Cannot Compete With Peon Labor In Southern Republic, Says Embassy.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Reports that Japanese are shortly to undertake extensive colonization in Mexico because of resentment over exclusion, were denied here today in both American and Japanese official quarters.

It was stated at the embassy that there are no more than 3,000 Japanese in Mexico and there is no probability of heavy emigration to the southern republic.

It was pointed out at the embassy that Japanese cannot compete with peon labor in Mexico and in order to operate on any comprehensive scale it would be necessary to have financial backing of proportions such as are not feasible in the present condition of Japanese finances.

The earthquake has made economy necessary for the next two years at least.

Peon labor before the regime of President Obregon was rated at hardly more than 15 cents a day. Japanese, too, are essentially agricultural workers, it is pointed out, while the rich resources of Mexico consist mostly of gold, silver and iron. Officials do not believe Japanese labor would be especially adaptable to the conditions in Mexico and so would not show any particular economic superiority over the local labor such as has given them an advantage in California.

Contrary to the general opinion, Japanese embassy officials assert there are not more than 3,000 Japanese in Mexico today. This number, officials state, in all probability will not be heavily increased by transfer from California.

All foreigners are required by the Mexican constitution to give consent to abide by Mexican laws and to disclaim any rights which they may have to appeal to the home government and this is a condition not relished by Japanese.

Cattle King's Son Sought by Officers

DALLAS Tex., May 10.—Winifield Scott, jr., son of the late cattle king, was sought by local officers tonight on charges of failing to stop after an automobile crash.

Scott, according to C. H. Witt, crashed into the latter's car after a quarrel with Witt over a woman.

LaFOLLETTE ENDORSED.

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 10—Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, was endorsed for the presidency by the state farmer-labor convention, which closed a two day session here tonight.

NAVY OF U. S. RANKS SECOND REPORT SHOWS

Roosevelt Says Force No Longer Maintains Position In 5-5-3 Naval Treaty ---Blames Deterioration.

WASHINGTON, May -0.—The American navy ranks second among the navies of the world instead of being on an equality with Great Britain as contemplated in the 5-5-3 naval treaty evolved by the Washington arms conference.

This was officially admitted in a letter written by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt to Representative Butler, chairman of the house naval committee, made public tonight.

Instead of the 5-5-3 ratio established by the arms conference, the American navy has now deteriorated to the point where it is five for Great Britain, four for the United States and three for Japan.

This represents an "approximate" strength, according to Roosevelt's report. On this point, it said:

"About the best we can truthfully say is that if five and three represent the present fighting strength of Great Britain and Japan, respectively, then the United States would appear to be approximately four."

The expectation prevails that Roosevelt's report will form the basis for a renewed drive in congress for more appropriations to bring the navy up to treaty strength.

Short On Cruisers.

In some respects it was shown that the ratio of the United States to Great Britain was not even four, but one. This was true of light cruisers, Roosevelt's report showed, and in some degree of most other classes of auxiliary vessels under 10,000 tons which were not restricted by the arms conference.

The ratio strength as between Great Britain and the United States does not take into account "strategically located and well equipped naval bases which add greatly to the sea power of a nation, nor does it take into consideration the relative strength of the various merchant marines,' Roosevelt's report stated. "Naval experts estimate," Roosevelt reported, "that the United States would have to have

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 10.—The weather outlook for the week beginning Monday follows:

Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri Valleys: Local showers and cool at beginning of week, and generally fair weather with normal temperature thereafter.

Nebraska: Generally fair Sunday and Monday; warmer.

State Official Looks For Reduction In Nebraska During Coming Week.

Governor Prepared to Furnish Motor Fuel at Wholesale Prices.

Attorney General Spillman predicted Saturday afternoon that the retail price of gasoline will drop in Nebraska during the present week, and perhaps in some of the other states. He expects a cut of at least 1 cent per gallon in the next few days, and another within a week following. In fact, Spillman has information from dealers in gasoline that the Nebraska price right now is 4 cents higher than it ought to be, and he thinks it will be forced down by successive steps until a level is reached about that much below the price of 20¼ cents per gallon right now being charged.

Governor Bryan has been giving the gasoline situation his attention and claims to have things lined up to begin furnishing motor fuel at wholesale prices in carload lots for sale to consumers through public agencies throughout Nebraska, unless the companies make immediate reductions. The governor believes the oil concerns will do this for fear of losing a large part of their business. But if they do not, he is prepared, he says, to go ahead with his selling organization.

Both the governor and the attorney general assert that the country is full of gasoline and that refiners are cutting the price in order to sell it. City Commissioner Hopkins at Omaha has had no difficulty in getting all the fluid he wants to sell at the municipal filling station there. Hopkins retails gasoline at 17 cents a gallon, or 3¼ cents below the established price of private dealers.

The drop in gasoline prices in South Dakota has made it more difficult for the trade to maintain existing rates elsewhere. For that reason, if for no other, the expectations of Governor Bryan and Attorney General Spillman that the price will go down in Nebraska are likely to be fulfilled in a very short time.

Loved Man And Needed Money; Turned Bandit

BOSTON, May 10—Love for a man and the need of money—these were two reasons given tonight by pretty Leona Sheehan, 20-year old Manchester, N. H. girl or haveing followed in the footsteps of Cecelia Cooney and turned bobbed haired bandit.

Leona was arrested today ater she and two male companians held up Samuel Litman, a Harvard student, and robbed him of $1.56. It was the girl's first "stickup" she declared. Leona and her two companians, Richard E. Robinson and William Harkins, are locked up. Leona was broke, hungry and in love and "there wasn't else to do ," she declared, "but go out and hold up someone."

"My sweetheart needed the money and so did I."

Prohibition In Alberta Ends

CALGARY, Alta., May 10—Prohibition in Alberta is at an end. Government liquor stores opened tonight.

Throngs of people with permits besieged the stores. Many gleefully carried home the first bottle of liquor they had seen for years.

Two Convicts Make Escape

RALEIGH, N. C., May 10.—Armed with knives, Otto Wood and J. H. Starnes, convicts in the state penitentiary here, today overpowered L. L. Partin, overseer, and made a successful dash for liberty.

They had not been apprehended at a late hour tonight.

NEW FLIGHT TO BE ATTEMPTED

Lieut. Russell L. Maughan to Start Third Daylight-to-Dawn Transcontinental Flight About the Middle Of June.

MITCHELL FIELD, N. Y., May 10.—Lieut. Russell L. Maughan, will make his third daylight-to-dawn transcontinental flight about the middle of June, according to announcement tonight by William S. Hensley, commander of the air station here.

"The third attempt is of great importance to the army air service," Hensley said. "There must be no third failure."

The flight will be made in a Curtiss pursuit biplane.

Butler Criticized In Lower Chamber

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university, was criticized in the house today by Representative Tillman, democrat, Arkansas, for declaring in support of beer and light wines.

Butler could be "better employed," Tillman said.

Representative LaGuardia, republican New York, said the "drys" should be grateful as Butler was unsuccessful generally in that which he advocated and "he does not belong to my faction of the republican party."

Kansas Court Says No Warrant Needed

TOPEKA, Kas., May 10.—Search and seizure without warrant was upheld by the Kansas Supreme court in two decisions today.

The court held that officers in search of liquor can invade private premises without warrent. This controverts a decision of the United States Supreme court.

Wife of a Movie Director Attempts To Take Own Life

LOS ANGELES, CALIF., May 10.—The spotlight of a police investigation was turned tonight on the tangled marital affairs of Alfred Santell, film director, and his pretty 19-year-old bride, Mrs. Ruth Santell, following her attempt today to commit suicide, according to the police, by taking poison while automobile riding with her husband. The Santells are well known in the Hollywood film colony and in the east.

Mrs. Santell, who is said to have taken the poison after a futile attempt to effect a reconciliation with her husband, was in a serious condition tonight at the Hollywood community hospital, although physicians declared she probably would recover.

PLENTY OF MONEY IS NOW AVAILABLE

Increase In Commercial Dealings Shown In Business Survey for Week.

Steel and Iron Outlook Improved and Liberty Bonds Continue to Rise.

NEW YORK, May 10.—A feature of the business world this week was the large amount of money available for commercial dealings. This surplus was reflected by the low rate charged in New York and other large cities for time loans. Buying of steel products shows improvement. The steel and iron outlook has improved during the past week. On improved demand from Europe and reports of bad weather over the growing market, cotton has gone up. Strength of Liberty bonds was another feature.

With one exception all issues of Liberty bonds advanced in price this week. The exception was the second 4 1-4's which declined 1 cent. New bonds marketed this week totalled $46,587,000, the bulk of them being state and municipal issues.

The average price of twenty representative industrial issues on the New York stock exchange was 92.83, compared with 93.08 last week. The average price of twenty representative railway issues was 82.05 against 81.85 last week.

Bank clearings in the United States this week were estimated at $7,809,575,455, compared with $9,235,-935,728 last week.

Call Loan Rates Steady.

Money available for call loans in New York this week remained practically steady at 3 1-2 per cent. Loans for six months were made at 4 1-4 per cent.

Bradstreet's reported 428 commercial failures this weeks compared with 434 the preceding week.

The amount of the cotton crop brought into sight this week was estimated at 105,032 bales, compared with 113,909 bales last week. The week's exports were estimated at 41,664 bales against 85,424 bales last week. The visible supply of United States cotton was put at 1,747,050 bales compared with 1,834,382 bales last week.

The visible supply of United States wheat is off 23,000,000 bushels from the highest January level, which was one of the main causes for the price advance at the end of this week. The visible supply of corn decreased 1,750,000 bushels. Foreign consumption of American grain is growing and crop reports are less favorable than had been expected.

French Airman Is At Bangkok

CALCUTTA, May 10—After a perilous journey through a haze of terrific heat, Lieut. Pelletier d'Oisy, French airman, reached Bangkok on his eastern flight to Japan today. He had flown from Rangoon in approximately five hours, and now is far ahead of British and Portuguese fliers, who also have set the noses of their planes toward the land of the rising sun.

SCHOOL SHED BURNS.
(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., May 10.— Fire, of unknown origin, completely destroyed a coal shed and storage shed on the rear of the lot at school district No. 104, five miles southwest of Wymore Thursday night, and caused damage estimated at $500. A small quantity of coal and a few supplies, and some tools, were stored in the buildings and were burned

IMPROVED DELIVERY.
(Special to The Star.)

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 10. This city is to have better delivery service from the American Railway Express company in the future and that limits have been extended several blocks in all directions. Increase in business and the addition of motor trucks for delivery purposes are responsible for the new order.

SALE OF POPPIES BRINGS IN $1,250

All Money To Be Used in Hospital and Welfare Fund for Disabled Veterans.

Poppies sold on Lincoln streets Saturday brought in about $1250 for the American Legion auxiliary to use in the hospital and welfare fund for disabled veterans.

All of the seventy-five workers had reported Saturday evening when Mrs. C. E. McGlasson, chairman of the poppy committee, made her report. A detailed financial statement will be given in a few days. Every cent of the money collected will be used to help the veterans, according to Mrs. McGlasson.

This is the third year in which the Poppy day sale has brought in an almost identical amount. The totals each time will probably not vary more than a few dollars.

Besides members of the auxiliary who sold the flowers this year, many friends of the organization aided.

Harvard Students At Festal Board

(Special to The Star.)

HARVARD, Neb., May 10—Fifty-seven persons attended the annual junior- senior banquet, held in the basement of the First Methodist church, here last night. Twenty-two juniors, twenty-four seniors and the faculty of the high school were present.

The color scheme of blue and white, senior colors, was carried out in table and room decoration, and the guests were seated to form a large "H." Five courses were served by a group of sophomore girls.

MORE ATTENTION TO HOME URGED

Coolidge Makes Radio Address On Behalf of Better Homes Movement.

Declares American Fireside is "Source Of Our National Well Being."

WASHINGTON, May 10.—President Coolidge, in an address tonight that was heard by unseen millions of radio listeners, recommended that Americans pay more attention to their homes. The president spoke as president of the advisory council of the Better Homes in America movement which opens a week's national activities tomorrow.

"In recent years," said the president, "the remarkable development of our material resources, of human invention and of human opportunity have turned the attentions of many from the home to other fields of engrossing interests. It has been necessary to recall public attention to the home, lest its influence and its finer values be impaired.

"The American home is the source of our national well-being in it, our high traditions of service and integrity are fostered. From the true home there emerges respect for the rights of others, and the habit of co-operating for worthy ends. Through sharing its common enterprises and common sacrifices, the child develops that sturdiness of character which distinguishes the manhood and womanhood of our land."

The better homes movement was conceived and is headed by Mrs. W. A. Brown Maloney, for the purpose of educating the people as to the type of homes which should be built and the manner they should be equipped. During the ensuing week, better homes demostrations will be held in more than a thousand cities, towns and villages, and in several hundred rural communities.

Houses, either specially built or borrowed, will be used. Interested men and women will explain and demonstrate the ideal methods of furnishing; the labor saving devices; the exterior decorations and all other things that go to make up an ideal American home.

GERMAN POLICE ARE ON GUARD

Every Precaution Taken to Prevent Violence at Halle Sunday.

HALLE, Germany, May 10.—The old Germany of the goose step, parades here tomorrow in a great nationalist demonstration before the statue of General Von Moltke.

Thousands of monarchists and extreme nationalists were pouring into Halle tonight to find the city almost an armed camp, with extraordinary police precautions apparent on every hand

The occasion is the dedication of the von Moltke monument, but the presence of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, General Ludendorff annud other military leaders, who led the imperial army in search of "Der Tag" in 1914, lent a martial, monarchistic air to the gathering.

Police precautions were directed principally against communists, who are incensed because the government granted permission for the nationalist demonstration after prohibiting a workers' parade on May day

Make Progress On Huge Tunnel Under Mountain

DENVER, May 10.—Contractors driving the gigantic Moffat tunnel under the continental divide west of Denver today passed the mile mark with the preliminary water tunnel.

Under the construction plan adopted, the smaller tunnel, to be used later as a water tube, will be constructed first, offsets from this making possible speedier work on the main railroad and vehicular passage.

CLASS RECEPTION.
(Special to The Star.)

MRS. M'CORMICK IS UNFORGIVING

Refuses Comment On Report Of Birth Of Child to Mr. and Mrs. Max Oser.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Possibility of a reconciliation between Mathilde McCormick Oser and her mother, Mrs Edith Rockefeller McCormick, who is reported never to have sanctioned the marriage of her daughter, then 18, to Max Oser, elderly Swiss riding master, was discussed by Chicago friends today following word from Paris of the birth of a daughter to Mr and Mrs. Oser.

But Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, if forgiveness is in her heart, kept it a secret. Inquiries at the McCormick home met the answer: "Mrs. McCormick has nothing to say."

Harold F. McCormick had no comment to offer as grandfather. His secretary, Colonel Lasaref, reported that Harold McCormick was out of the city and denied that any knowledge of the baby's arrival had been received.

Shares of two huge fortunes are in store for the new heiress. Mrs. Oser's daughter is a great grandchild of John D. Rockefeller, as well as being in line for a share of the McCormick millions.

VETERANS PLAN FOR POPPY DAY

Sale of Flowers Here May 24 By Overseas Organization.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars have set aside May 24 this year for their annual Poppy day, and in an open letter calling attention to the fact and explaining the purposes for which money from the sale will be used, Jack Matthews, commander of Post No. 131, urges the support of citizens

The letter follows:

"The poppy, immortalized by Col John McCrae's poem, 'In Flanders Fields,' is indissolubly associated with the memory of those who gave the last full measure of devotion on the fields of France nad Belgium and thus has become a living symbol of the souls of our dead.

"The movement to make the Poppy the Inter-Allied memorial flower spread with remarkable rapidity until it has been accepted as such in America, France, England, Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

"The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States feel honored that so great and solemn a task has come under their direction and will always endeavor to prevent the commercializing of Poppy day so that it may ever remain a lofty inheritance and a memorial to their fallen comrades.

"To Americans, Memorial day will always be a day dedicated to those who gave their all to the nation, no matter where or when they fell On that day every man, woman and child should commemorate their sacrifice by wearing a buddy poppy. The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, following its annual costom, is again conducting Poppy day this year.

"The Richard L. Harris Post No. 131 has set aside May 24, 1924 as Poppy day in Lincoln. All money received from the sale of the buddy poppy is used only for the aid, benefit and comfort of service men and their dependents"

SEEK CHICAGO MAIL ROBBERS

Underworld Combed In Effort to Locate Men Who Fled With $35.000.

CHICAGO, May 10.—A house to house search of Chicago's underworld was on tonight in the hunt for the three bandits who early today escaped with four sacks of registered mail containing $35,000, from the rear of the Indiana Harbor, Ind., postoffice.

A. E. Germer, postoffice inspector, believes the men who some time ago staged the $100,000 bank robbery at Harvey, Ill., engineered today's affair.

Harry Pierson, truck driver, and four postal clerks, were about to carry the mail in to the Indiana Harbor postoffice when the three men drove up, drew revolvers, selected the registered mail sacks from the pile and drove away toward Chicago.

Comparative Prices Are Never Permitted to Become a Part of HAAS BROTHERS Advertising

CUSTOMER confidence is guarded most carefully at this store. We believe that the policy of quoting former or comparative prices in a store's advertising permits of an avenue for exaggeration and often wilfull abuse.

THE adoption of the plan to not quote comparative prices leaves the determining of the actual worth of an article solely with the customer. This eliminates all possible misunderstanding and is a basis for increased customer confidence.

AT Haas Brothers you are the judge of former values. We would much rather surprise you by giving a greater value than you might expect, rather than disappoint you in the slightest through an exaggeration.

PLENTY OF MONEY IS NOW AVAILABLE

Increase In Commercial Dealings Shown In Business Survey for Week.

Steel and Iron Outlook Improved and Liberty Bonds Continue to Rise.

NEW YORK, May 10.—A feature of the business world this week was the large amount of money available for commercial dealings. This surplus was reflected by the low rate charged in New York and other large cities for time loans. Buying of steel products shows improvement. The steel and iron outlook has improved during the past week. On improved demand from Europe and reports of bad weather over the growing market, cotton has gone up. Strength of Liberty bonds was another feature.

With one exception all issues of Liberty bonds advanced in price this week. The exception was the second 4 1-4's which declined 1 cent. New bonds marketed this week totalled $46,587,000 the bulk of them being state and municipal issues.

The average price of twenty representative industrial issues on the New York stock exchange was 92.83, compared with 93.08 last week. The average price of twenty representative railway issues was 82.05 against 81.85 last week.

Bank clearings in the United States this week were estimated at $7,809,575,455, compared with $9,235,935,728 last week.

Call Loan Rates Steady.

Money available for call loans in New York this week remained practically steady at 3 1-2 per cent. Loans for six months were made at 4 1-4 per cent.

Bradstreet's reported 428 commercial failures this weeks compared with 434 the preceding week.

The amount of the cotton crop brought into sight this week was estimated at 105,032 bales, compared with 113,909 bales last week. The week's exports were estimated at 41,664 bales against 85,424 bales last week. The visible supply of United States cotton was put at 1,747,050 bales compared with 1,834,382 bales last week.

The visible supply of United States wheat is off 23,000,000 bushels from the highest January level, which was one of the main causes for the price advance at the end of this week. The visible supply of corn decreased 1,759,000 bushels. Foreign consumption of American grain is growing and crop reports are less favorable than had ben expected.

French Airman Is At Bangkok

CALCUTTA, May 10—After a perilous journey through a haze of terrific heat, Lieut. Pelletier d'Oisy, French airman, reached Bangkok on his eastern flight to Japan today. He had flown from Rangoon in approximately five hours, and now is far ahead of British and Portuguese fliers, who also have set the noses of their planes toward the land of the rising sun.

SCHOOL SHED BURNS.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., May 10.— Fire, of unknown origin, completely destroyed a coal shed and storage shed on the rear of the lot at school district No. 104, five miles southwest of Wymore Thursday night, and caused damage estimated at $500. A small quantity of coal and a few supplies, and some tools, were stored in the buildings and were burned

IMPROVED DELIVERY.

(Special to The Star.)

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 10.—This city is to have better delivery service from the American Railway Express company in the future and the limits have been extended several blocks in all directions. Increase in business and the addition of motor trucks for delivery purposes are responsible for the new order.

SALE OF POPPIES BRINGS IN $1,250

All Money To Be Used in Hospital and Welfare Fund for Disabled Veterans.

Poppies sold on Lincoln streets Saturday brought in about $1250 for the American Legion auxiliary to use in the hospital and welfare fund for disabled veterans.

All of the seventy-five workers had reported Saturday evening when Mrs. C. E. McGlasson, chairman of the poppy committee, made her report. A detailed financial statement will be given in a few days. Every cent of the money collected will be used to help the veterans, according to Mrs. McGlasson.

This is the third year in which the Poppy day sale has brought in an almost identical amount. The totals each time will probably not vary more than a few dollars.

Besides members of the auxiliary who sold the flowers this year, many friends of the organization aided.

Harvard Students At Festal Board

(Special to The Star.)

HARVARD, Neb., May 10—Fifty-seven persons attended the nanual junior- senior banquet, held in the basement of the First Methodist church, here last night. Twenty-two juniors, twenty-four seniors and the faculty of the high school were present.

MORE ATTENTION TO HOME URGED

Coolidge Makes Radio Address On Behalf of Better Homes Movement.

Declares American Fireside is "Source Of Our National Well Being."

WASHINGTON, May 10.—President Coolidge, in an address tonight that was heard by unseen millions of radio listeners, recommended that Americans pay more attention to their homes. The president spoke as president of the advisory council of the Better Homes in America movement which opens a week's national activities tomorrow.

"In recent years," said the president, "the remarkable development of our material resources, of human invention and of human opportunity have turned the attentions of many from the home to other fields of engrossing interests. It has been necessary to recall public attention to the home, lest its influence and its finer values be impaired.

"The American home is the source of our national well-being in it our high traditions of service and integrity are fostered. From the true home there emerges respect for the rights of others, and the habit of co-operating for worthy ends. Through sharing its common enterprises and common sacrifices, the child develops that sturdiness of character which distinguishes the manhood and womanhood of our land."

The better homes movement was conceived and is headed by Mrs. W. A. Brown Maloney, for the purpose of educating the people as to the type of homes which should be built and the manner they should be equipped. During the ensuing week, better homes demostrations will be held in more than a thousand cities, towns and villages, and in several hundred rural communities.

Houses, either specially built or borrowed, will be used. Interested men and women will explain and demonstrate the ideal methods of furnishing; the labor saving devices; the exterior decorations and all other things that go to make up an ideal American home.

GERMAN POLICE ARE ON GUARD

Every Precaution Taken to Prevent Violence at Halle Sunday.

HALLE, Germany, May 10.—The old Germany of the goose step, parades here tomorrow in a great nationalist demonstration before the statue of General Von Moltke.

Thousands of monarchists and extreme nationalists were pouring into Halle tonight to find the city almost an armed camp, with extraordinary police precautions apparent on every hand.

The occasion is the dedication of the von Moltke monument, but the presence of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, General Ludendorff anud other military leaders, who led the imperial army in search of "Der Tag" in 1914, lent a martial, monarchistic air to the gathering.

Police precautions were directed principally against communists, who are incensed because the government granted permission for the nationalist demonstration after prohibiting a workers' parade on May day.

Make Progress On Huge Tunnel Under Mountain

DENVER, May 10.—Contractors driving the gigantic Moffat tunnel under the continental divide west of Denver today passed the mile mark with the preliminary water tunnel.

Under the construction plan adopted, the smaller tunnel, to be used later as a water tube, will be constructed first, offsets from this making possible speedier work on the main railroad and vehicular passage.

CLASS RECEPTION.

(Special to The Star.)

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 10—The junior-senior reception held at Eagle hall last night was the big social event of the school year and every member of both classes was in attendance. School will close here Friday May 23, the earliest in many years.

MRS. M'CORMICK IS UNFORGIVING

Refuses Comment On Report Of Birth Of Child to Mr. and Mrs. Max Oser.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Possibility of a reconciliation between Mathilde McCormick Oser and her mother, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, who is reported never to have sanctioned the marriage of her daughter, then 18, to Max Oser, elderly Swiss riding master, was discussed by Chicago friends today following word from Paris of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Oser.

But Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, if forgiveness is in her heart, kept it a secret. Inquiries at the McCormick home met the answer: "Mrs. McCormick has nothing to say."

Harold F. McCormick had no comment to offer as grandfather. His secretary, Colonel Lasaref, reported that Harold McCormick was out of the city aad denied that any knowledge of the baby's arrival had been received.

Shares of two huge fortunes are in store for the new heiress. Mrs. Oser's daughter is a great grandchild of John D. Rockefeller, as well as being in line for a share of the McCormick millions.

VETERANS PLAN FOR POPPY DAY

Sale of Flowers Here May 24 By Overseas Organization.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars have set aside May 24 this year for their annual Poppy day, and in an open letter calling attention to the fact and explaining the purposes for which money from the sale will be used, Jack Matthews, commander of Post No. 131, urges the support of citizens.

The letter follows:

"The poppy, immortalized by Col. John McCrae's poem, 'In Flanders Fields,' is indissolubly associated with the memory of those who gave the last full measure of devotion on the fields of France nad Belgium and thus has become a living symbol of the souls of our dead.

"The movement to make the Poppy the Inter-Allied memorial flower spread with remarkable rapidity until it has been accepted as such in America, France, England, Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

"The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States feel honored that so great and solemn a task has come under their direction and will always endeavor to prevent the commercializing of Poppy day so that it may ever remain a lofty inheritance and a memorial to their fallen comrades.

"To Americans. Memorial day will always be a day dedicated to those who gave their all to the nation, no matter where or when they fell. On that day every man, woman and child should commemorate their sacrifice by wearing a buddy poppy. The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, following its annual costom, is again conducting Poppy day this year.

"The Richard L. Harris Post No. 131 has set aside May 24, 1924 as Poppy day in Lincoln. All money received from the sale of the buddy poppy is used only for the aid, benefit and comfort of service men and their dependents."

SEEK CHICAGO MAIL ROBBERS

Underworld Combed In Effort to Locate Men Who Fled With $35.000.

CHICAGO, May 10.—A house to house search of Chicago's underworld was on tonight in the hunt for the three bandits who early today escaped with four sacks of registered mail containing $35,000, from the rear of the Indiana Harbor, Ind., postoffice.

A. E. Germer, postoffice inspector, believes the men who some time ago staged the $100,000 bank robbery at Harvey, Ill., engineered today's affair.

Harry Pierson, truck driver, and four postal clerks, were about to carry the mail in to the Indiana Harbor postoffice when the three men drove up, drew revolvers, selected the registered mail sacks from the pile and drove away toward Chicago.

Comparative Prices Are Never Permitted to Become a Part of HAAS BROTHERS Advertising

CUSTOMER confidence is guarded most carefully at this store. We believe that the policy of quoting former or comparative prices in a store's advertising permits of an avenue for exaggeration and often wilfull abuse.

THE adoption of the plan to not quote comparative prices leaves the determining of the actual worth of an article solely with the customer. This eliminates all possible misunderstanding and is a basis for increased customer confidence.

AT Haas Brothers you are the judge of former values. We would much rather surprise you by giving a greater value than you might expect, rather than disappoint you in the slightest through an exaggeration.

FARMER RELIEF MEASURE NEXT

McNary-Haugen Bill To Be Given Consideration Before Adjournment.

Agreement Reached After An Insistent Demand From Bloc Members.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Farm relief legislation at this session of congress was guaranteed today by the decision of house and senate leaders to give the McNary-Haugen bill full consideration in both houses before adjournment

Agreement, which was reached after repeated demands of farm bloc members that the bill be given a place on the program, provides that the measure will be the next bill to be taken up by each house

The decision to consider the bill was not regarded as insuring its passage in anything like its present form, as it provides for a $200,000,000 drain on the treasury to advance the capital needed to put the marketing corporation it contemplates in operation Advocates of the bill assert that this will eventually be returned, but the feeling was general that so large an appropriation might not be agreed to

Figures Show Big Increase in Autos In Use Each Year

Figures just compiled by the Hupp Motor car corporation show that automobile registrations in the United States have increased 1,119 per cent in the last ten years, an average of more than 100 per cent a year over 1913 figures They have risen from 1,248,056 as of December 31, 1913, to 15,222,658 on December 31, 1923

To Charles D Hastings, president and general manager of the corporation, the chief reason for this marvelous growth is the fact that the automotive industry is the most conspicuous business that is today giving greater dollar value than ten years ago

"A 1913 dollar today will buy 111 cents worth of automobile," Mr Hastings points out "But that is by no means all It will buy a motor car so far superior to the one of ten years ago that comparisons are almost impossible. The average dollar today will buy less than 65 cents worth of all other commodities based on 1913-14 prices

The Executor Of Your Will

You have made your Will? Of course, that is the only way you can be reasonably sure your estate will be divided in the manner you wish it to be divided Is your Executor an individual?

Naturally, you will select one of your relations or friends for Executor It is an old custom And yet, like many old customs, it cannot keep pace with progress in other lines

A Trust Company gives the best service as Executor, because (a) it is not subject to accidents, sickness and death, nor does it take vacations or move away or become insane And (b) because it makes a business of acting as Executor, and its staff, working at such matters every day, become proficient in all the details of Executorship

And Trust Company service costs your estate no more than the services of an individual The fees are fixed by law and apply equally to all Executors and administrators

Talk with our Trust Officers about planning your Will, or revising and bringing it down to date You will incur no obligation you do not wish to incur Ask to have your name and address put in our mailing list to receive booklets on Wills, Estates and Trusts as they are published

McNary-Haugen Bill To Be Given Consideration Before Adjournment.

Agreement Reached After An Insistent Demand From Bloc Members.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Farm relief legislation at this session of congress was guaranteed today by the decision of house and senate leaders to give the McNary-Haugen bill full consideration in both houses before adjournment.

Agreement, which was reached after repeated demands of farm bloc members that the bill be given a place on the program, provides that the measure will be the next bill to be taken up by each house.

The decision to consider the bill was not regarded as insuring its passage in anything like its present form, as it provides for a $200,000,000 drain on the treasury to advance the capital needed to put the marketing corporation it contemplates in operation. Advocates of the bill assert that this will eventually be returned, but the feeling was general that so large an appropriation might not be agreed to.

University Notes

Dr. Herman A. Spoehr of the department of botanical research of Carnegie institute will address the annual joint session of Sigma Xi and Phi Beta Kappa, honorary science and scholarship fraternities, at 8 Tuesday evening, May 13, in the Temple theater on "Sunlight — The Prime Mover of Civilization." The public is invited. Dr. Spoehr has recently been conducting experimental work at the desert station of the institute at Tuscon, Arizona.

Two recent reviewers of "Economics for Everyman," by Dean J. E. LeRossignol, hail it as a masterpiece in the field of economic writing. Prof. John Ise of the University of Kansas reviewing the volume for the March number of The American Economic Review says in part: " 'Economics for Everyman' is not a 'Potboiler' of the conventional type. The book differs in a number of respects from most elementary texts on economics. Professor LeRossignol's years of careful study and scholarly research are well shown by the breadth of the field from which he takes his material, as well as by the balanced and judicious quality of his conclusions. The book is concrete and interesting; the style is clear and graphic." Another reviewer, Prof. W. G. Langworthy Taylor, writing in The Christian Science Monitor, calls this economic treatise "epoch-making" and says that there is nothing "dismal" about the volume. "On the contrary," continues Professor Taylor, "the volume is pervaded by a cheerful mood and a gentle humor. This work of Dr. LeRossignol amply proves that the great body of economic thought can be translated into everyday speech."

L. O. Ripley of Wichita, vice-president and general manager of the Kansas Gas & Electric company, spoke on "Modern Transmission Line Construction and Financing" at the last general convocation of the College of Engineering in Mechanical Engineering building Thursday morning. He illustrated his talk by moving pictures of one of the recent construction projects of his company. Mr. Ripley is president of the middle-west division of the National Electric Light association. This division is composed of Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska.

At recent elections the student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers chose the following officers for 1924-25: Willard J. Turnbull, '25, Burchard, president; Donald Roberts, '25, Lincoln, vice-president; Donald McCosky '25, Scottsbluff, secretary; and Homer A. Scott '26, Lincoln, treasurer. The newly elected executive committee consists of James D. Marshall '25, Fremont, senior member; Theodore Armstrong '26, Omaha, and Glenn Sudman '26, Oshkosh.

Mamie Meredith of the department of English of the university contributed to the Sunday, April 20, edition of The New York World special correspondence on the transfer of Arbor Lodge at Nebraska City, which, with illustrations of the lodge and grounds, occupied nearly a page. Miss Meredith told how Arbor day observance has spread from Nebraska around the world, how J. Sterling Morton, the father of the idea, won fortune and fame in Nebraska, and how Joy Morton of Chicago presented Arbor Lodge to the state as a park and botanic garden to form a perpetual memorial to his distinguished father.

Church Societies Have Big Meetings Planned For Week

Monday, beginning at 6:15 at the Grand hotel the annual spring meeting of the Lincoln Council of Churches will be held. J. Shrieve Durham, home visitation secretary for the International Council of religious education, will speak. Miss McCormick, speaker for the Near East relief society will be a guest and will also speak.

Beginning at 11 o'clock, the Missionary Feceration will meet at the Grand hotel Tuesday. There will be election of officers and an address by Dr. W. M. Danner. Lunch at noon. Dr. Danner is considered one of the best informed men in America on mission work among lepers, and he will speak on that subject. Ministers, medical students, and members of church missionary societies are urged to attend.

Vacation church school workers will meet at the Y. W. C. A. Sunday afternoon at 3:30. Arrangements have been made for holding vacation schools at the following churches: Tabernacle Christian, Westminster Presbyterian, Calvary Evangelical, Trinity Methodist, First Plymouth Congregational, First Presbyterian, First Congregational, (down town), Emmanuel Methodist, Caldwell Memorial, Vine Congregational, Second Presbyterian, Epworth Methodist, Salem Evangelical, Elm Park Methodist, Quinn Chapel Methodist, and Warren Methodist. More than 100 teachers and assistants will be required to carry on the program.

The school will close with a pageant directed by Rev. Dwight H. Dow, rector of Holy Trinity Episcopal church.

Dramatic Art Study Groups Will Be Held

Group study meetings of drama and all dramatic arts are to be featured by the Lincoln Dramatic Arts league during the coming season, according to plans made by the league at a luncheon Saturday at the chamber of commerce.

Officers for the ensuing year were also elected at the luncheon meeting Saturday, and the following will serve: W. W. Curfman, president; George Towns, first vice president; Mrs. S. R. McKelvie, second vice president and chairman of programs; Adrian M. Newens, secretary and treasurer.

Friday evening the members of the league met for dinner at the University club and three board members were elected to serve for the coming year. They were Mrs. S. R. McKelvie, Miss Alic Howell and Dr. H. B. Alexander.

Great Artists Programs Here Gaining Notice

Much interest has been manifested in the splendid programs which are to be offered the coming season as the Great Artists course. Willard Kimball will succeed Mrs. H. J. Kirschstein as director of the course in Lincoln.

The artists and the dates on which they appear are as follows:

Rosa Ponselle, October 8.
Dreszke Singers, December 11.
Georges Enesco, January 26.
Detroit Symphony orchestra, February 11.
Meier and Pattison, March 24.

Mr. Kimball says that the season tickets may now be subscribed for, and that those desiring a good location are urged not to delay attending to this matter.

Figures Show Big Increase in Autos In Use Each Year

Figures just compiled by the Hupp Motor car corporation show that automobile registrations in the United States have increased 1,119 per cent in the last ten years, an average of more than 100 per cent a year over 1913 figures. They have risen from 1,248,056 as of December 31, 1913, to 15,222,658 on December 31, 1923.

To Charles D. Hastings, president and general manager of the corporation, the chief reason for this marvelous growth is the fact that the automotive industry is the most conspicuous business that is today giving greater dollar value than ten years ago.

"A 1913 dollar today will buy 111 cents worth of automobile," Mr. Hastings points out. "But that is by no means all. It will buy a motor car so far superior to the one of ten years ago that comparisons are almost impossible. The average dollar today will buy less than 65 cents worth of all other commodities based on 1913-14 prices.

Clashes Before Tokio Elections

TOKIO, May 10—Disorders were reported in three different cities of Japan today as political parties wound up their campaigns for the parliamentary elections to be held tomorrow.

One man was killed and ten persons wounded in a riot at the naval port of Kure. Electioneers at Fukushima requested the governor of the prefecture to call out gendarmes and more disorders resulted when he refused to do so.

The campaign was orderly in Tokio.

Banker Deaf For Years, Now Hears Perfectly

Mr. John L. Ellerman, president of the Farmers National Bank, Fairfax, South Dakota, says that after suffering from deafness for many years he can now hear the slightest whisper and is so proud and happy of his own good fortune that he wants everyone who is deaf or hard of hearing to know about it. After trying everything he could hear of without success. Mr. Ellerman finally saw the announcement of a New York firm stating that they had perfected a new hearing device called the Acousticon which would enable anyone whose auditory nerve was not entirely destroyed to hear as perfectly as those with normal hearing. As this firm offered to send their product on Ten Days Free Trial—no deposit—no C. O. D. he decided to try it. To his utter amazement and delight, he found tha tthis remarkable invention enabled him to hear all sounds as clearly as when a boy. He has since recommended it to a number of his friends and they also report most satisfactory results. If you want to hear again as well as when a child, write the Dictograph Products Corporation, Suite 1304-A, No. 220 W. 42nd Street, New York City, and ask them to send you an Acousticon on Ten Days Free Trial. There are no strings attached to their offer. The trial is absolutely free. Just send them your name and address.—Advertisement.

The Executor Of Your Will

You have made your Will? Of course, that is the only way you can be reasonably sure your estate will be divided in the manner you wish it to be divided. Is your Executor an individual?

Naturally, you will select one of your relations or friends for Executor. It is an old custom. And yet, like many old customs, it cannot keep pace with progress in other lines.

A Trust Company gives the best service as Executor, because (a) it is not subject to accidents, sickness and death, nor does it take vacations or move away or become insane. And (b) because it makes a business of acting as Executor; and its staff, working at such matters every day, become proficient in all the details of Executorship.

And Trust Company service costs your estate no more than the services of an individual. The fees are fixed by law and apply equally to all Executors and administrators.

Talk with our Trust Officers about planning your Will, or revising and bringing it down to date. You will incur no obligation you do not wish to incur. Ask to have your name and address put in our mailing list to receive booklets on Wills, Estates and Trusts as they are published.

RHAPSODY KNOCKS CLASSY SPELLERS

Omaha Girl Wins Championship of Four States In Contest.

OMAHA, May 10.—Elsie Kopke, 13 years old, pupil of Ashland Park school, won the interstate championship written spelling contest held Saturday at Elk Point, S. D. She competed against forty-five champion spellers selected in rural school district contests in four states—Minnesota, Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota.

The girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August H. Kopke of West Q street. She was accompanied to Elk Point by Superintendent Henry Eaton of the county schools.

It required 1200 words to decide the contest. At the end of 1,000 words, there were eleven scholars still undefeated. Papers were corrected after every tenth word.

Rhapsody was the word which won for Elsie. The last contestant to oppose her misspelled it, leaving out the "h."

Delaware was another word which proved a stumbling block to some of the spellers.

Many also had trouble with hyrangea, osmosis and ecstacy.

Mr. Eaton estimated Elsie had a vocabulary of thirty-five hundred words. She will enter South High this fall and plans to prepare herself for teaching.

Classes at Wood River Unite In Enjoyable Feast

(Special to The Star.)

WOOD RIVER, Neb., May 10.—The junior-senior banquet of the Wood River high school, held Thursday night at K. C. hall, proved to be one of the most beautiful and alaborate affairs o fthe school year. The hall was decorated throughout with the senior class colors, green and gold, the tables being illuminated with green candles, shaded with gold tissue. At each plate was a doll wearing a green cap and gown and in one hand holding a diploma and in the other a place card.

The fest was prepared by the mothers of the juniors, under the supervision of Mrs. Andy Stone and consisted of three delicious courses. These mothers came in for much praise upon the part of the banqueters. The toast list was worked out in a unique manner, each toast being given as a part of a radio. William Battle, as "Transmitter," acted as toastmaster and sounded the words of welcome.

Other toasts were: Radiation, Jane Rumbarger, Amplifier, Miss Abbott; Detestor, Magnolia Nelson; Insulator, Alice Bald; Oscellations, Mr. Julian. The response to the address of welcome was by Wilbur Oldfather. Mildred Jacobus sang "Sunrise and You."

The entire successful affair was under the direction if Miss Watkins, junior class sponsor.

CRETE NOTES.

(Special to The Star.)

CRETE, Neb., May 10 — An explosion caused a small fire at the Crete cleaning plant, resulting in damage of $300 to clothing, $300 to building and $200 to machinery. It was brought under control by the prompt use of chemicals. Very little insurance was carried.

Crete is to have a military band and plans are well under way for its organization. This honor was awarded Crete in competition with towns in four states and the members are to be mustered in as a part of the medical regiment of the 35th division. Twenty-seven of the twenty-eight required signers have been secured and the headquarters of the organization will be at Doane college, with Prof. Walter S. Huxford as director.

Lumir C. Havlicek, accompanist of the Doane College Men's Glee club, has quit farming and moved to town, having been appointed manager of the Fairmont Creamery company's cream station.

Crete chapter D. A. R. closed a very profitable year's work and held its election of officers this week with the following result: Regent, Mrs. Norma Miller; vice regent, Mrs. C. R. Davenport; secretary, Mrs. Estel Spadt; treasurer, Mrs. Mary V. Johnston; registrar, Mrs. Frank Mixa. Mrs. H. S. Fuller was hostess and served light refreshments at the close of the social hour.

The north entrance to Doane college is being graveled, as there was quite a quantity left over from the Thirteenth street road job. The Crete Rotary club will undertake the entire expense of the improvement.

Buying Suitable Investments

People save carefully in order to invest. Often through the lack of investment knowledge they invest carefully.

Promises of large returns, the smooth talking promoter, sensational literature—are the causes of many unprofitable investments.

Unsuitability of the investment very often results in a loss and inconvenience.

Every investor should buy securities to meet his own special requirements. He should know whether quickly marketable bonds, long term bonds, municipals, or farm or city mortgages would be best suited for him.

Suitability is second in importance to safety. We will be glad to help you select from a wide, diversified list those securities best suited to your financial circumstances, business requirements and savings plan.

No matter how small a sum may be involved consult our experienced bond men before you invest.

Buying Suitable Investments

People save carefully in order to invest. Often through the lack of investment knowledge they invest carefully.

Promises of large returns, the smooth talking promoter, sensational literature—are the causes of many unprofitable investments.

Unsuitability of the investment very often results in a loss and inconvenience.

Every investor should buy securities to meet his own special requirements. He should know whether quickly marketable bonds, long term bonds, municipals, or farm or city mortgages would be best suited for him.

Suitability is second in importance to safety. We will be glad to help you select from a wide, diversified list those securities best suited to your financial circumstances, business requirements and savings plan.

No matter how small a sum may be involved consult our experienced bond men before you invest.

Wants New Decree—Pearl Corr filed suit in district court Saturday for divorce from Robert P. Corr, asking that the former decree of separate maintenance be set aside and an absolute divorce be granted. She says that her husband nags her; refuses to comply with the court's order; and has taken their child to parts unknown.

Spillman to Talk at Hastings.—The chamber of commerce at Hastings next Tuesday will have Attorney General Spillman as its guest at noon luncheon and hear him speak on the relation of business men to public affairs. In the evening Mr. Spillman will broadcast from the Hastings radio station a brief history of the state legal department and its functions, beginning with the foundation of the system of English jurisprudence in the thirteenth century and tracing it to the present day.

Legislator Not Eligible—Attorney General Spillman has advised Governor Bryan that, in spite of conflicting court opinions from other states, the Nebraska constitution appears to prohibit the appointment of a member of the legislature to the position of municipal judge in Omaha. The governor had inquired of Spillman whether he could legally appoint State Representative George B. Collins to fill a vacancy in that place, upon receipt of Collins' resignation from the legislature, Collins having received the highest primary vote for the nomination, aside from the judges already serving. The attorney general doubts whether the governor has a right to make any appointment at all, since the municipal judgship does not appear to be a state office.

To Hear Complaint—A lively time is anticipated at next Tuesdays hearing by the state railway commission on the complaint by the Farmers' Lumber Co., of Omaha against all Nebraska railroads, demanding the right to ship mixed carloads of lumber and other building materials at rates no higher than those which the materials would take in separate carload lots. The company does a mail order business, selling direct to consumers throughout the state. Small town dealers in lumber and building materials and also the line house firms and wholesale companies are opposed to the granting of such rates which, they say would make it easier for "wildcat" firms to invade local territory. On Thursday, the railway commission will hold a conference with shippers, railroad representatives, and representatives of commercial bodies with reference to the proposed general readjustment of class rates in Nebraska.

MASS MEET TO HELP MIDLAND

Lutherans From Over State Meet at Grace Church Monday Evening.

Arrangements have been completed for a great mass meeting of the Lutheran churches of the Lincoln district, to be held in Grace Lutheran church Monday night, May 12, at 8 o'clock.

A special feature of the program will be the double mixed quartet from the Midland college school of music, which will sing several numbers.

Several of the prominent educators of the Lutheran church are scheduled to speak. Dr. F. Gotwald, secretary of the United Lutheran church board of education and Dr. O. H. Pannkoke, the financing agent for Midland college, are among the men who will be present. Dr. W. F. Rangeler, president of the English Nebraska synod, Dr. J. F. Krueger, president of Midland college, and Vernon Grothe, leader of the alumni, are accompanying the party.

Obituary

Joseph Emerson Burford.

Joseph Emerson Burford was born near Hickman, Kentucky, March 18, 1842, and departed this life April 29, 1924. His early boyhood was spent at Union City, Tenn. He moved to Eureka, Illinois when just a young man and on June 3, 1863, was united in marriage with Sarah Louisa Dimmitt at Washington, Illinois, whose death occurred about four and one-half years ago, December 1, 1919.

Four children were born to this union, O. F. Burford of Fairbury, Neb.; Dr. J. A. Burford of Kearney, Neb.; W. E. Burford of Venice, California, sons; and Mrs. C. Henderson Rush of Lincoln, daughter, all of whom are living.

Nine grandchildren, six great grandchildren and one half brother, Benjamin Evans of Nacadoches, Tex., are also left to mourn his passing.

Mr. Burford and family came to Nebraska in 1883, living for a number of years near Elmwood and later at Alma. He moved to Lincoln in 1902 and had made his home here since that time. He was mentally and physically active right up to the time of his death. He was a constant reader of good books and was well informed on all matters of current interest. He was of a quiet and reserved disposition but made many fiends wherever he went and was a very devoted man to his family. He was a member of the East Lincoln Christian church.

Funeral services were held at Morey's funeral home May 1, 1924, services and the music was furnished The Rev. Jack Leonard conducted the by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lintt. Burial was in Wyuka.

—CONTRIBUTED.

William Riley.

William Riley was born in Brighton, Illinois, January 1, 1860, and passed from this life April 22, 1924, at 6:30 a. m., Tuesday, at the home of Fred Cunningham, Thirteenth and Sumner streets, Lincoln, at the age of 64 years, three months and 21 days.

At the age of 20 years he moved with his parents to Princeton, where he has resided on a farm continuously since.

In February, 1889, he was married to Elizabeth Clare of Princeton, where they resided ever since. This union was blessed with four sons.

The last two years he began to fail in health, until life finally passed away.

Funeral services were held at 9:30 a. m., Thursday, at the Catholic church at Cortland, conducted by Rev. Father Gregory of Lincoln.

Burial was in the St. James cemetery at Cortland.

The pallbearers were his six nephews: Will and Clare Sweeney of Lincoln, Leo Clare and John Clare, Jr., and Donald and Leon Riley of Princeton.

He leaves to mourn his loss an aged mother, a loving wife, and four sons, J. P. of Colorado, M. V. and F. L. of Lincoln, and William Riley and two daughters, Helen and Margaret of Princeton, also four sisters, two brothers, and a host of relatives and friends.

The beautiful floral offerings and the large attendance of friends showed the high esteem in which he was held in the community.

For the angel of death spread his wings on the blast,
And breathed in the face of the foe, as he passed;
And the eyes of the sleepers waxed deadly and chill,
And their hearts but once heaved and forever grew still.

Spillman to Talk at Hastings.—The chamber of commerce at Hastings next Tuesday will have Attorney General Spillman as its guest at noon luncheon and hear him speak on the relation of business men to public affairs. In the evening Mr. Spillman will broadcast from the Hastings radio station a brief history of the state legal department and its functions, beginning with the foundation of the system of English jurisprudence in the thirteenth century and tracing it to the present day.

Legislator Not Eligible—Attorney General Spillman has advised Governor Bryan that, in spite of conflicting court opinions from other states, the Nebraska constitution appears to prohibit the appointment of a member of the legislature to the position of municipal judge in Omaha. The governor had inquired of Spillman whether he could legally appoint State Representative George B. Collins to fill a vacancy in that place, upon receipt of Collins' resignation from the legislature, Collins having received the highest primary vote for the nomination, aside from the judges already serving. The attorney general doubts whether the governor has a right to make any appointment at all, since the municipal judgship does not appear to be a state office.

To Hear Complaint—A lively time is anticipated at next Tuesdays hearing by the state railway commission on the complaint by the Farmers' Lumber Co., of Omaha against all Nebraska railroads, demanding the right to ship mixed carloads of lumber and other building materials at rates no higher than those which the materials would take in separate carload lots. The company does a mail order business, selling direct to consumers throughout the state. Small town dealers in lumber and building materials and also the line house firms and wholesale companies are opposed to the granting of such rates which, they say would make it easier for "wildcat" firms to invade local territory. On Thursday, the railway commission will hold a conference with shippers, railroad representatives, and representatives of commercial bodies with reference to the proposed general readjustment of class rates in Nebraska.

MASS MEET TO HELP MIDLAND

Lutherans From Over State Meet at Grace Church Monday Evening.

Arrangements have been completed for a great mass meeting of the Lutheran churches of the Lincoln district, to be held in Grace Lutheran church Monday night, May 12, at 8 o'clock.

A special feature of the program will be the double mixed quartet from the Midland college school of music, which will sing several numbers.

Several of the prominent educators of the Lutheran church are scheduled to speak. Dr. F. Gotwald, secretary of the United Lutheran church board of education and Dr. O. H. Pannkoke, the financing agent for Midland college, are among the men who will be present. Dr. W. F. Rangeler, president of the English Nebraska synod, Dr. J. F. Krueger, president of Midland college, and Vernon Grothe, leader of the alumni, are accompanying the party.

Piles Can Be Cured Without Surgery

An instructive book has been published by Dr. A. S. McCleary, the noted rectal specialist of Kansas City. This book tells how sufferers from Piles can be quickly and easily cured without the use of knife, scissors, "hot" iron, electricity or any other cutting or burning methods, without confinement to bed and no hospital bills to pay. The method has been a success for twenty-four years and in more than eight thousand cases. The book is sent postpaid free to persons afflicted with piles and other rectal troubles who clip this item and mail it with name and address to Dr. McCleary, 562 Parkview Sanitarium, Kansas City, Mo.—Advertisement.

Obituary

Joseph Emerson Burford.

Joseph Emerson Burford was born near Hickman, Kentucky, March 18, 1842, and departed this life April 29, 1924. His early boyhood was spent at Union City, Tenn. He moved to Eureka, Illinois when just a young man and on June 3, 1863, was united in marriage with Sarah Louisa Dimmitt at Washington, Illinois, whose death occurred about four and one-half years ago, December 1, 1919.

Four children were born to this union, O. F. Burford of Fairbury, Neb.; Dr. J. A. Burford of Kearney, Neb.; W. E. Burford of Venice, California, sons; and Mrs. C. Henderson Rush of Lincoln, daughter, all of whom are living.

Nine grandchildren, six great grandchildren and one half brother, Benjamin Evans of Nacadoches, Tex., are also left to mourn his passing.

Mr. Burford and family came to Nebraska in 1883, living for a number of years near Elmwood and later at Alma. He moved to Lincoln in 1902 and had made his home here since that time. He was mentally and physically active right up to the time of his death. He was a constant reader of good books and was well informed on all matters of current interest. He was of a quiet and reserved disposition but made many fiends wherever he went and was a very devoted man to his family. He was a member of the East Lincoln Christian church.

Funeral services were held at Morey's funeral home May 1, 1924. services and the music was furnished The Rev. Jack Leonard conducted the by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lintt. Burial was in Wyuka.

—CONTRIBUTED.

William Riley.

William Riley was born in Brighton, Illinois, January 1, 1860, and passed from this life April 22, 1924, at 6:30 a. m., Tuesday, at the home of Fred Cunningham, Thirteenth and Sumner streets, Lincoln, at the age of 64 years, three months and 21 days.

At the age of 20 years he moved with his parents to Princeton, where he has resided on a farm continuously since.

In February, 1889, he was married to Elizabeth Clare of Princeton, where they resided ever since. This union was blessed with four sons.

The last two years he began to fail in health, until life finally passed away.

Funeral services were held at 9:30 a. m., Thursday, at the Catholic church at Cortland, conducted by Rev. Father Gregory of Lincoln.

Burial was in the St. James cemetery at Cortland.

The pallbearers were his six nephews: Will and Clare Sweeney of Lincoln, Leo Clare and John Clare, Jr., and Donald and Leon Riley of Princeton.

He leaves to mourn his loss an aged mother, a loving wife, and four sons, J. P. of Colorado, M. V. and F. L. of Lincoln, and William Riley and two daughters, Helen and Margaret of Princeton, also four sisters, two brothers, and a host of relatives and friends.

The beautiful floral offerings and the large attendance of friends showed the high esteem in which he was held in the community.

For the angel of death spread his wings on the blast,
And breathed in the face of the foe as he passed;
And the eyes of the sleepers waxed deadly and chill,
And their hearts but once heaved and forever grew still.

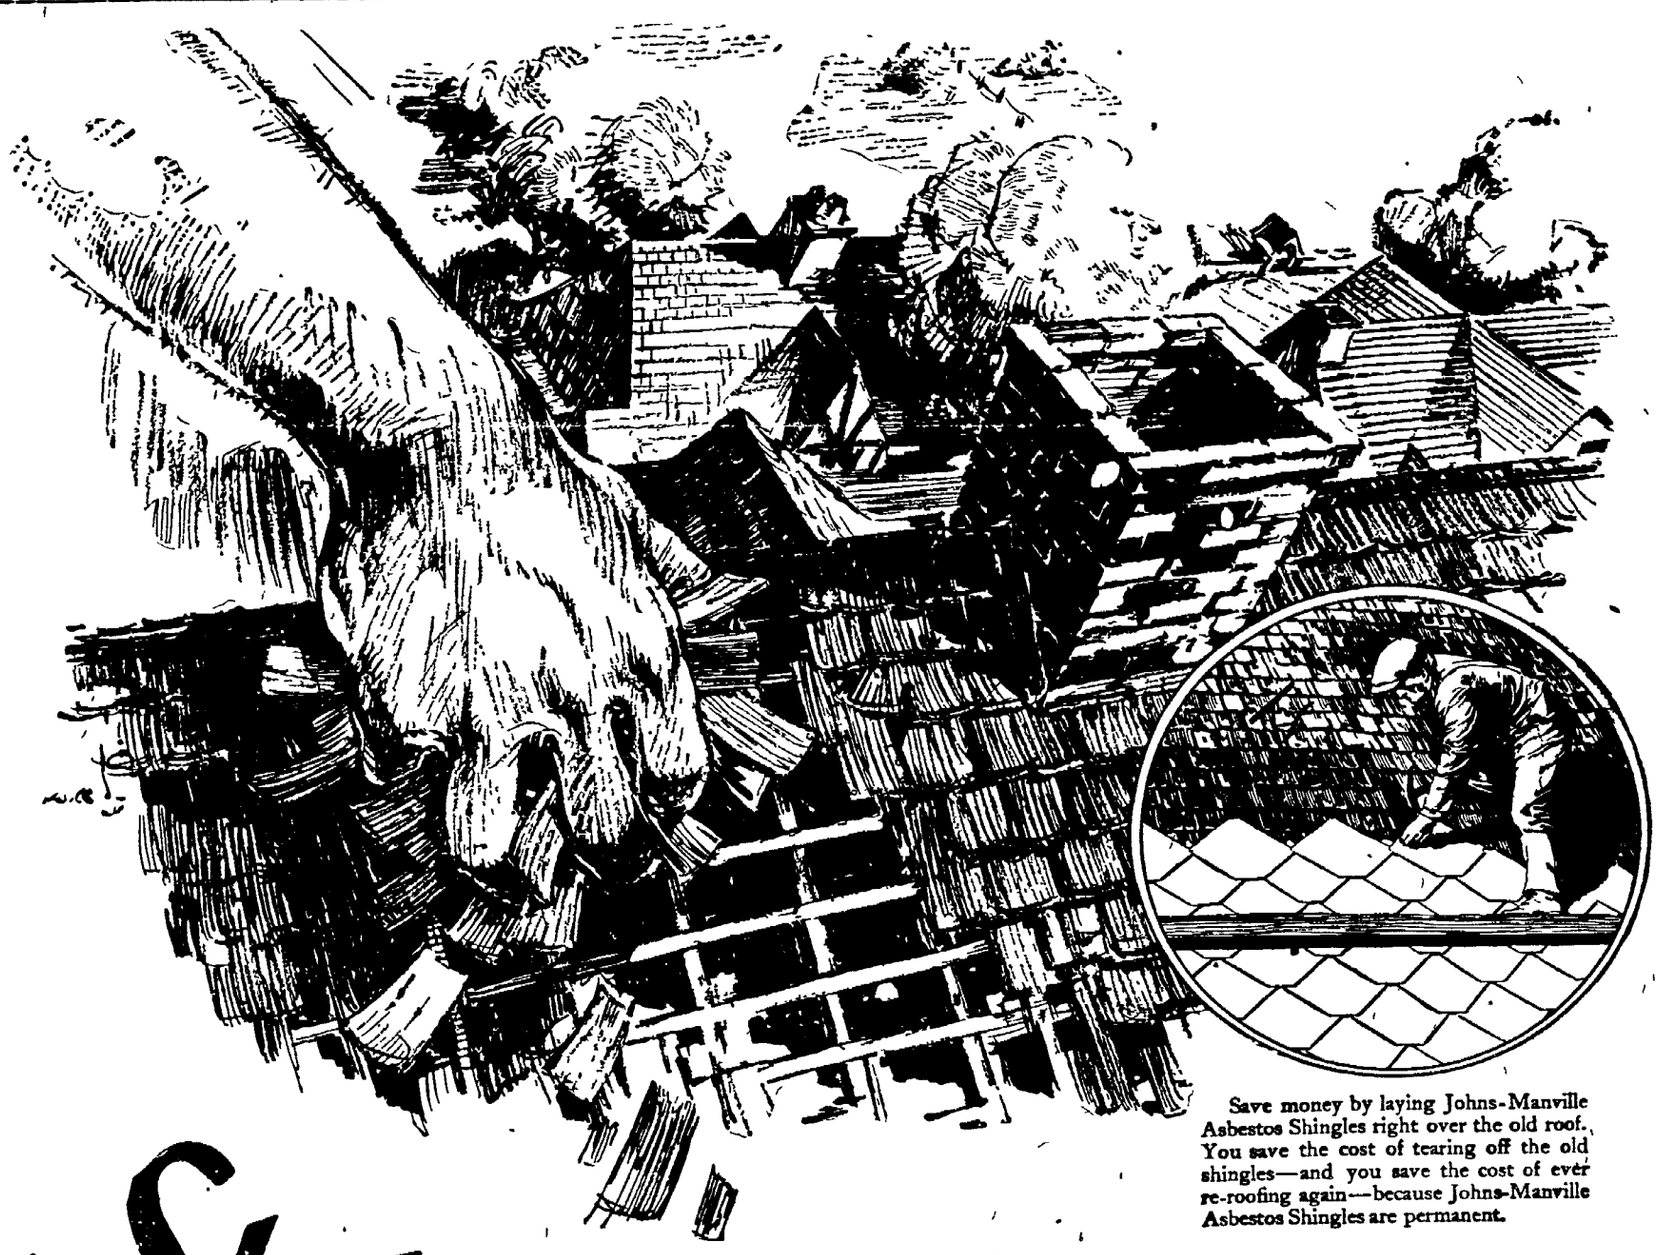
Our large building contracts tell the price and quality story.

No Matter What Kind of a Roof—Let Krause Put It On



Save money by laying Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles right over the old roof. You save the cost of tearing off the old shingles—and you save the cost of ever re-roofing again—because Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles are permanent.

Stop tearing off those old shingles!

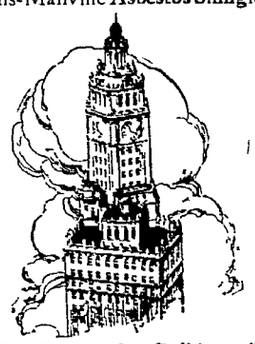
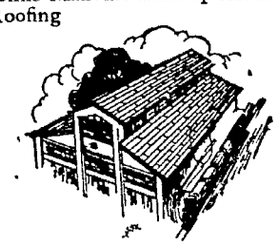
Lay Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles right over the old roof. Get the fire-safety and permanence of Asbestos at little more than the price of ordinary roofing

For home roofs. Whether building a new house or re-roofing an old one, it will pay you to secure the fire-safety and permanence of Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles.



For flat roofs. Buildings like this—the Wrigley Building, Chicago—are built for permanence. That is why the roof chosen was Johns Manville Built-up Asbestos Roofing



For sloping industrial roofs. Johns-Manville Asbestos Roofings protect against fire, smoke, alkali, as well as against weather—because they are rock roofings.

GOING to re-roof? Here's a very important "don't"—you'll save a good deal of money by observing it.

Don't tear off the old roof!—and you won't have any broken shrubbery or litter around the house—you won't expose the inside of your home to the dangers of a sudden rainstorm—and you won't have to pay any labor charges for having the old shingles torn off and carted away.

But—more important than anything else—the old roof, under the new and permanent Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles, becomes a solid blanket of valuable insulation to protect your home against winter cold and summer sun.

An all-round economy

Not only is this method of laying your new roof inexpensive—but the Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles themselves make the most economical roof you can buy, because they will protect your roof year upon year, with little or no maintenance cost, as long as your house lasts. When you re-roof with Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles you have re-roofed for the last time.

Two kinds of Asbestos Shingles

No matter how small or how large your house is, it can have the protection of an asbestos shingled roof. Permanence and fire-safety are brought within the reach of every pocketbook.

Johns-Manville makes two types of asbestos shingles—rigid and flexible. The rigid Asbestos Shingles are hard, concrete-like slabs—with all the permanence of concrete—but they are beautifully toned with several rich colors, reds, grays and browns, whichever you may prefer.

The flexible type—called Johns-Manville Flexstone Shingles, are sold at about the same low cost of ordinary slate-surfaced shingles. Flexstone Shingles are slate-surfaced too—but here the similarity ends. Instead of a rag-felt base such as most flexible shingles have, Flexstone Shingles are built upon a dense layer of asbestos rock fibre—which accounts for their greater fire-safety and durability. They are furnished in shades of red, green or blue-black.

Asbestos for every building

Not only is asbestos the most practical shelter for houses—either old or new—it is a great economy on any type of building.

Besides the Asbestos Shingles, our line includes Built-up Asbestos Roofings for flat roofed buildings and Asbestos Roll Roofings, both slate-surfaced and plain, for all types of sloping roofs, industrial buildings, sheds, garages, farm buildings, etc., and that comfort-giving material for lining walls, floors and roofs, Johns-Manville Housline, which insulates your house against heat, cold or noise.

STATE OFFICIAL IS REBUFFED BY SENATOR NORRIS

Railway Commissioner Randall Asked Insurgent's Support of Entire Ticket.

No Denial Forthcoming of Rumor of Political Tieup With Governor Bryan.

Railway Commissioner Charles A. Randall is one of the Nebraska republicans whom Senator George W. Norris has told to "go to hell" in connection with the damand that Norris give his support to the republican ticket as a whole, and especially that he declare himself for President Coolidge's re-election. Mr. Randall admits that he is among those who wrote to Norris recently and urged him to line up as a party man, both for his own sake as a candidate for senator and to help others on the ticket.

The railway commissioner declines to give out for publication what he told Norris in his letter, or what the senator replied, but he has shown both communications to some of his friends. One piece of advice which Randall offered was accepted and acted upon by Norris. This was that the latter send a telegram of greeting to the republican state convention, which Randall suggested might soften the resentment felt by a good many g. o. p. men over the senator's attacks upon the national administration. Norris, in conjunction with Senator Howell, did wire a message to Chairman Weaver of the convention, but it contained no mention of President Coolidge.

It was on April 26 that Commissioner Randall wrote and mailed his letter to the senior Nebraska senator at Washington. The two men have been rather close personal and political friends, and Randall, though not a candidate for office himself this year, felt sufficiently interested in the success of his party at the coming election to write Norris on the political situation. It was Randall's idea that if Norris would agree to soft-pedal his hostility to Coolidge and do some speaking in Nebraska for the g. o. p. ticket in general, the senator's own chances of election would be better and party prospects improved all around.

Rebuffed by the Senator.

"If you can't be regular, then be as regular as you can," was the substance of the state officials appeal to Senator Norris.

In answer to Randall, the senator wrote under date of May 4, the Sunday following the state convention, in much the same fashion as he had previously done to C. A. Sorenson on Easter Sunday, two weeks previous. He offered the same explanation of his attitude, showed the same irreconcilable disposition toward Coolidge, and again excoriated his republican critics in Nebraska whom he accused of wanting him to be regular but refusnig, to be so themselves when he was a candidate.

Mr. Norris did not, in his four-page typewritten epistle to Randall, consign the latter to perdition. That was done in a newspaper interview given last Friday, at Washington. But he did indicate very clearly that he had no intention whatever acting alone the line which the railway commissioner proposed. He reiterated his purpose to pursue an independent course, supporting such candidates as he may choose to and opposing those that do not suit him. His letter called attention to the fact that he and Coolidge were on opposite sides of the fence on a good many important matters, particularly the question of turning Muscle Shoals over to Henry Ford.

Hit On, Bryan Too.

Commissioner Randall had emphasized in his letter to Norris was the talk which has been going the rounds in g. o. p. circles that the senator conferred with Governor Bryan when hte latter was in Washington several months ago, and that the two had formed a political partnership for their mutual benefit as candidates for re-election in Nebraska.

He pleaded with Norris to disavow this report and come out for McMullen, the republican nominee for governor, who was represented by Randall as being somewhat solicitous to know what attitude, if any, the senator intended to take in the gubernatorial fight. This was urged upon Mr. Norris as very important from the standpoint of his own interests no less than to help the republican state ticket in general.

In his lengthy letter answering Randall's, the senator failed to say a word on this subject. He did not take the trouble even to deny that he and Bryan were in a tieup. The only authoritative statement on that subject is from the governor, who declared recently that there was no such deal or understanding between himself and Norris. But this is not enough to satisfy some of the republican brethren, and Randall wanted something definite from the senator which would contradict the rumor. The senator's refusal to furnish it has confirmed their suspicion that he and Bryan, if not in actual alliance, are at least friendly to each other.

BIG CROWD AT BEACH OPENING

All Attractions Run to Capacity On First Night at Amusement Park.

Crowds thronged at the informal opening of Capitol Beach Saturday evening. Although the weather was too cool for swimming, nearly all other attractions were run at capacity speed; and the vaudeville attractions went off as planned.

Dancing proved especially popular during the evening. The formal opening of the amusement park takes place Sunday.

INQUEST ORDERED.

CHICAGO, May 10—A coroner's inquest was ordered for Monday to place responsibility for the death of four young municipal employes, killed today when their automobile was struck by a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul flyer at a grade crossing on the northwestern outskirts of the city.

WILL COMMAND ARMY UNITS

Field artillery officers of the United States army who are assigned to Lincoln to take part in the free military exposition May 23 at the fair grounds are Capt. J. D. White, and First Lieutenant P. C. Boylan.

Capt. White (left) will command regular army units of field artillery and cavalry. He was engaged in the majority of the major operations on the western front during the world war. Lieut. Boylan (right) has an enviable military record, having spent nearly two years overseas, and was engaged in several of the larger battles of the late war.

BISHOP BECKMAN TO BE INSTALLED

Ceremonies For New Head of Lincoln Diocese Next Thursday.

Bishop Tihen to Deliver Sermon—Public Reception Friday Evening.

Bishop Francis J. Beckman will be installed at St. Mary's cathedral at 9:30 o'clock Thursday by Archbishop Keane of Dubuque, Ia. Solemn pontifical mass will be celebrated by Bishop Beckman, assisted by the Very Rev. M. A. Shine, arch-priest, the Very Rev. J. J. Loughran and the Very Rev. Charles Becker, deacons of honor, the Very Rev. Cashimer Dietrich, arch deacon, the Rev. Rev. Thomas Barden, sub-deacon, and the Rev. P. L. O'Loughlin, master of ceremonies. Bishop Tihen of Denver will deliver the sermon.

Following the installation ceremonies, luncheon will be served at the Lincoln hotel, when Bishop Beckman and the visiting priests and bishops will be honored. One hundred fifty will attend.

Friday evening, a public reception will be held at the Orpheum theatre at 8 o'clock.

CHILDREN GIVE MUSIC FESTIVAL

Two Hundred Take Part in Kinsella Demonstration at High School.

The annual May festival of the Kinscella method or "Lincoln Way" of group piano instruction was held Saturday afternoon at the high school auditorium.

Mary Eby of the school at Normal, Audrey Utterback of the high school, and Bernice Shellenberg, the first three children to go through the four year course now offered in this line played. The high school symphony orchestra directed by Charles B. Righter, jr. and two hundred grade school children directed by Mrs Hazel Nohavec assistant supervisor of music were also on the program.

Suerintendent M. C. Lefler in his short address before the Kinscella method students played said that there are now 1500 pupils enrolled in these courses and that they have the opportunity of completing four years of group instruction after which they would have to employ individual teachers if they wished to advance further. This May festival, he said, will hereafter probably be made an annual promotion exercise from the city school classes.

The orchestra first played "Ballet Egyptian" by Luigini and then the 200 children, accompanied by Mary Eby, sang "Gold and Crimson Tulips" and "Little Miss Daisy," and "Sweet Pea Ladies." The "Concerto in G minor" by Mendelssohn was played by Audrey Utterback, soloist, with Bernice Schellenberg at second piano and with orchestral accompaniment by the high school symphony orchestra.

Nebraska Road Conditions

Following is the weekly road report of the Lincoln Automobile club, issued Saturday afternoon:

All roads leading into Lincoln, were fairly dry Saturday afternoon, and in Lancaster county, all the drags were out. If no further rain, roads should be good today.

Omaha reported roads muddy Saturday morning, but late Saturday afternoon, roads were passable without chains.

D-L-D to Omaha, dry but slightly rough. Was dragged in places Saturday afternoon. No detours, but roads little rough out of Gretna.

D-L-D to Hastings, (resurfacing from end of paving to Lancaster county line not completed but passable, slightly rough.) Three miles this side of Hastings has been graveled with two inch gravel, passable. Hastings west just light rains roads fairly good to McCook and Denver. No detours. Hastings to Grand Island graveled over one half the way, detour, but roads fairly good.

D. H. Being dragged in this county today. Slightly rough to Beatrice, Marysville and Manhattan.

C H. Good to Fremont. Fair to Sioux City, no heavy rain.

S-Y-A slightly rough, but generally dry to Grand Island.

INSPECTS LOCAL LANDING FIELD

Army Airman From Sixteenth Squadron Looks Over Facilities Here.

Captain Boland of the 16th observation squadron arrived at the landing field in south Lincoln at 10 o'clock Saturday morning from Marshall field, Fort Riley, Kas.

He inspected flying facilities to be used by the 16th squadron during their visit to Lincoln May 23 when they will take part in the military exposition to be held at the fair grounds. Lieutenant Raymond Farquhar and Captain Guy King, local R. O. T. C. officers in charge of arrangements for the visiting air men, met Captain Boland.

The squadron will arrive in Lincoln May 22 in order that the men may be present at the reserve officer's banquet o nthe evening preceding the show. They will stay here until Saturday. During the military parade at noon Friday, they are to be in flight formation over the city.

After the inspection, Captain Boland headed his big ship toward Omaha, where he joined the squadron to take part in the dedication of the Fort Crook flying field Saturday afternoon. It was dedicated to the honor of Jarvis Offutt, Omaha aviator killed in action in France during the war.

NO INKLING OF ROAD'S PLANS

State Officials Expect Northwestern to Observe Court's Order.

Case Involves Removal of Sunday Trains Without Permission.

State officials had no direct information Saturday afternoon as to what course the Northwestern railroad will take in regard to the peremptory writ of mandamus issued against it by the Nebraska supreme court, ordering it to continue operating several trains which the road had intended to abandon beginning today.

It was assumed that the management will, of course, comply with the court's instructions to keep the trains in service. The expectation is, however, that a motion will be filed very soon by counsel for the Northwestern to vacate the order. This will precipitate a hearing on the merits of the controversy, and the question of the railway commission's authority over train service within the state of Nebraska will be tried and determined by the state supreme court.

An attempt may be made, however, to remove the case to the federal district court of Nebraska, on the ground that it involves property rights guaranteed by the United States constitution. The further plea will probably be advanced that, under the terms of the Esch-Cummins law passed by congress in 1920, the power of states to regulate transportation service has been taken away and is now solely within the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission.

There is no likelihood that the Northwestern could go into the federal court with a separate suit and secure an injunction to restrain the state officials from interfering with their operation of trains. The various courts are not in the habit of trampling on each other's toes, and since the stat chas made the first move by starting a mandamus suit, the issues will without doubt have to be threshed out in that proceeding.

After getting the writ of mandamus Saturday afternoon, Attorney General Spillman called up Wymer Bressler, counsel for the Northwestern, at Omaha to let him know what had been done. Dressler, however, had already learned of the suit through press dispatches. Later, he called Clerk H. C. Lindsay of the supreme court by long distance telephone, and at his request Lindsay read to him the petition in mandamus and the court's order.

The rit was placed in the hands of Sheriff Hensel of Lancaster county during the afternoon, to be taken to Omaha and served on the railroad officials before Sunday, so that operation of trains might no tbe interrupted.

Among the trains which the Northwestern proposed to discontinue, commencing today, were the Sunday morning passenger from Lincoln to Missouri Valley, Ia., leaving here at 7:30, and the opposite train returning in the afternoon, which arrives in Lincoln at 5:55 p. m.

It also contemplated abandoning two Sunday trains between Scribner and Omaha, and two running between Long Pine and Norfolk.

But he did indicate very clearly that he had no intention whatever acting alone the line which the railway commissioner proposed. He reiterated his purpose to pursue an independent course, supporting such candidates as he may choose to and opposing those that do not suit him. His letter called attention to the fact that he and Coolidge were on opposite sides of the fence on a good many important matters, particularly the question of turning Muscle Shoals over to Henry Ford.

Silent On Bryan Tieup.

Commissioner Randall had emphasized in his letter to Norris was the talk which has been going the rounds in g. o. p. circles that the senator conferred with Governor Bryan when hte latter was in Washington several months ago, and that the two had formed a political partnership for their mutual benefit as candidates for re-election in Nebraska.

He pleaded with Norris to disavow this report and come out for McMullen, the republican nominee for governor, who was represented by Randall as being somewhat solicitous to know what attitude, if any, the senator intended to take in the gubernatorial fight. This was urged upon Mr. Norris as very important from the standpoint of his own interests no less than to help the republican state ticket in general.

In his lengthy letter answering Randall's, the senator failed to say a word on this subject. He did not take the trouble even to deny that he and Bryan were in a tieup. The only authoritative statement on that subject is from the governor, who declared recently that there was no such deal or understanding between himself and Norris. But this is not enough to satisfy some of the republican brethren, and Randall wanted something definite from the senator which would contradict the rumor. The senator's refusal to furnish it has confirmed their suspicion that he and Bryan, if not in actual alliance, are at least friendly to each other.

BIG CROWD AT BEACH OPENING

All Attractions Run to Capacity On First Night at Amusement Park.

Crowds thronged at the informal opening of Capitol Beach Saturday evening. Although the weather was too cool for swimming, nearly all other attractions were run at capacity speed, and the vaudeville attractions went off as planned.

Dancing proved especially popular during the evening. The formal opening of the amusement park takes place Sunday.

INQUEST ORDERED.

CHICAGO, May 10—A coroner's inquest was ordered for Monday to place responsibility for the death of four young municipal employes, killed today when their automobile was struck by a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul flyer at a grade crossing on the northwestern outskirts of the city.

WILL COMMAND ARMY UNITS

Field artillery officers of the United States army who are assigned to Lincoln to take part in the free military exposition May 23 at the fair grounds are Capt. J. D. White, and First Lieutenant P. C. Boylan.

Capt. White (left) will command regular army units of field artillery and cavalry. He was engaged in the majority of the major operations on the western front during the world war. Lieut. Boylan (right) has an enviable military record, having spent nearly two years overseas, and was engaged in several of the larger battles of the late war.

BISHOP BECKMAN TO BE INSTALLED

Ceremonies For New Head of Lincoln Diocese Next Thursday.

Bishop Tihen to Deliver Sermon—Public Reception Friday Evening.

Bishop Francis J. Beckman will be installed at St. Mary's cathedral at 9:30 o'clock Thursday by Archbishop Keane of Dubuque, Ia. Solemn pontifical mass will be celebrated by Bishop Beckman, assisted by the Very Rev. M. A. Shine, arch priest, the Very Rev. J. J. Loughran and the Very Rev. Charles Becker, deacons of honor, the Very Rev. Cashimer Dietrich, arch deacon, the Rev. Thomas Barden, sub-deacon, and the Rev. P. L. O'Loughlin, master of ceremonies. Bishop Tihen of Denver will deliver the sermon.

Following the installation ceremonies, luncheon will be served at the Lincoln hotel, when Bishop Beckman and the visiting priests and bishops will be honored. One hundred fifty will attend.

Friday evening, a public reception will be held at the Orpheum theatre at 8 o'clock.

CHILDREN GIVE MUSIC FESTIVAL

Two Hundred Take Part in Kinsella Demonstration at High School.

The annual May festival of the Kinscella method or "Lincoln Way" of group piano instruction was held Saturday afternoon at the high school auditorium.

Mary Eby of the school at Normal, Audrey Utterback of the high school, and Bernice Shellenberg, the first three children to go through the four year course now offered in this line played. The high school symphony orchestra directed by Charles B. Righter, jr. and two hundred grade school children directed by Mrs. Hazel Nohavec assistant supervisor of music were also on the program.

Suerintendent M. C. Lefler in his short address before the Kinscella method students played said that there are now 1500 pupils enrolled in these courses and that they have the opportunity of completing four years of group instruction after which they would have to employ individual teachers if they wished to advance further. This May festival, he said, will hereafter probably be made an annual promotion exercise from the city school classes.

The orchestra first played "Ballet Egyptian" by Luigini and then the 200 children, accompanied by Mary Eby, sang "Gold and Crimson Tulips" and "Little Miss Daisy," and "Sweet Pea Ladies." The "Concerto in G minor" by Mendelssohn was played by Audrey Utterback, soloist, with Bernice Schellenberg at second piano and with orchestral accompaniment by the high school symphony orchestra.

Nebraska Road Conditions

Following is the weekly road report of the Lincoln Automobile club, issued Saturday afternoon:

All roads leading into Lincoln, were fairly dry Saturday afternoon, and in Lancaster county, all the drags were out. If no further rain, roads should be good today.

Omaha reported roads muddy Saturday morning, but late Saturday afternoon, roads were passable without chains.

D-L-D to Omaha, dry but slightly rough. Was dragged in places Saturday afternoon. No detours, but roads little rough out of Gretna.

D-L-D to Hastings, (resurfacing from end of paving to Lancaster county line not completed but passable, slightly rough.) Three miles this side of Hastings has been graveled with two inch gravel, passable. Hastings west just light rains roads fairly good to McCook and Denver. No detours. Hastings to Grand Island graveled over one half the way, detour, but roads fairly good.

D. H. Being dragged in this county today. Slightly rough to Beatrice, Marysville and Manhattan.

C. H. Good to Fremont. Fair to Sioux City, no heavy rain.

INSPECTS LOCAL LANDING FIELD

Army Airman From Sixteenth Squadron Looks Over Facilities Here.

Captain Boland of the 16th observation squadron arrived at the landing field in south Lincoln at 10 o'clock Saturday morning from Marshall field, Fort Riley, Kas.

He inspected flying facilities to be used by the 16th squadron during their visit to Lincoln May 23 when they will take part in the military exposition to be held at the fair grounds. Lieutenant Raymond Farquhar and Captain Guy King, local R. O. T. C. officers in charge of arrangements for the visiting air men, met Captain Boland.

The squadron will arrive in Lincoln May 22 in order that the men may be present at the reserve officer's banquet o nthe evening preceding the show. They will stay here until Saturday. During the military parade at noon Friday, they are to be in flight formation over the city.

After the inspection, Captain Boland headed his big ship toward Omaha, where he joined the squadron to take part in the dedication of the Fort Crook flying field Saturday afternoon. It was dedicated to the honor of Jarvis Offutt, Omaha aviator killed in action in France during the war.

NO INKLING OF ROAD'S PLANS

State Officials Expect Northwestern to Observe Court's Order.

Case Involves Removal of Sunday Trains Without Permission.

State officials had no direct information Saturday afternoon as to what course the Northwestern railroad will take in regard to the peremptory writ of mandamus issued against it by the Nebraska supreme court, ordering it to continue operating several trains which the road had intended to abandon beginning today.

It was assumed that the management will, of course, comply with the court's instructions to keep the trains in service. The expectation is, however, that a motion will be filed very soon by counsel for the Northwestern to vacate the order. This will precipitate a hearing on the merits of the controversy, and the question of the railway commission's authority over train service within the state of Nebraska will be tried and determined by the state supreme court.

An attempt may be made, however, to remove the case to the federal district court of Nebraska, on the ground that it involves property rights guaranteed by the United States constitution. The further plea will probably be advanced that, under the terms of the Esch-Cummins law passed by congress in 1920, the power of states to regulate transportation service has been taken away and is now solely within the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission.

There is no likelihood that the Northwestern could go into the federal court with a separate suit and secure an injunction to restrain the state officials from interfering with their operation of trains. The various courts are not in the habit of trampling on each other's toes, and since the stat ehas made the first move by starting a mandamus suit, the issues will without doubt have to be threshed out in that proceeding.

After getting the writ of mandamus Saturday afternoon, Attorney General Spillman called up Wymer Bressler, counsel for the Northwestern, at Omaha to let him know what had been done. Dressler, however, had already learned of the suit through press dispatches. Later, he called Clerk H. C. Lindsay of the supreme court by long distance telephone, and at his request Lindsay read to him the petition in mandamus and the court's order.

The rit was placed in the hands of Sheriff Hensel of Lancaster county during the afternoon, to be taken to Omaha and served on the railroad officials before Sunday, so that operation of trains might no tbe interrupted.

Among the trains which the Northwestern proposed to discontinue, commencing today, were the Sunday morning passenger from Lincoln to Missouri Valley, Ia., leaving here at 7:30, and the opposite train returning in the afternoon, which arrives in Lincoln at 5:55 p. m.

It also contemplated abandoning two Sunday trains between Scribner and Omaha, and two running between Long Pine and Norfolk.

naha Central high school, already ven-time winner in Nebraska in- holastic track circles, added an th state cinder championship to string of trophies Saturday af- noon when Coach Schmidt's lads assed the field in the class A petition at the University of Ne- ium.

aded by Martin Thomas, husky o athlete, who piled up ten points a pair of first places, the Purple d closed the meet with a six- lead over Dick Newman's Hast- high athletes, it nearest com- ior.

thenburg found more or less easy ng in group two, Coach Harry andless' handful of Swedes ting their way to the top of the , scoring 39 points, while Wilber, in line, counted 31 points.

llaway and Clay Center closed a tie for leadership in group e. Both teams scored 27 points, Center winning the relay, while away failed to place in the four- event oward Welch of Gothenburg high school gained the honor of es- lishing the lone state record made ng the day. The Gothenburg miler, ning practically a lone race, dis- ed the field and won the mile d in 4 minutes 35 9-10 seconds former state record of 4 minutes -5 seconds was made by Hubert nck of Tobias at the 1922 meet. elch's record performance was arkable in view of the handicaps er which the Gothenburg lad ggled to turn in his new mark. sun refused to shine Saturday the track, while not impossibly , was rather loose, as the time istered in a majority of the events will show. The field of group two two miles was at best a slow lot and Welch was forced to set his pace, finishing two hundred yards of his team-mate, Bryant, who took second place.

New Record in Mile.

Welch Star Performer.

The Gothenburg record-holder is not merely a distance man. He factored materially in winning the group two meet for Gothenburg. Here is a sample of his athletic prowess in the track work

Won half miles in 2 minutes 4 4-5 seconds.

Third in group two shot put with 37 feet 2½ inches.

Second in broad jump with 19 feet.

Set new record in mile run.

After breaking mile record, ran anchor on the winning Gothenburg relay team.

Coach Harry McCandless of the Gothenburg squad announced after the Saturday meet that it was probable Gothenburg citizens would send the boy to the invitation interscholastic meet at Chicago.

The 1924 meet was one of the most closely contested in the history of Nebraska athletics

Central Piles Up Points.

Group three developed into a three-cornered battle between Omaha Central, Beatrice and Hastings. The Gage county track men failed to run to form, while Central, with Thomas, Marrow, Solomon and Jones clipping off the points, maintained a healthy lead gained during the field events.

Coach Dick Newman's Hastings high squad was strong on the cinders, but woefully weak in the field In fact, the Adams county squad tallied but 1-5 point in the weights and jumps.

Grand Island depended too much on Hann and Raish and lacked the necessary "placings" to grab a threatening total.

Omaha Central, in fact, was the only well balanced team in the meet. The Purple has a worthy representative in every event and enough outstanding performers to furnish a comfortable advantage.

Gothenburg And Wilber.

Group two found Gothenburg and Wilber fighting for honors. Wilber had its usual well-balanced aggregation, but Gothenburg had the stars who were bears for work. McCandless' men entered about every event and managed to score in ten of the thirteen events.

Callaway and Clay Center elected to fight it out in group one. Callaway was listed to compete in group two, but a rechecking showed the Custer county athletes entitled to a group one classification. The pair were tied at 27-all when the meet closed.

It was not a new thing for Clay Center and Callaway to tangle for the group one championship. Last year Clay Center lost the relay and Callaway won the group title by a 2-point margin. This year Clay Center won the relay and pulled up into a tie with the Callaway squad.

There were a number of outstanding performers in the Saturday carnival.

Hann Shows Class.

Hann, seventeen-year-old sophomores of Grand Island high, proved to be a dash man of real class. His mark of 54 seconds landed him all-event honors in the quartermile, while he tied with Easter of Cambridge for all-events honors in the furlong sprint.

Solomon of Omaha Central won the all-events title in the 100-yard dash with a mark of 10 7-10 seconds. He also placed second in the 220-yard low hurdles, after winning the third heat in 27 4-10 seconds.

Marrow of Omaha Central was all-events winner in the broad jump, while Thomas won the high hurdle and shot-put all-events.

Peterson was the class of the low-hurdlers, while Smiley's mark of 2 minutes 3 3-5 seconds beat Welch's time in the 880-yard run.

Easter and Hrabak.

Easter of Cambridge might have worried some of the sprint record had he been pushed. He won the sprints in group two with yards to spare. Stejskal of Wilber took the pole vault, while Roland won the javelin throw and tied with Fleming for high jump honors. Jark came from behind in the afternoon and finals

Braves Take Two In Row From Pirates

PITTSBURGH, May 10—The Braves made it two straight over the Pirates here this afternoon, 2 to 0. It was the third defeat in succession for the Buccaneers and checked the winning activities of Ray Kremer, who had four in a row previously. Jess Barnes held the Pirates to seven hits and kept them well scattered Score.

TWIN BILL TODAY.

Howard's Links and the league-leading Tulsa Oilers will collide this afternoon at Landis Field in a double-header, the first of the Western league season. First game at 1:30.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

The weather jinx still was riding the necks of the Links yesterday, forcing Howard Wakefield to declare off the Saturday game at the local ball yard with the Tulsa Oilers. It was the fourth successive postponement in the same number of days, in the Lincoln camp and the rankest break in the luck that any Lincoln club has encountered in many seasons of the national pastime.

After the Friday drizzle, the rain clouds were not on the job Saturday and when the sun made a feeble effort to break through the morning haze, announcement was made at the noon hour that the Links and the Oilers would get together in the afternoon. This plan failed to materialize, however, as an examination of the field at 2:30 disclosed that the base lines were too soggy for a ball game, so Boss Howard reluctantly had to cancel the proposed combat.

Approves Double Bill.

Meantime, Jack Lelivelt, team pilot of the Oilers, was consulted on the topic of a Sunday doubleheader and gave his approval, thus waiving the league rule which would have permitted him to refuse to play a twin bill on the first trip around the circuit. As the Links must board a 6:10 Sunday evening train for Denver, where they are booked to mix with the Bears in a four-game series beginning Monday, the starting time of the curtain-hoisting game today was advanced to 1:30.

Denied the privilege and pleasure of inspecting the pastime for four successive days, the turnout at today's twin bill, in event of favorable weather, is expected to surpass the bumper crow

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Omaha Central high schol, already a seven-time winner in Nebraska interscholastic track circles, added an eighth state cinder championship to its string of trophies Saturday afternoon when Coach Schmidt's lads outclassed the field in the class A competition at the University of Nebstadium.

Headed by Martin Thomas, husky negro athlete, who piled up ten points with a pair of first places, the Purple squad closed the meet with a six-point lead over Dick Newman's Hastings high athletes, it nearest competitior.

Gothenburg found more or less easy sailing in group two, Coach Harry McCandless' handful of Swedes fighting their way to the top of the heap, scoring 39 points, while Wilber, next in line, counted 31 points.

Callaway and Clay Center closed with a tie for leadership in group three. Both teams scored 27 points, Clay Center winning the relay, while Callaway failed to place in the four-man event.

New Record in Mile.

Howard Welch of Gothenburg high high school gained the honor of establishing the lone state record made during the day. The Gothenburg miler, running practically a lone race, distanced the field and won the mile grind in 4 minutes 35 9-10 seconds. The former state record of 4 minutes 37 1-5 seconds was made by Hubert Franck of Tobias at the 1922 meet.

Welch's record performance was remarkable in view of the handicaps under which the Gothenburg lad struggled to turn in his new mark. The sun refused to shine Saturday and the track, while not impossibly slow, was rather loose, as the time registered in a majority of the events will show. The field of group two two milers was at best a slow lot and Welch was forced to set his pace, finishing two hundred yards of his team-mate, Bryant, who took second place.

Welch Star Performer.

The Gothenburg record-holder is not merely a distance man. He factored materially in winning the group two meet for Gothenburg. Here is a sample of his athletic prowess in the track work.

Won half miles in 2 minutes 4 4-5 seconds.

Third in group two shot put with 37 feet 2½ inches.

Second in broad jump with 19 feet. Set new record in mile run.

After breaking mile record, ran anchor on the winning Gothenburg relay team.

Coach Harry McCandless of the Gothenburg squad announced after the Saturday meet that it was probable Gothenburg citizens would send the boy to the invitation interscholastic meet at Chicago.

The 1924 meet was one of the most closely contested in the history of Nebraska athletics.

Central Piles Up Points.

Group three developed into a three-cornered battle between Omaha Central, Beatrice and Hastings. The Gage county track men failed to run to form, while Central, with Thomas, Marrow, Solomon and Jones clipping off the points, maintained a healthy lead gained during the field events.

Coach Dick Newman's Hastings high squad was strong on the cinders, but woefully weak in the field. In fact, the Adams county squad tallied but 1-5 point in the weights and jumps.

Grand Island depended too much on Hann and Raish and lacked the necessary "placings" to grab a threatening total.

Omaha Central, in fact, was the only well balanced team in the meet. The Purple has a worthy representative in every event and enough outstanding performers to furnish a comfortable advantage.

Gothenburg And Wilber.

Group two found Gothenburg and Wilber fighting for honors. Wilber had its usual well-balanced aggregation, but Gothenburg had the stars who were bears for work. McCandless' men entered about every event and managed to score in ten of the thirteen events.

Callaway and Clay Couter elected to fight it out in group one. Callaway was listed to compete in group two, but a rechecking showed the Custer county athletes entitled to a group one classification. The pair were tied at 27-all when the meet closed.

It was not a new thing for Clay Center and Callaway to tangle for the group one championship. Last year Clay Center lost the relay and Callaway won the group title by a 2-point margin. This year Clay Center won the relay and pulled up into a tie with the Callaway squad.

There were a number of outstanding performers in the Saturday carnival.

Hann Shows Class.

Hann, seventeen-year-old sophomores of Grand Island high, proved to be a dash man of real class. His mark of 54 seconds landed him all-event honors in the quartermile, while he tied with Easter of Cambridge for all-events honors in the furiong sprint.

Solomon of Omaha Central won the all-events title in the 100-yard dash with a mark of 10 7-10 seconds. He also placed second in the 220-yard low hurdles, after winning the third heat in 27 4-10 seconds.

Marrow of Omaha Central was all-events winner in the broad jump, while Thomas won the high hurdle and shot-put all-events.

Peterson was the class of the low-hurdlers, while Smiley's mark of 2 minutes 3 3-5 seconds beat Welch's time in the 880-yard run.

Easter and Hrabak.

Easter of Cambridge might have worried some of the sprint record had he been pushed. He won the sprints in group two with yards to spare. Stejskal of Wilber took the pole vault, while Roland won the javelin throw and tied with Fleming for high jump honors. Jark came from behind in the afternoon and finals

TWIN BILL TODAY.

Howard's Links and the league-leading Tulsa Oilers will collide this afternoon at Landis Field in a doubleheader, the first of the Western league season. First game at 1:30.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

The weather jinx still was riding the necks of the Links yesterday, forcing Howard Wakefield to declare off the Saturday game at the local ball yard with the Tulsa Oilers. It was the fourth successive postponement in the same number of days in the Lincoln camp and the rankest break in the luck that any Lincoln club has encountered in many seasons of the national pastime.

After the Friday drizzle, the rain clouds were not on the job Saturday and when the sun made a feeble effort to break through the morning haze, announcement was made at the noon hour that the Links and the Oilers would get together in the afternoon. This plan failed to materialize, however, as an examination of the field at 2:30 disclosed that the base lines were too soggy for a ball game, so Boss Howard reluctantly had to cancel the proposed combat.

Approves Double Bill.

Meantime, Jack

ON RETURN TRIP

Earl R. West and Fred M. Moore, who were in Lincoln April 24, in their Jewett six on a non-stop engine trip from San Francisco to New York, were in Lincoln again Tuesday on their return trip. The engine has not stopped since it left San Francisco on its first transcontinental tour and if everything runs well, it will not stop again until it reaches the Pacific cvoast.

Make a Big Catch

One of the largest early season catches from Nebraska streams was brought out last week by G. E. Michener and Claude Kapple, employes of the Burlington railroad at Lincoln. Twenty-two are in the string here displayed. The haul was made at Erickson.

MILADY FAVORS A CLOSED CAR

Sun Or Rain, Its Just the Same—She Comes and Goes as She Pleases.

"Out of my house, into the closed motor, away I whiz and arrive at the party as trim and neat as when I left the mirror. Give me the closed car every time."

That is the attitude of every woman, if you agree with the opinion of C. A. Lord of Lord Auto company, Hudson-Essex distributor. According to the Hudson-Essex man, she thinks further just about as follows:

"Suppose I long for a ride through the country to breathe fresh air and feel the balmy wind. Do I need an open car? I do not. In two minutes can put down all the windows and even open the windshield, if I prefer, and get all the breeze

"One time I was out on just such a spin. It was an early spring day and the freshness of everything had a way of vanquishing the petty troubles and cares. Without warning a dark cloud appeared, a few drops of rain fell and then a regular cloudburst. Of course you think my day was ruined. Well, my dear, when those first few drops fell I stopped the car, began putting up windows, and will you believe that I was tucked safely in my closed car and continuing with my drive before that cloudburst came?

"Now can't you just imagine what a fix I would have been in with an open car? Getting out all those curtains, fitting them up — undoubtedly I'd have been drenched. And do you know that in the open car it was nothing unusual for me to return from a ride with my face sunburned and my nose horribly red, which no powder ever hides.

"A great many open-air fans are under the impression that to get fresh air in a closed car you have to sit in a draft. That's perfectly ridiculous. All do is to open them on one side and close them on the other. Common sense will tell you there couldn't be a draft then. When I desire to be particularly neat in my appearance I always open the windows on the right, and the breeze never touches my hair.

"Here is another point strongly in favor of the enclosed car, I think. Mothers who drive their own cars need never fear putting the children in the back seat, for the kiddies simply cannot fall out with the rear windows closed. The purpase of a closed car has been one of the greatest pleasures and comforts in my life."

When spark plugs habitually become fouled with oil and soot, it is a good plan to investigate and see whether they may not be projecting too far into the combustion chamber.

To bend pipes by hand without special tools, fill the pipe with dry sand, plug or cap the ends to retain the filling and heat the pipe at the point where it is to be bent.

Mack Team Riding On Slippery Slide

PHILADELPHIA, May 10—The Indians aided the Athletics in their ingrained habit of losing when they sent the Macks down to their tenth straight defeat, 6 to 0, today. Eddie Rommel, ace of Mack's staff, was unable to break the string of reverses, though he gave but two hits in the first six innings. He faltered in the seventh and in the eighth was found for five runs as the result of five hits. One of them was George Burn's homer with Summa on base. The score:

Cleveland.

Tells Advantages of Latest Tire-type in Operation of Cars.

So many questions are being asked by car owners concerning balloon cords, there is so much uncertainty in the kind of responses they get, that experts of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., have issue da guide book which could well be termed the balloon cord catechism. It sets forth clearly the proper answers to most of the questions which car owners are asking.

The Goodrich catechism on the balloon cord includes the following:

Do balloon tires help riding qualities? Yes. Because of their larger cross section and low air pressure, balloon tires absorb irregularities in the road from which high-pressure tires have to rebound. The result is that in most cases roughness and projections in the road are obliterated as far as the occupants of balloon tired cars are concerned.

Do balloon tires reduce repair bills for the maintenance of the car? Yes, due to the greater cushioning effect of balloon tires there is less vibration of the car which eliminates to a large extent the frequent adjustment and tightening of parts.

Do they make the car easier or harder to stop? Cars equipped with balloon tires are much easier to stop because of their larger area of road contact.

What about skidding? Anti-skid results are excellent due to the larger area of contact with the road.

Do balloon tires lower the road clearance of the car? It all depends upon the size of the tire replacing your present eqquipment.

Do balloon tires affect the speed of the car? Balloon tires make it possible to travel over rough, winding and otherwise troublesome roads without slowing down below normal speed.

Do they change the gear ratio of the car? No.

What air pressure should be used? Inflation pressures run from 20 to 40 pounds, depending upon the load to be carried.

Will balloon tires interfere with power? Balloon tires used in accordance with the load and inflation schedule do not detract from the power of the car.

Will balloon tires consume more gasoline? No.

Are snubbers and shock absorbers required? Shock absorbers or snubbers are desirable on most cars but not essential.

What mileage will balloon tires give? All evidence points to balloon tires giving equal or better mileage than high pressure tires.

Do balloon tires make steering harder? Not when the car is in motion, but when standing still the turning effort required is greater, but not to a serious extent.

Dodge Cars Used By Life Saver Company

Life Savers, Inc., of Rochester, N. Y., has purchased sixty Dodge Brothers business car chassis on which they have mounted special bodies made to represent a package of "Life Savers," the candy mint.

The body is made of aluminum, and with its attractive design and signs makes a distinctive means of advertising.

Never carry a spare tire on the car for more than 1500 miles. After this time place it on one of the wheels and use an older tire as a spare.

Watch Battery In Summer Motoring Warns An Expert

H. E. Noll of Noll Electric Co., dealers in Prest-o-Lite batteries gives the following warning to motor car owners who want the best service out of their cars.

Astorage battery is an electrochemical apparatus and therefore sensitive to changing conditions. Many a storage battery goes dead from overheating in hot weather. To preserve the life of a battery the temperature should never exceed 110 degrees.

"Th working and wearing parts of a battery are away from sight and for this reason an injury done to your battery will not be discovered until it fails to operate, perhaps weeks later. You may also overheat and overcharge your battery because the generator regulation is out of adjustment and permits the generator to charge at an abnormally high rate Here are a few hints that will enable you to keep your battery in good condition.

"1. Look at your battery once or twice a week. Make sure it has enough water. Keep the water above the separators in Prest-o-Lite batteries, others higher if instructed by the maker.

"2. Watch your ammeter to see that the generator charging rate is not higher than recommended for your car.

"3. If in doubt whether your battery is overcharging, turn on all the lights while driving. This will use up the current generated during about twenty minutes of driving. The same result may be obtained by cranking the engine with the ignition shut off for two or three minutes.

"4. Have your battery and generator examined by an expert. Although we sell Prest-o-Lite batteries we inspect all kinds. It is a part of the 'friendly service' in Prest-o-Lite battery shops."

AUTO NOTES.

There are 10 rules for saving gasoline, and obedience to all of them ought to result in cutting gasoline bills at least one-quarter. These rules are:

Keep tires well inflated.

See that brakes do not drag.

See that the battery is well charged.

Keep engine valves ground to seat well.

Keep spark plugs clean and free from carbon.

Keep engine cylinders clean and free from carbon.

Adjust the spark-plug points to 025 of an inch apart.

Be sure connecting-rod bearings are not too tight and are well lubricated.

Coast whenever possible Keep foot off the accelerator as much as possible.

Adjust the carburetor to a mixture in the ratio of 15 parts of air by weight to one part of gasoline.

Mack Team Riding On Slippery Slide

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—The Indains aided the Athletics in their ingrained habit of losing when they sent the Macks down to their tenth straight defeat, 6 to 0, today. Eddie Rommel, ace of Mack's staff, was unable to break the string of reverses, though he gave but two hits in the first six innings. He faltered in the seventh and in the eighth was found for five runs as the result of five hits. One of them was George Burn's homer with Summa on base. The score:

Cleveland.

Earl R. West and Fred M. Moore, who were in Lincoln April 24, in their Jewett six on a non-stop engine trip from San Francisco to New York, were in Lincoln again Tuesday on their return trip. The engine has not stopped since it left San Francisco on its first transcontinental tour and if everything runs well, it will not stop again until it reaches the Pacific cvoast.

Make a Big Catch

One of the largest early season catches from Nebraska streams was brought out last week by G. E. Michener and Claude Kapple, employes of the Burlington railroad at Lincoln. Twenty-two are in the string here displayed. The haul was made at Erickson.

MILADY FAVORS A CLOSED CAR

Sun Or Rain, Its Just the Same—She Comes and Goes as She Pleases.

"Out of my house, into the closed motor, away I whiz and arrive at the party as trim and neat as when I left the mirror. Give me the closed car every time."

That is the attitude of every woman, if you agree with the opinion of C. A. Lord of Lord Auto company, Hudson-Essex distributor. According to the Hudson-Essex man, she thinks further just about as follows:

"Suppose I long for a ride through the country to breathe fresh air and feel the balmy wind. Do I need an open car? I do not. In two minutes can put down all the windows and even open the windshield, if I prefer, and get all the breeze.

"One time I was out on just such a spin. It was an early spring day and the freshness of everything had a way of vanquishing the petty troubles and cares. Without warning a dark cloud appeared, a few drops of rain fell and then a regular cloudburst. Of course you think my day was ruined. Well, my dear, when those first few drops fell I stopped the car, began putting up windows, and will you believe that I was tucked safely in my closed car and continuing with my drive before that cloudburst came?

"Now can't you just imagine what a fix I would have been in with an open car? Getting out all those curtains, fitting them up — undoubtedly I'd have been drenched. And do you know that in the open car it was nothing unusual for me to return from a ride with my face sunburned and my nose horribly red, which no powder ever hides.

"A great many open-air fans are under the impression that to get fresh air in a closed car you have to sit in a draft. That's perfectly ridiculous. All do is to open them on one side and close them on the other. Common sense will tell you there couldn't be a draft then. When I desire to be particularly neat in my appearance I always open the windows on the right, and the breeze never touches my hair.

"Here is another point strongly in favor of the enclosed car, I think. Mothers who drive their own cars need never fear putting the children in the back seat, for the kiddies simply cannot fall out with the rear windows closed. The purpase of a closed car has been one of the greatest pleasures and comforts in my life."

When spark plugs habitually become fouled with oil and soot, it is a good plan to investigate and see whether they may not be projecting too far into the combustion chamber.

To bend pipes by hand without special tools, fill the pipe with dry sand, plug or cap the ends to retain the filling and heat the pipe at the point where it is to be bent.

Watch Battery In Summer Motoring Warns An Expert

H. E. Noll of Noll Electric Co., dealers in Prest-o-Lite batteries gives the following warning to motor car owners who want the best service out of their cars.

Astorage battery is an electro-chemical apparatus and therefore sensitive to changing conditions. Many a storage battery goes dead from overheating in hot weather. To preserve the life of a battery the temperature should never exceed 110 degrees.

"Th working and wearing parts of a battery are away from sight and for this reason an injury done to your battery will not be discovered until it fails to operate, perhaps weeks later. You may also overheat and overcharge your battery because the generator regulation is out of adjustment and permits the generator to charge at an abnormally high rate. Here are a few hints that will enable you to keep your battery in good condition.

"1. Look at your battery once or twice a week. Make sure it has enough water. Keep the water above the separators in Prest-o-Lite batteries, others higher if instructed by the maker.

"2. Watch your ammeter to see that the generator charging rate is not higher than recommended for your car.

"3. If in doubt whether your battery is overcharging, turn on all the lights while driving. This will use up the current generated during about twenty minutes of driving. The same result may be obtained by cranking the engine with the ignition shut off for two or three minutes.

"4. Have your battery and generator examined by an expert. Although we sell Prest-o-Lite batteries we inspect all kinds. It is a part of the 'friendly service' in Prest-o-Lite battery shops."

AUTO NOTES.

There are 10 rules for saving gasoline, and obedience to all of them ought to result in cutting gasoline bills at least one-quarter. These rules are:

Keep tires well inflated.

See that brakes do not drag.

See that the battery is well charged.

Keep engine valves ground to seat well.

Keep spark plugs clean and free from carbon.

Keep engine cylinders clean and free from carbon.

Adjust the spark-plug points to .025 of an inch apart.

Be sure connecting-rod bearings are not too tight and are well lubricated.

Coast whenever possible. Keep foot off the accelerator as much as possible.

Tells Advantages of Latest Tire-type in Operation of Cars.

So many questions are being asked by car owners concerning balloon cords, there is so much uncertainty in the kind of responses they get, that experts of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., have issue da guide book which could well be termed the balloon cord catechism. It sets forth clearly the proper answers to most of the questions which car owners are asking.

The Goodrich catechism on the balloon cord includes the following:

Do balloon tires help riding qualities? Yes. Because of their larger cross section and low air pressure, balloon tires absorb irregularities in the road from which high-pressure tires have to rebound. The result is that in most cases roughness and projections in the road are obliterated as far as the occupants of balloon tired cars are concerned.

Do balloon tires reduce repair bills for the maintenance of the car? Yes, due to the greater cushioning effect of balloon tires there is less vibration of the car which eliminates to a large extent the frequent adjustment and tightening of parts.

Do they make the car easier or harder to stop? Cars equipped with balloon tires are much easier to stop because of their larger area of road contact.

What about skidding? Anti-skid results are excellent due to the larger area of contact with the road.

Do balloon tires lower the road clearance of the car? It all depends upon the size of the tire replacing your present eqquipment.

Do balloon tires affect the speed of the car? Balloon tires make it possible to travel over rough, winding and otherwise troublesome roads without slowing down below normal speed.

Do they change the gear ratio of the car? No.

What air pressure should be used? Inflation pressures run from 20 to 40 pounds, depending upon the load to be carried.

Will balloon tires interfere with power? Balloon tires used in accordance with the load and inflation schedule do not detract from the power of the car.

Will balloon tires consume more gasoline? No.

Are snubbers and shock absorbers required? Shock absorbers or snubbers are desirable on most cars but not essential.

What mileage will balloon tires give? All evidence points to balloon tires giving equal or better mileage than high pressure tires.

Do balloon tires make steering harder? Not when the car is in motion, but when standing still the turning effort required is greater, but not to a serious extent.

STUDEBAKER MAIL VETERAN OF WEST

Light-Six Which Holds the Records Wins Place In "Hall of Fame."

Marks Made Three Years Ago Still Stand Good Today.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., May 10—The famous Studebaker light-six, which holds Pacific coast records in fast mail carrying service, arrived here today and was placed in honorable retirement.

The veteran machine, still full of pep and power despite its gruelling service was moved into a prominent place in the Studebaker museum—where many celebrated cars and vehicles with romantic history are viewed each year bythousands of visitors.

Holds Many Road Records.

Driven by Hart L. Weaver and James F. Gurley, this car made road records between Los Angeles and San Francisco more than three years ago that have stood unequaled by the officially-observed performance of any other car.

February 2, 1921, it established a new round-trip record between San Francisco an dLos Angeles, a distance of 864.8 miles, in the sensational time of 21 hours and 23 minutes. On the same trip it lowered the coast route record between these two cities by 2 hours, 35 minutes and 20 seconds, the time being 10 hours, 12 minutes and 30 seconds for the 453.7 miles.

Three weeks later this remarkable car smashed the valley route record between the Main post office at Los Angeles and Ferry post office, San Francisco, runing the distance of 411.1 miles in 9 hours, 15 minutes and 50 seconds. It is believed that this time between these two points over this route will stand forever.

A month after these phenomenal runs, this Light-Six covered the 425 miles of narrow desert trail from Los Angeles to Phoenix in 13 hours, 15 minutes, cutting off two hours and 28 minutes from the best previous automobile record. The railroad time is 1 hour 1 minutes slower than the record established by this light-six.

Beware The Auto "Gyp."

There are many things to look out for when buying a used car. The following are a few important points to inspect:

Check timing of motor.

Be sure the car does not smoke unduly, as this indicates worn cylinders.

Insist that a thorough trial may be made on the road, especially a few hills to climb.

Write to the factory or ask an insurance broker for the age of the car from the engine and serial numbers.

Inspect minor details for defects which are covered up in various ingenious ways. An engine knock is called a "valve tap." Rattles are suppressed by running the car on very soft tires. Engine bearing knocks are fixed by using a chemical that turns the oil to the consistency of a mucilage. Sawdust or powdered cork is used to quiet a defective transmission or rear end. A nearly dead storage battery is brought back to brief life by an injection of acid. A new body may be mounted on an ancient chassis which is nearly done with this life. Cheap repaint jobs are used to slick up the car, but the first rain melts off the paint.

Latest Overland Blue Bird Said To Be Lowest Priced Model With Balloon Tires

With public interest in balloon tires at its height Willys-Overland announces its newest model, the Overland Blue Bird, the lowest-priced motor car with genuine balloon tires furnished as standard equipment.

Those who have seen the car at its preliminary showings at the factory agree that the Blue Bird is the most striking design that has ever been produced by this organization.

The combination of a long, roomy body done in rich peacock blue, set off by black fenders and running gear, smartened by nickeled radiator, windshield stanchions and outside door handles; with upholstery of a bluish shade to match the body, and a top of similar hue, creates an appearance of spirit and sparkle that is entirely in keeping with its happy choice of trade name.

Beauty, Economy, Utility.

This new creation is another instance of Willys-Overland's endeavor to work steadfastly toward the end that beauty utility and economy can be assembled in a single unit.

It is one more illustration of fine, well-bred coloring, which combines attractiveness with utility. The hue used on the new Blue Bird will stand up under the most exacting weather conditions and cannot be influenced by the summer sun or by winter's dampness and frosts.

A new standard in riding qualities has also been reached by the coupling of the patented triplex spring suspension with balloon tires. The wheelbase of the new car is 106 inches, giving it a spring base of 136 inches. The weight of each Overland spring is about twenty pounds. The material is chrome vanadium steel, carefully treated, having an elastic limit of 190,000 pounds. The springs are so designed and assembled in the chassis that all road shocks are absorbed with a minimum distortion of chassis.

Addition of genuine Fisk 31x5.25 balloon tires, which further cushion the road, positively guarantees utmost physical relaxation to the occupants of the car even over the roughest highways.

The cylinder finish of this rugged motor is remarkably thorough, the concluding operation being a lapping process that removes all roughness following the reaming operations. The engine base has a double bottom which increases its strength and rigidity and provides for the correct oil supply to all connecting rods under all road and grade conditions. Valves are made of specially selected material.

Clutch is of the single-plate disc type, smooth in operation, and completely encased, providing protection from dirt and grit.

Front axle is tested to an elastic limit of 75,000 to 90,000 pounds, with large king bolt bearings and wheel spindles. Cross rod link is of unusually heavy steel.

Rear axle construction is substantial and well asembled, with strong housing, 1⅛ inch axle shafts of Molybdenum steel, Timken bearings on differential case and New Departure bearings in the center.

These important mechanical specifications, with its other up-to-date features, provide the new Blue Bird with the qualifications that make it a thing of animation, speed and comfort, which should really win its way into the hearts of thousands of owners throughout the country.

Equipped with natural finish wood wheels, the Blue Bird will sell for $725 f. o. b. Toledo. Disc wheels are optional, a complete set of five being furnished at an extra cost of $25.

Importance of Small Parts.

Every time a nut, bolt, washer, cotter-pin, or other part of an automobile is found on the highway it should be a reminder to owners to go over their cars to see that all parts are intact. These small parts indicate that there are many careless motorists, who do not tighten body nuts or see that cotter-pins are in place They, therefore, are constantly losing vitally important pieces of machinery.

A Suggestion.

It is often difficult to start by hand the small screws such as are used in the magneto, speedometer, etc. An easy way around this difficulty is to hold the screws between the legs of a pair of calipers, a drawing compass, or even in the slot of an ordinary steel pen. The screw is then driven home by the small screwdriver. The same method may be used in replacing small nuts located inaccessibly.

NEW RULES FOR CARE OF TIRES

Entrance of Balloon Types Brings Entirely New Regulations.

Three Distinct Kinds of Tires Placed On The Market Today.

With the coming of balloon tires, an avalanche of new tire lore has been let loose on the car owner. If he equips his car with balloon or balloon-type tires, he finds he must unlearn most of the rules that prevailed during the undisputed reign of the regulation high pressure tires, and learns an entirely new set of regulations.

The task is not a formidable one—once installed and properly adjusted, the new styles require no more attention than high pressure tires. But it is very essential that the proper start be made, and that wheels, rims, inflation and all the other subjects of importance be correctly adjusted at the beginning. If all the preliminaries are carefully worked out, the car owner will be able to enjoy his new tires to the full, and get a lot of pleasure out of telling his friends about the unapproachable delight of riding on balloons.

Three Types of Tires.

The first thing to understand clearly is that there are three distinct types of tire on the market today: first, the regulation high pressure tire; second, the balloon-type tire; and, third, the semi-balloon tire. The regulation high pressure tire is, of course a simple matter—this type of tire has been in use by all motorists for so long a period that there are no longer any mysteries about it.

But the balloon tire and the balloon-type tires are new. The balloon tire is found chiefly on new cars. It requires a wheel of smaller diameter than that used on all cars manufactured in recent years, and most car owners will not go to the trouble of putting on new wheels. The balloon-type is made for the express purpose of being used on present wheels, and for that reason will be a big seller in the balloon field for some years.

Practically all of the tire dealers of the country are in a position by now to advise motorists on the general facts about installing either balloons or balloon-types. But if a car owner has some particularly knotty problems requiring sound technical advice on all the details that are involved in installing either of the two new styles of tire equipment, the United States Tire company has announced a willingness to answer all queries through its technical service department, 1790 Broadway New York.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Out of the Mud!

When stuck in a mudhole or on a sandy stretch, do not speed up the engine and "jump" the clutch. This will only cause the wheel to spin and the car to sink deeper. Open the throttle only far enough to keep the engine from stalling and engage the clutch slowly. The chances are that this method will procure traction.

Value of Thorough Lubrication.

Every bearing which does not receive the proper amount of lubricant will soon begin to wear and may cause a breakdown at some very inopportune time or place. Bearings which are not provided with some kind of special oiling device should be lubricated. The few hours' time spent in going over the car and checking very carefully all the lubricated parts, getting at every out-of-the-way bearing surface or brake connection, steering gear connection, spring shackle bolts, spark and throttle levers, and replacing dry grease cups or oiling devices which are missing, will much more than repay in pleasure and freedom from trouble, and will also make the car last much longer.

Longer Life to The Tire.

Cut off loose sections at once when the tread of a tire breaks and begins to flap. The centrifugal force exerted on the flapping piece of rubber tread, because of the motion of the wheel, will simply tend to tear off more of it. In fact, a very large portion of the tread may come off in a very short distance, thus exposing a large part of the casing and increasing the possibility of punctures.

Keep Wheels True.

Wheel misalignment produces a tire abuse that has grown more rapidly probably than any other. Rims occasionally are responsible for a wobble which can be misconstrued as misalignment. The wheel itself can be in perfect alignment and yet the rim may not fit snugly on the wheel and the tire therefore wobbles. Frames become bent and sprung so that the axles do not run parallel. This springing or bending may not even be noticeable, but it is none the less destructive. Rear as well as front bearings may become loosened and allow the wheels to spread and drag.

It is better to remove a spark plug with a socket wrench that just fits around the plug and protects the core from damage, than to use a monkey wrench and ruin the plug.

The Better Way To Buy a Motor Car

Most persons dislike mechanical details. But how a motor car is engineered and built, and what it is built of, are both extremely important.

That is why automobile buyers today are discounting glib selling talk and demanding assurance that a car will stand up and give low-cost service.

There is only one way you can get such assurance. You must see for yourself how it is engineered and built—and of what it is built.

The Hupmobile Parts Display gives you the Hupmobile story at a glance. It is interesting—and enlightening. You should by all means see it. Come in soon.

Hupmobile

Brake and clutch pedals are good examples of the safety built into the Hupmobile. They are drop-forged, double heat-treated steel, as are also the hand-brake and gear-shift levers, brake-rod clevises and toggles—much stronger and safer than the less costly low carbon steel or malleable castings which are often used at these points. For example, in a recent test, a cast brake pedal broke under 340 pounds pressure, while it required 570 pounds to break a Hupmobile drop-forged pedal.

STUDEBAKER MAIL VETERAN OF WEST

Light-Six Which Holds the Records Wins Place In "Hall of Fame."

Marks Made Three Years Ago Still Stand Good Today.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., May 10—The famous Studebaker light-six, which holds Pacific coast records in fast mail carrying service, arrived here today and was placed in honorable retirement.

The veteran machine, still full of pep and power despite its gruelling service was moved into a prominent place in the Studebaker museum—where many celebrated cars and vehicles with romantic history are viewed each year bythousands of visitors.

Holds Many Road Records.

Driven by Hart L. Weaver and James F. Gurley, this car made road records between Los Angeles and San Francisco more than three years ago that have stood unequaled by the officially-observed performance of any other car.

February 2, 1921, it established a new round-trip record between San Francisco an dLos Angeles, a distance of 864.8 miles, in the sensational time of 21 hours and 23 minutes. On the same trip it lowered the coast route record between these two cities by 2 hours, 35 minutes and 20 seconds, the time being 10 hours, 12 minutes and 30 seconds for the 453.7 miles.

Three weeks later this remarkable car smashed the valley route record between the Main post office at Los Angeles and Ferry post office, San Francisco, runing the distance of 411.1 miles in 9 hours, 15 minutes and 50 seconds. It is believed that this time between these two points over this route will stand forever.

A month after these phenomenal runs, this Light-Six covered the 425 miles of narrow desert trail from Los Angeles to Phoenix in 13 hours, 16 minutes, cutting off two hours and 28 minutes from the best previous automobile record. The railroad time is 1 hour 4 minutes slower than the record established by this light-six.

Beware The Auto "Gyp."

There are many things to look out for when buying a used car. The following are a few important points to inspect:

Check timing of motor.

Be sure the car does not smoke unduly, as this indicates worn cylinders.

Insist that a thorough trial may be made on the road, especially a few hills to climb.

Write to the factory or ask an insurance broker for the age of the car from the engine and serial numbers.

Inspect minor details for defects which are covered up in various ingenious ways. An engine knock is called a "valve tap." Rattles are suppressed by running the car on very soft tires. Engine bearing knocks are fixed by using a chemical that turns the oil to the consistency of a mucilage. Sawdust or powdered cork is used to quiet a defective transmission or rear end. A nearly dead storage battery is brought back to brief life by an injection of acid. A new body may be mounted on an ancient chassis which is nearly done with this life. Cheap repaint jobs are used to slick up the car, but the first rain melts off the paint.

With public interest in balloon tires at its height Willys-Overland announces its newest model, the Overland Blue Bird, the lowest-priced motor car with genuine balloon tires furnished as standard equipment.

Those who have seen the car at its preliminary showings at the factory agree that the Blue Bird is the most striking design that has ever been produced by this organization.

The combination of a long, roomy body done in rich peacock blue, set off by black fenders and running gear, smartened by nickeled radiator, windshield stanchions and outside door handles; with upholstery of a bluish shade to match the body, and a top of similar hue, creates an appearance of spirit and sparkle that is entirely in keeping with its happy choice of trade name.

Beauty, Economy, Utility.

This new creation is another instance of Willys-Overland's endeavor to work steadfastly toward the end that beauty utility and economy can be assembled in a single unit.

It is one more illustration of fine, well-bred coloring, which combines attractiveness with utility. The hue used on the new Blue Bird will stand up under the most exacting weather conditions and cannot be influenced by the summer sun or by winter's dampness and frosts.

A new standard in riding qualities has also been reached by the coupling of the patented triplex spring suspension with balloon tires. The wheelbase of the new car is 106 inches, giving it a spring base of 136 inches. The weight of each Overland spring is about twenty pounds. The material is chrome vanadium steel, carefully treated, having an elastic limit of 190,000 pounds. The springs are so designed and assembled in the chassis that all road shocks are absorbed with a minimum distortion of chassis.

Addition of genuine Fisk 31x5.25 balloon tires, which further cushion the road, positively guarantees utmost physical relaxation to the occupants of the car even over the roughest highways.

Accomplishes Spectacular Feats.

The power plant is the same that has made the entire nation gasp by its stamina and power in difficult road and mountain tests in all corners of the country. Its repeated ascents of Motorcycle hill in Arizona, its scaling of the meteor-glazed sides of Stone Mountain near Atlanta, Ga., are but two high points of a series of spectacular feats that have thrilled motoring circles during the past ten months.

The cylinder finish of this rugged motor is remarkably thorough, the concluding operation being a lapping process that removes all roughness following the reaming operations. The engine base has a double bottom which increases its strength and rigidity and provides for the correct oil supply to all connecting rods under all road and grade conditions. Valves are made of specially selected material.

Clutch is of the single-plate disc type, smooth in operation, and completely encased, providing protection from dirt and grit.

Front axle is tested to an elastic limit of 75,000 to 90,000 pounds, with large king bolt bearings and wheel spindles. Cross rod link is of unusually heavy steel.

Rear axle construction is substantial and well asembled, with strong housing, 1½ inch axle shafts of Molybdenum steel, Timken bearings on differential case and New Departure bearings in the center.

These important mechanical specifications, with its other up-to-date features, provide the new Blue Bird with the qualifications that make it a thing of animation, speed and comfort, which should really win its way into the hearts of thousands of owners throughout the country.

Equipped with natural finish wood wheels, the Blue Bird will sell for $725 f. o. b. Toledo. Disc wheels are optional, a complete set of five being furnished at an extra cost of $25.

Importance of Small Parts.

Every time a nut, bolt, washer, cotter-pin, or other part of an automobile is found on the highway it should be a reminder to owners to go over their cars to see that al parts are intact. These small parts indicate that there are many careless motorists, who do not tighten body nuts or see that cotter-pins are in place They, therefore, are constantly losing vitally important pieces of machinery.

A Suggestion.

It is often difficult to start by hand the small screws such as are used in the magneto, speedometer, etc. An easy way around this difficulty is to hold the screws between the legs of a pair of calipers, a drawing compass, or even in the slot of an ordinary steel pen. The screw is then driven home by the small screwdriver. The same method may be used in replacing small nuts located inaccessibly.

NEW RULES FOR CARE OF TIRES

Entrance of Balloon Types Brings Entirely New Regulations.

Three Distinct Kinds of Tires Placed On The Market Today.

With the coming of balloon tires, an avalanche of new tire lore has been let loose on the car owner. If he equips his car with balloon or balloon-type tires, he finds he must unlearn most of the rules that prevailed during the undisputed reign of the regulation high pressure tires, and learns an entirely new set of regulations.

The task is not a formidable one—once installed and properly adjusted, the new styles require no more attention than high pressure tires. But it is very essential that the proper start be made, and that wheels, rims, inflation and all the other subjects of importance be correctly adjusted at the beginning. If all the preliminaries are carefully worked out, the car owner will be able to enjoy his new tires to the full, and get a lot of pleasure out of telling his friends about the unapproachable delight of riding on balloons.

Three Types of Tires.

The first thing to understand clearly is that there are three distinct types of tire on the market today: first, the regulation ihigh pressure tire; second, the balloon pressure tire; and, third, the balloon-type tire. The regulation high pressure tire is, of course a simple matter—this type of tire has been in use by all motorists for so long a period that there are no longer any mysteries about it.

But the balloon tire and the balloon-type tires are new. The balloon tire is found chiefly on new cars. It requires a wheel of smaller diameter than that used on all cars manufactured in recent years, and most car owners will not go to the trouble of putting on new wheels. The balloon-type is made for the express purpose of being used on present wheels, and for that reason will be a big seller in the balloon field for some years.

Practically all of the tire dealers of the country are in a position by now to advise motorists on the general facts about installing either balloons or balloon-types. But if a car owner has some particularly knotty problems requiring sound technical advice on all the details that are involved in installing either of the two new styles of tire equipment, the United States Tire company has announced a willingness to answer all queries through its technical service department, 1790 Broadway New York.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Out of the Mud!

When stuck in a mudhole or on a sandy stretch, do not speed up the engine and "jump" the clutch. This will only cause the wheel to spin and the car to sink deeper. Open the throttle only far enough to keep the engine from stalling and engage the clutch slowly. The chances are that this method will procure traction.

Value of Thorough Lubrication.

Every bearing which does not receive the proper amount of lubricant will soon begin to wear and may cause a breakdown at some very inopportune time or place. Bearings which are not provided with some kind of special oiling device should be lubricated. The few hours' time spent in going over the car and checking very carefully all the lubricated parts, getting at every out-of-the-way bearing surface or brake connection, steering gear connection, spring shackle bolts, spark and throttle levers, and replacing any grease cups or oiling devices which are missing, will much more than repay in pleasure and freedom from trouble, and will also make the car last much longer.

Longer Life to The Tire.

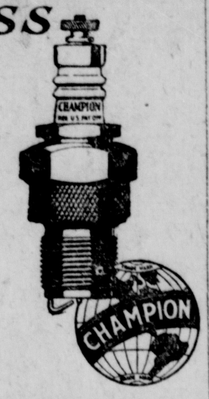
Cut off loose sections at once when the tread of a tire breaks and begins to flap. The centrifugal force exerted on the flapping piece of rubber tread, because of the motion of the wheel, will simply tend to tear off more of it. In fact, a very large portion of the tread may come off in a very short distance, thus exposing a large part of the casing and increasing the possibility of punctures.

Keep Wheels True.

Wheel misalignment produces a tire abuse that has grown more rapidly probably than any other. Rims occasionally are responsible for a wobble which can be misconstrued as misalignment. The wheel itself can be in perfect alignment and yet the rim may not fit snugly on the wheel and the tire therefore wobbles. Frames become bent and sprung so that the axles do not run parallel. This springing or bending may not even be noticeable, but it is none the less destructive. Rear as well as front bearings may become loosened and allow the wheels to spread and drag.

It is better to remove a spark plug with a socket wrench that just fits around the plug and protects the core from damage, than to use a monkey wrench and ruin the plug.

Cost Less



Champions cost less and there is no better spark plug. Champion X is 60 cents. Blue Box 75 cents. The manufacturing economies resulting from making two-thirds of all the spark plugs produced are passed on to the car owner.

The Better Way To Buy a Motor Car

Most persons dislike mechanical details. But how a motor car is engineered and built, and what it is built of, are both extremely important.

That is why automobile buyers today are discounting glib selling talk and demanding assurance that a car will stand up and give low-cost service.

There is only one way you can get such assurance. You must see for yourself how it is engineered and built—and of what it is built.

The Hupmobile Parts Display gives you the Hupmobile story at a glance. It is interesting—and enlightening. You should by all means see it. Come in soon.

Hupmobile

Brake and clutch pedals are good examples of the safety built into the Hupmobile. They are drop-forged, double heat-treated steel, as are also the hand-brake and gear-shift levers, brake-rod clevises and toggles—much stronger and safer than the less costly low carbon steel or malleable castings which are often used at these points. For example, in a recent test, a cast brake pedal broke under 340 pounds pressure, while it required 570 pounds to break a Hupmobile drop-forged pedal.

HIGH ATHLETES OF NEBRASKA IN ANNUAL COMPET

and took the discus throw when he shot the platter 113 feet 5 inches.

Val Hrabak of Dodge proved to be a sturdy man of work in group one. He won the 100-yard, 220-yard and quarter-mile and reeled off a 220-yard preliminary in 23 3-10 seconds.

Rex Watkins of Callaway, pentathlon champion, was also a heavy scorer in group one. He won the high hurdles, high jump and broad jump.

Central Disqualified.

Beatrice high, home course relay champions, made good by turning in the best time for the 880-yard relay. Omaha Central won the first heat and was entitled to a second place in the finals, but Jones cut in ahead of Coffey in the brush down the home stretch and the Purple quartet was disqualified.

Roland of Beatrice came within one-fifth of a second of equalling the state record for the high hurdles when he cleared the sticks in 16 2-5 seconds in the second heat of group three.

Martin Thomas of Omaha Central won all-events honors in the shot put by 1-4 of an inch. His put was just that much better than the effort of Wedburg of South high. Presnell of Dewitt won over G. Nixon of Fairfield in group one by ½ inch.

Close Finish in Furlong.

The finish of the final heat in the group three 220-yard dash was so close the judges conferred several minutes before the winner was announced. Solomon was declared winner, with Coffey second.

Four class records were established and another equalled at the Saturday meet.

Watkins of Callaway set a new group one mark for the high hurdles when he cleared the sticks in 17 7-10 seconds. Former record of 18 1-5 seconds was made by Popelar, Dodge, in 1922. Watkins also bettered his group one mark, made in 1922, when he high jumped 5 feet 5 1-4 inches.

Hrabak Sets Record.

Hrabak of Dodge set a new group one 220-yard dash record of 23 8-10 seconds. Former mark of 24 1-5 seconds was made by Reed of Franklin Academy in 1922.

Welch's record-breaking mile was, of course, a new group two record. The former class record of 4.38 was made by DeMaranville of Aurora in 1921.

Leffler equalled the group two record for the low hurdlers when he was clocked in 27 3-5 seconds. Coholders of the group two record are Abott, Clay Center, '22, and McKenzie, Tecumseh '23.

Special Event.

TRACK MEET NOTES.

Root of Arnold had bad luck in the finals of the group one low hurdles. He had a good lead until he tripped in clearing the last barrier and was hard pressed to finish fourth.

The staging of field events preliminaries in the morning speeds up the meet and adds much to the pleasure of the crowd, as well as the comfort of the athletes who are entered in a large number of events.

The sun refused to shine Saturday and the events were staged under a cloudy sky and in the face of a rather sharp breeze.

Roland of Beatrice turned in a good mark for the javelin when he hurled the steel-tipped spear 144 feet. The javelin event will be a part of the regular meet next year.

Secretary W. G. Brooks of York and A. M. Nelson of Auburn represented the Nebraska high school athletic board of control at the Saturday meet. President W. J. Braham of North Platte was unable to be present because of illnes s and no meeting of the control board was held.

Members indicated that the next meeting of the control body would probably be held in September.

Gothenburg high now holds two high school records. Ostergaard set a new mark at the 1923 meet when he stepped the 440-yard dash in 52 seconds.

The group two trophy was the second state track award captured by Gothenburg athletes. The Swedes won the state meet in 1917.

Peterson's work in the low hurdles was a feature of the afternoon. He coasted into second place in the preliminary heat and won the finals with ease.

A brilliant spurt in the last 200 the 880yards enabled Smiley of Hastings to beat out McEvoy of Broken Bow in the 880-yard run. Smiley's time was 2 minutes 3 1-5 seconds.

Engineers Will Discuss Changes Since War Times

Post-war advances in aviation and ordinance, power problems of steel making, development of scientific management in industry, and new and expanding spheres of manufacture, transportation and education will be discussed by leading authorities from all over the country at a five-day spring meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, which opens in Cleveland, Ohio, Monday, May 26.

Expansion of organized engineering in the field of public service will be stressed at several sessions by speakers representing the industries, the army, and the research laboratories o the nation, according to an announcement by the president of the society, Fred R. Low of New York.

More than 1,500 engineers, economists, educators, industrialists and officials of state and federal services, will. President Low said, herald a striking progress since the war in practically every phase of activity in which the American Society of Mechanical Engineers enters.

A delegation from the Nebraska local section will attend the meeting. J. W. Haney of Lincoln is chairman of this section's executive committee, other members of which are: C. Dempster of Beatrice, W. L. DeBaufre of Lincoln, and R. N. Robertson of Omaha.

Drive For Midland College Succeeding

FREMONT, Neb., May 10.—Great encouragement is being received in the "Greater Midland College" appeal according to announcement made this morning by headquarters here.

Two large pledges have been received in addition to the amount subscribed by Henry C. Luckey o Lincoln some time ago. The members of the Luthern church at Rising City have set their quota at $12,000. This amount is considered the more remarkable in view of the fact that four years ago this church pledged $11,00 and that it has a membership of only 75.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Glock of Rising City have individually pledged $5,000. Mr. and Mrs. John Rohrig of Lincoln have also pledged $5,000. Tabitha Home o Lincoln, a refuge for orphaned children and aged men and women of the Luthern Church, subscribed $600.

HUSKER HURLERS IN FANCY FETTLE

Lang and Rhodes Allow the Kansas Aggies Two Hits In Two Games.

Nebraska Peels Off Pair Of Victories On Diamond At Manhattan.

(Special to The Star.)

MANHATTAN, Kan., May 10.—By taking advantage of Aggie errors and weak pitching, combined with airtight pitching on the part of the Cornhusker hurlers, the University of Nebraska baseball team won both games of a doubleheader from the Kansas Aggies here today. The score of the first game was 5-1 and the second 6-3.

Both contests were scheduled to go seven innings. In the first game the score was tied at one-all in the first of the eighth, when two Aggie errors, coupled with two Husker hits, scored four runs and cinched the game.

In the second game Nebraska began the scoring early and the result was never in doubt. The Aggies registered but one hit each game. The scores:

EASTRIDGE CLUB STEPS IN JULY 1

Clubhouse and Other Facilities Open to Members On That Date.

Construction work at Eastridge has been progressing rapidly ever since the early part of March and the rains in the past two weeks have been of great benefit to both fairways and greens. Cutting of the grass on the fairways has been in progress the past week and the plants are stooling rapidly and in another month of growing weather this part of the course will present a very fine sod condition. The germination of the seed on the greens and tees has been very high and every green has produced a very heavy stand of grass.

The greens should be ready for the first cutting in about a month and both Norman Sommers, who planned the course and superintended the early construction, and Chas. Koontz, the professional at Eastridge, assure the directors that the course will be in good playing condition by early July. The water system is proving even more efficient than had been expected. The supply of water is abundant and surplus pressure is maintained, even at the farthest points from the well.

Clubhouse Well Under Way.

The excavation and foundation for the club house are completed, as well as the construction of the sewage system and carpenter work on the building will be started Monday morning. The building will be finished complete, lockers installed and all privileges of the club will be available to members immediately upon completion of the building, which is promised by the contractor by July 1.

There appears to have been some understanding on the part of certain ones that it is necessary that an invitation be extended to them before membership applications will be considered. The directors are anxious that this impression be corrected.

Reduced Fee Off May 31.

The secretary of the club, Leo S. Hyland or any member of the club, will gladly receive the application of any one who may desire membership. The membership has reached a point that will permit the completion of the entire propect, incilding the golf course, clubhouse, landscaping of the grounds, furnishing of the house and the care and upkeep of the golf course during 1924, including such seeding as will be necessary this fall, and it has been determined that no membership applications at the present cost of $150 will be considered after May 31, 1924.

"The regular membership fee is $200 but in consideration of the fact that the club has not been in position to offer the privileges of the golf course of clubhouse to members, applications have been taken at a reduced price. With the course and clubhouse ready for use, it is felt concessions in this respect and that the memberships are now worth the regular price.

W. J. Byer Store At 1537 O Sold To Hugh Thorne

W. J. Byer has sold his stock in the grocery at 1537 O street to Hugh Thorne, a former assistant of his, who will take charge Monday and change its name to his own.

For fourteen years Mr. Byer has conducted his establishment in its present quarters, and since 1904 he has been in the business in Lincoln. He will retire for a time, but intends to continue his home here.

Mr. Thorne was an employe of the store for nine years before 1915. Since that time he has been first sales manager of the Roberts Milk company, and then connected with the salges force of the Raymond Brothers Clark company.

No immediate changes will be made at the store, other than the change in name. Inventory is to be taken Sunday Mr. Thorne says that there will probably be improvements made after several months.

SCHOOLS TO HOLD SPRING FESTIVAL

Ten Thousand School Children Take Part In Program This Week.

Proceeds Will Be Used to Help Pay For Stadium at Lincoln High.

Ten thousand public schoop children will take part in the all-school open air spring festival, to be held at the high school oval on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 13 and 14. The program will be made up of health and recreational activities carried on in the public schools. Nearly all of the elementary school pupils and about one-half of the high school pupils will participate.

This festival is the first of its kind given in Lincoln since 1914, in which year a four-day festival, attended by 18,000 people was given. The proceeds of the 1914 festival were used to buy playground equipment. The proceeds of the coming festival will be applied toward payment or the stadium or "oval" built during the past year on the high school ground.

The programs will not be made up of highly specialized numbers prepared for the occasion. They have been designed rather as a demonstration of wholesome outdoor activities in which large numbers of children take part.

Three programs will be given as follows:

into the search for Maj. Frederick L. Martin, their missing commander, unseen since his plane, the "Seattle," passed over Port Miller enroute from Chignik toward Dutch Harbor. That was early in the afternoon of April 30. His fate and that of his mate, Staff Sergeant Alva Harvey is but a matter for conjecture.

The search will be placed in the hands of Lieut. Barle H. Tonkin, assistant air officer of the Ninety-first division, now enroute by airplane from San Francisco to Seattle, there to embark for Chignik next Monday aboard the revenue cutter Bear.

Lieutenant Tonkin will bring with him a "JN" type of army plane, ideally adapted for the slow cruising and sustained flight which will be necessary in looking into every canyon, and sheltered nook of the forbidden country where Martin may have fallen or landed.

Cannery boats and government vessels now stationed in the district where the missing plane was last seen will give what aid they can in the hunt.

Yale Trims Tiger In Cinder Compet

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 10. — Yale defeated Princeton this afternoon, 81 to 54, in their twenty-second annual track and field meet. Three records were broken and one record equalled.

Comins, Yale, established a new broad jump record of 23 feet 7 3-4 inches which better the mark of 23 feet 1 1-2 inches made by Sheffield, also of Yale, in 1904.

Scattergood of Princeton clipped a fifth of a second off the 220-yard low hurdles record, setting up a mark of 24 3-5 seconds. Norton, Yale, equalled the record of 21 3-5 seconds for the 220-yard dash.

Three Princeton men all beat the former mark for the discus throw of 123 feet 5 inches. Emery, the winner, hurling it 134 feet 9 inches.

WOULD HALT SMOKING.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 10.—A nationwide campaign to halt smoking among women has been launched by a club of 100 young women in Ocean Grove, Miss Dorothy Reeves, its president, informed members of the State Federation of Women's clubs in the thirtieth annual session here. Similar clubs are growing rapidly in other cities, Miss Reeves said.

Make Awards At Annual Inter-Fraternity Banquet

The photograph above shows a part of the eight hundred fraternity men who attended the first banquet of the inter-fraternity council Wednesday night at the Scottish Rite temple.

Improvement in scholastic standing was the chief aim of the dinner, and to that end, an inspirational talk was made by Ballard Dunn, editor of the Omaha Bee, and fifteen symbolic plaques were awarded to the fraternities whose members in the last two semesters have received the fewest number of delinquency slips.

The plaques are not permanent gifts, but will be re-awarded each year to the high standing fraternities. They were designed by Paul S. Laune of Lincoln, a graduate of the university. The figure with the book in the foreground represents the fraternity man. He on horseback shows the spirit they are to have, and the leadership which they are to wield.

Presentation was made at the banquet by Dr. R. B. Adams, one of the oldest members of the inter-fraternity council, to representatives of the high-standing organizations.

TAX BILL VOTE A HEAVY BLOW TO PRESIDENT

Opposed—total 15.

Republican (15)—Hall, Delaware, Cameron, Arizona; Colt, Rhode Island; Cummins, Iowa; Edge, New Jersey; Fess, Ohio; Lodge, Massachusetts; McKinley, Illinois; Moses, New Hampshire; Norbeck, South Dakota; Pepper, Pennsylvania; Phipps, Colorado; Reed, of Pennsylvania; Wadsworth, New York, and Watson, Indiana.

Democrats—None

Democratic leaders predicted passage of their program, even if vetoed by the president. They pointed out that they could lose a dozen votes in the senate and still assemble two-thirds majority necessary to overthrow a veto.

The democrats, proud of their authorship of the bill meanwhile threatened a new fight over the selection of senate conferees Senator Simmons, minority finance leader, formally served notice the democrats would insist upon conferees favorable to his plan. If carried out, it would lead to an unprecedented situation.

One provision of the senate bill, which the house also enacted, was a flat reduction of 25 per cent on all 1923 incomes, payable during the current year. If the bill is enacted finally before adjournment, this reduction will become effective June 15, when the second installment is due.

Slashes All Down Line.

The senate bill also would slash taxes all down the line, but greater relief would be given the small taxpayer than the large corporation or rich individual. In this respect it closely parallels the house bill except that the surtaxes upon incomes above $500,000 were materially higher.

The normal rates on both bills placed a 2 per cent tax on incomes up to $4 000, with a maximum of 6 per cent above $8,000. The senate bill contained a 4 per cent tax on the bracket between $4.000 and $8,000 while the house carried a 5 per cent tax.

Both bills granted $1.000 exemptions to single persons and $2,500 to married couples and provided for the publication of all income tax returns and consequently these provisions will not be changed in conference.

After conference, the bill will go to the white house where, if it meets a veto, it will preclude a summer adjournament and bring congress back for a new tax battle after the presidential conventions.

and were taken at once to commissary and sleeping quarters fitted up by the railways company.

Arthur Thompson, president of the company, served notice on Mayor Magee that cars will be operated Monday and demanded that the city of Pittsburgh "take all legal means to protect the properties of the Pittsburgh Railways company."

Mayor Magee immediately called the city council together. The council passed an ordinance appropriating $25,000 for the purchase of riot guns, gas grenades and tear gas. This equipment will be supplied to the police in order that they may quell any possible disorders.

Meanwhile Pittsburghers tonight were looking on the strike as a novelty and taking their inconveniences good naturedly.

Thousands walked, other thousands rode in any conveyances obtainable, and still other thousands remained at home.

Many Conveyances Used.

Every mode of transportation, modern and ancient, has been called upon to meet the emergency. Automobiles, busses and trucks operated as "jitney's"—but are collecting 25 cent fares. Even several horse drawn buggies are seen on main thoroughfares.

More than a score of persons have been struck and injured by whizzing machines.

As the result of a traffic jam in the new Liberty tunnel, a tube for pedestrian and vehicle traffic, which connects the south and downtown Pittsburgh, forty persons were overcome by carbon monoxide gas.

Motors caught in the congested tunnel failed to turn off their engines and deadly fumes pervaded the air. Those overcome were rescued by firemen, policemen and a rescue crew from the bureau of mines. One hundred other persons staggered from the tube ill from the gas.

twenty-one cruisers of 10,000 tons each, over and above those now built or authorized, before it would be on a 5-5 ratio with Great Britain."

Given this many ships, Roosevelt said, America would have a preponderance of cruiser strength.

Has More Destroyers.

The American navy is equipped with more destroyers than either Great Britain or Japan, the report disclosed, but Great Britain has 196 in commission, as against 109 for the United States and sixty-three for Japan. The others of the American 288 total of destroyers are either laid up or are so old as to be obsolete.

With regard to aircraft carriers, the report showed, the United States ranks about four as compared to Japan five.

"We have no operating bases in the Pacific that are adequate," the report declared. "The Atlantic bases are better, but not nearly adequate. As regards petroleum reserves, we have a deficiency of 68 per cent in the reserves required in the Pacific. Th Atlantic reserve deficiencies are still greater. The reserve at Oahu (Hawaii) on January 1, 1924, was about 1,759,667 barrels. In a Pacific war the navy would use about 70,000,000 barrels during the first year of the war."

Summing up, the report said:

"It is a fact that material of the fleet is generally deteriorating due to age and lack of funds to make all current repairs."

Await Presidents Action.

The only next istep to look to now is President Coolidge's action on the bill, when it reaches the white house. Officials at the executive mansion today maintained complete silence as to whether the president will sign or veto the measure. Hughes likewise refused to comment on the situation.

Some observers in close touch with the situation, however, now believe that President Coolidge may feel it necessary to veto the bill because of the affront to Japan contained in the exclusion clause. This belief was based on the supposition that the president had warned the conferees on the bill that he would veto it if his compromise were not adopted and that Hughes probably will urge this step in the white house. Heretofore a veto has not been expected seriously as all hopes for a solution of the question had been centered in a compromise at the capitol.

Resignation Possibility.

The one possibility of Secretary Hughes resigning is involved in the president's action on the immigration measure, it was thought tonight.

The only real possibility of the secretary stepping out, in opinion here is a situation where he might urge Mr. Coolidge to use the veto, while the president might feel constrained to sign it. So far the president has backed the stand of Hughes to the limit.

There is a pair of anxiety at the white house that is seldom noticed The factors involved in the strong stand the president already has taken and the seriousness involved in a possible veto are the cause.

On the other hand Hughes feels strongly on the immigration question. The establishment of the excellent relations with Japan, which has been one of Hughe's principal achievements in the state department, may be menaced by the application of the exclusion law to the Japanese, the secretary fears. There is no present danger of war with Japan.

Zev Runs Third In Excelsior Handicap

NEW YORK, May 10.—Once again the great Zev, champion money winner of American and the 1923 king of the turf, was downed at Jamaica this afternoon, this time in the Excelsior handicap.

The mighty Zev was, not only defeated, but he was humiliated by coming in a bad third. Rialto, Mrs Harry Payne Whitney's entry, won the race, as a 20 to 1 shot, and the Lilane's stable Sunini was second with Zev third.

For the first time in months, Earl Sande did not have the mount on Zev. He was given the leg up on the temperamental Madhatter and Laverne Fator rode Zev.

Kansas Boy Makes Record Shot Put

EMPORIA, Kan., May 10. — A world's high school record in the 12-pound shot was established by John Kuck of Wilson, Kan., high school, when he tossed the iron ball 56 feet 8 3-4 inches in the state high school meet at the Teachers' college here today. Kuck was the outstanding star of the meet. He won firsts in three events and his performance enabled his school to place higher than schools with a dozen entrants

Rumanian Royalty To Visit England

LONDON, May 10.—Scenes of pre-war pomp will feature the visit of King Ferninand and Queen Marie of Rumania, when they arrive here on Monday for a three day stay as guests of King George and Queen Mary.

The royal visitors will cross the English channel from Ostend to Dover in the British royal yacht, escorted by four British warships. The Prince of Wales will go to Dover to welcome the Rumanian king and queen

The chief event of the visit will be a gorgeous state banquet at Buckingham palace Monday night when it is expected King Ferdinand will be invested with the Order of the Garter.

Arsenic Biscuits Fed to Prisoners By Wife's Error

MADISONVILLE, Tenn., May 10.—Twenty-five persons including the deputy sheriffs and sheriff were suffering tonight from arsenic poisoning administered by the sheriff's wife who mistook the poison for flour and made it into biscuits.

Three of the prisoners in the county jail are in a serious condition. It is believed most of the victims will recover.

Mrs. Thomas Upson, wife of the sheriff who lives in the jail, said she had found what she thought was a bag of flour. She dumped it into the bin and made the biscuits. She herself was a victim of the poison.

AMERICAN TEAM GETS RAW DEAL

Yankee Rugby Players Sore Over Treatment By Paris Olympic Heads.

PARIS, May 10—Members of the American Olympic rugby team were debating today whether to appeal to the American Olympic committee or roll up their sleeves and do battle following another bitter attack on them in the Paris newspapers.

Feeling of the American athletes has been heated to the boiling point by a series of happenings which they construe as meaning nothing but a deliberate purpose to discriminate against them and to make it hard for the team.

Following the refusal of the French committee to allow them to practice against French clubs not entered in the games, and after they had been told that they could not take pictures in the stadium, the Americans were incensed when a Paris newspaper accuse them of having professionals on the team.

Robbed of All Valuables.

Fifteen of the players were then robbed of everything they possessed in the way of valuables while they were practicing in the stadium The players, of course, did not hold the French officials responsible for the robbery, but they did feel that the proper means had not been taken to protect the dressing rooms while they were in the field.

Attacks even more bitter against the Americans were printed here today. Several newspapers criticized the Americans for the rowdyism of their game and predicted that there was going to be trouble if the Americans played the French tenn in the final match for the championship. The newspapers recalled the fights that occurred in the Pershing stadium durin gthe army games in 1919 and they predicted that the same scenes will be repeated

Eastern Jealousy Crops Out.

NEW YORK, May 10—Predictions being made by prominent critics that the major portion of the American Olympic team will be composed of central and far western athletes are disputed by eastern officials, who maintain that the east will be represented on the team as generously as it ever was.

Eastern officials claim that the finest men were turned out in their territory will face the starter in the eastern trials at the Yankee baseball stadium June 7.

Among the sprinters entered are Loren Murchison, Louis Clarke, Francis Husses, Chester Bowman Robert McAllister, Frank Conway and Alfred Leconey.

TO REFUSE PAYMENTS.

BUENOS AIRES, May 10—Efforts of the government to work out a plan to make effective the national pension law, which would grant a life pension to all persons who have labored in the country twenty-five years, met with new difficulties tonight as leading industrialists said they will refuse any payments to the pension fund.

and took the discus throw when he shot the platter 113 feet 5 inches.

Val Hrabak of Dodge proved to be a sturdy man of work in group one. He won the 100-yard, 220-yard and quarter-mile and reeled off a 220-yard preliminary in 23 3-10 seconds.

Rex Watkins of Callaway, pentathlon champion, was also a heavy scorer in group one. He won the high hurdles, high jump and broad jump.

Central Disqualified.

Beatrice high, home course relay champions, made good by turning in the best time for the 880-yard relay. Omaha Central won the first heat and was entitled to a second place in the finals, but Jones cut in ahead of Coffey in the brush down the home stretch and the Purple quartet was disqualified.

Roland of Beatrice came within one-fifth of a second of equalling the state record for the high hurdles when he cleared the sticks in 16 2-5 seconds in the second heat of group three.

Martin Thomas of Omaha Central won all-events honors in the shot put by 1-4 of an inch. His put was just that much better than the effort of Wedburg of South high. Presnell of Dewitt won over G. Nixon of Fairfield in group one by ½ inch.

Close Finish In Furlong.

The finish of the final heat in the group three 220-yard dash was so close the judges conferred several minutes before the winner was announced. Solomon was declared winner, with Coffey second.

Four class records were established and another equalled at the Saturday meet.

Watkins of Callaway set a new group one mark for the high hurdles when he cleared the sticks in 17 7-10 seconds. Former record of 18 1-5 seconds was made by Popelar, Dodge, in 1922. Watkins also bettered his group one mark, made in 1922, when he high jumped 5 feet 5 1-4 inches.

Hrabak Sets Record.

Hrabak of Dodge set a new group one 220-yard dash record of 23 8-10 seconds. Former mark of 24 1-5 seconds was made by Reed of Franklin Academy in 1922.

Welch's record-breaking mile was, of course, a new group two record. The former class record of 4.38 was made by DeMaranville of Aurora in 1921.

Leffler equalled the group two record for the low hurdlers when he was clocked in 27 3-5 seconds. Co-holders of the group two record are Abott, Clay Center, '22, and McKenzie, Tecumseh '23.

880-yard relay—Won by Clay Center (Deines, Hager, Burt, Nall); second, Arnold; third, Dewitt; fourth, Fairfield. Time, 1 minute 41 9-10 seconds.

Special Event.

TRACK MEET NOTES.

Root of Arnold had bad luck in the finals of the group one low hurdles. He had a good lead until he tripped in clearing the last barrier and was hard pressed to finish fourth.

The staging of field events preliminaries in the morning speeds up the meet and adds much to the pleasure of the crowd, as well as the comfort of the athletes who are entered in a large number of events.

The sun refused to shine Saturday and the events were staged under a cloudy sky and in the face of a rather sharp breeze.

Roland of Beatrice turned in a good mark for the javelin when he hurled the steel-tipped spear 144 feet. The javelin event will be a part of the regular meet next year.

Secretary W. G. Brooks of York and A. M. Nelson of Auburn represented the Nebraska high school athletic board of control at the Saturday meet. President W. J. Braham of North Platte was unable to be present because of illnes s and no meeting of the control board was held.

Members indicated that the next meeting of the control body would probably be held in September.

Gothenburg high now holds two high school records. Ostergaard set a new mark at the 1923 meet when he stepped the 440-yard dash in 52 seconds.

The group two trophy was the second state track award captured by Gothenburg athletes. The Swedes won the state meet in 1917.

Peterson's work in the low hurdles was a feature of the afternoon. He coasted into second place in the preliminary heat and won the finals with ease.

A brilliant spurt in the last 200 the 880yards enabled Smiley of Hastings to beat out McEvoy of Broken Bow in the 880-yard run. Smiley's time was 2 minutes 3 1-5 seconds.

Engineers Will Discuss Changes Since War Times

Post-war advances in aviation and ordinance, power problems of steel making, development of scientific management in industry, and new and expanding spheres of manufacture, transportation and education will be discussed by leading authorities from all over the country at a five-day spring meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, which opens in Cleveland, Ohio, Monday, May 26.

Expansion of organized engineering in the field of public service will be stressed at several sessions by speakers representing the industries, the army, and the research laboratories o the nation, according to an announcement by the president of the society, Fred R. Low of New York.

More than 1,500 engineers, economists, educators, industrialists and officials of state and federal services, will, President Low said, herald a striking progress since the war in practically every phase of activity in which the American Society of Mechanical Engineers enters.

A delegation from the Nebraska local section will attend the meeting. J. W. Haney of Lincoln is chairman of this section's executive committee, other members of which are: C. Dempster of Beatrice, W. L. DeBaufre of Lincoln, and R. N. Robertson of Omaha.

Drive For Midland College Succeeding

FREMONT, Neb., May 10.—Great encouragement is being received in the "Greater Midland College" appeal according to announcement made this morning by headquarters here.

Two large pledges have been received in addition to the amount subscribed by Henry C. Luckey o Lincoln some time ago. The members of the Luthern church at Rising City have set their quota at $12,000. This amount is considered the more remarkable in view of the fact that four years ago this church pledged $11,00 and that it has a membership of only 75.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Glock of Rising City have individually pledged $5,000. Mr. and Mrs. John Rohrig of Lincoln have also pledged $5,000. Tabitha Home o Lincoln, a refuge for orphaned children and aged men and women of the Luthern Church, subscribed $600.

HUSKER HURLERS IN FANCY FETTLE

Lang and Rhodes Allow the Kansas Aggies Two Hits In Two Games.

Nebraska Peels Off Pair Of Victories On Diamond At Manhattan.

(Special to The Star.)

MANHATTAN, Kan., May 10.—By taking advantage of Aggie errors and weak pitching, combined with air-tight pitching on the part of the Cornhusker hurlers, the University of Nebraska baseball team won both games of a doubleheader from the Kansas Aggies here today. The score of the first game was 5-1 and the second 6-3.

Both contests were scheduled to go seven innings. In the first game the score was tied at one-all in the first of the eighth, when two Aggie errors, coupled with two Husker hits, scored four runs and cinched the game.

In the second game Nebraska began the scoring early and the result was never in doubt. The Aggies registered but one hit each game. The scores:

First game—		R.	H.	E.
Nebraska	.....000 100 04	5	3	3
Aggies	.....001 000 00	1	1	4

Batteries—Lang and Lang; Vohs and Biehn.

Second game—		R.	H.	E.
Nebraska	.....120 100 2	6	6	2
Aggies	.....000 012 0	3	1	9

Batteries — Rhodes and Lang; Karns and Biehn.

EASTRIDGE CLUB STEPS IN JULY 1

Clubhouse and Other Facilities Open to Members On That Date.

Construction work at Eastridge has been progressing rapidly ever since the early part of March and the rains in the past two weeks have been of great benefit to both fairways and greens. Cutting of the grass on the fairways has been in progress the past week and the plants are stooling rapidly and in another month of growing weather this part of the course will present a very fine sod condition. The germination of the seed on the greens and tees has been very high and every green has produced a very heavy stand of grass.

The greens should be ready for the first cutting in about a month and both Norman Sommers, who planned the course and superintended the early construction, and Chas. Koontz, the professional at Eastridge, assure the directors that the course will be in good playing condition by early July. The water system is proving even more efficient than had been expected. The supply of water is abundant and surplus pressure is maintained, even at the farthest points from the well.

Clubhouse Well Under Way.

The excavation and foundation for the club house are completed, as well as the construction of the sewage system and carpenter work on the building will be started Monday morning. The building will be finished complete, lockers installed and all privileges of the club will be available to members immediately upon completion of the building, which is promised by the contractor by July 1.

There appears to have been some understanding on the part of certain ones that it is necessary that an invitation be extended to them before membership applications will be considered. The directors are anxious that this impression be corrected.

Reduced Fee Off May 31.

The secretary of the club, Leo S. Hyland or any member of the club, will gladly receive the application of any one who may desire membership. The membership has reached a point that will permit the completion of the entire propect, including the golf course, clubhouse, landscaping of the grounds, furnishing of the house and the care and upkeep of the golf course during 1924, including such seeding as will be necessary this fall, and it has been determined that no membership applications at the present cost of $150 will be considered after May 31, 1924.

The regular membership fee is $200 but in consideration of the fact that the club has not been in position to offer the privileges of the golf course of clubhouse to members, applications have been taken at a reduced price. With the course and clubhouse ready for use, it is felt concessions in this respect and that the memberships are now worth the regular price.

W. J. Byer Store At 1537 O Sold To Hugh Thorne

W. J. Byer has sold his stock in the grocery at 1537 O street to Hugh Thorne, a former assistant of his, who will take charge Monday and change its name to his own.

For fourteen years Mr. Byer has conducted his establishment in its present quarters, and since 1904 he has been in the business in Lincoln. He will retire for a time, but intends to continue his home here.

Mr. Thorne was an employe of the store for nine years before 1915. Since that time he has been first sales manager of the Roberts Milk company, and then connected with the salges force of the Raymond Brothers Clark company.

No immediate changes will be made at the store, other than the change in name. Inventory is to be taken Sunday. Mr. Thorne says that there will probably be improvements made after several months.

Capitol School Musical Festival

The May musical festival of Capital school was given Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock under the direction of Miss Mattie Mae Heim, music teacher. The pupils who took part are Shirley Diamond, Barbara De Putron, Dorothy Peterson, Luella Snowden, Kelvin Deming, Katherine Ackerman, Josephine Shepherd, Marporie Sastak, Jane Adams, Virginia Jackson, Richard Cullen, Keith Schroeder, Margaret Carpenter, Evelyn Hallstrom, Mary De Putron, Dorothy Culbertson, Marion Wolfe and Jimmie Harris.

SCHOOLS TO HOLD SPRING FESTIVAL

Ten Thousand School Children Take Part In Program This Week.

Proceeds Will Be Used to Help Pay For Stadium at Lincoln High.

Ten thousand public schoop children will take part in the all-school, open air spring festival, to be held at the high school oval on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 13 and 14. The program will be made up of health and recreational activities carried on in the public schools. Nearly all of the elementary school pupils and about one-half of the high school pupils will participate.

This festival is the first of its kind given in Lincoln since 1914, in which year a four-day festival, attended by 18,000 people was given. The proceeds of the 1914 festival were used to buy playground equipment. The proceeds of the coming festival will be applied toward payment or the stadium or "oval" built during the past year on the high school ground.

The programs will not be made up of highly specialized numbers prepared for the occasion. They have been designed rather as a demonstration of wholesome outdoor activities in which large numbers of children take part.

Three programs will be given as follows:

Program given by the following schools: Belmont, Capitol, Everett, Longfellow, McKinley, Normal, Park, Prescott Randolph Saratoga Willard, Twenty-sixth and O streets.

1. Bass singing conducted by Mrs. Nohavec. Grades 1 and 2—"Dandelion," "Betty and Billy." Grades 3 and 4—"Smelling," "Salute the Flag." Grades 5 and 6—"Mandolin Song," "Wandering," "Happy Birds."

into the search for Maj. Frederick L. Martin, their missing commander, unseen since his plane, the "Seattle," passed over Port Miller enroute from Chignik toward Dutch Harbor. That was early in the afternoon of April 30. His fate and that of his mate, Staff Sergeant Alva Harvey is but a matter for conjecture.

The search will be placed in the hands of Lieut. Barle H. Tonkin, assistant air officer of the Ninety-first division, now enroute by airplane from San Francisco to Seattle, there to embark for Chignik next Monday aboard the revenue cutter Bear.

Lieutenant Tonkin will bring with him a "JN" type of army plane, ideally adapted for the slow cruising and sustained flight which will be necessary in looking into every canyon, and sheltered nook of the forbidden country where Martin may have fallen or landed.

Cannery boats and government vessels now stationed in the district where the missing plane was last seen will give what aid they can in the hunt.

Yale Trims Tiger In Cinder Compet

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 10. — Yale defeated Princeton this afternoon, 81 to 54, in their twenty-second annual track and field meet. Three records were broken and one record equalled.

Comins, Yale, established a new broad jump record of 23 feet 7 3-4 inches which better the mark of 23 feet 1 1-2 inches made by Sheffield, also of Yale, in 1904.

Scattergood of Princeton clipped a fifth of a second off the 220-yard low hurdles record, setting up a mark of 24 3-5 seconds. Norton, Yale, equalled the record of 21 3-5 seconds for the 220-yard dash.

Three Princeton men all beat the former mark for the discus throw of 123 feet 5 inches, Emery, the winner, hurling it 134 feet 9 inches.

WOULD HALT SMOKING.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 10.—A nationwide campaign to halt smoking among women has been launched by a club of 100 young women in Ocean Grove, Miss Dorothy Reeves, its president, informed members of the State Federation of Women's clubs in the thirtieth annual session here. Similar clubs are growing rapidly in other cities, Miss Reeves said.

Make Awards At Annual Inter-Fraternity Banquet

The photograph above shows a part of the eight hundred fraternity men who attended the first banquet of the inter-fraternity council Wednesday night at the Scottish Rite temple.

Improvement in scholastic standing was the chief aim of the dinner, and to that end, an inspirational talk was made by Ballard Dunn, editor of the Omaha Bee, and fifteen symbolic plaques were awarded to the fraternities whose members in the last two semesters have received the fewest number of delinquency slips.

The plaques are not permanent gifts, but will be re-awarded each year to the high standing fraternities. They were designed by Paul S. Laune of Lincoln, a graduate of the university. The figure with the book in the foreground represents the fraternity man. He on horseback shows the spirit they are to have, and the leadership which they are to wield.

Presentation was made at the banquet by Dr. R. B. Adams, one of the oldest members of the inter-fraternity council, to representatives of the high-standing organizations.

TAX BILL VOTE A HEAVY BLOW TO PRESIDENT

Opposed—total 15.

Republican (15)—Hall, Delaware; Cameron, Arizona; Colt, Rhode Island; Cummins, Iowa; Edge, New Jersey; Fess, Ohio; Lodge, Massachusetts; McKinley, Illinois; Moses, New Hampshire; Norbeck, South Dakota; Pepper, Pennsylvania; Phipps, Colorado; Reed, of Pennsylvania; Wadsworth, New York, and Watson, Indiana.

Democrats—None.

Democratic leaders predicted passage of their program, even if vetoed by the president. They pointed out that they could lose a dozen votes in the senate and still assemble two-thirds majority necessary to overthrow a veto.

The democrats, proud of their authorship of the bill meanwhile threatened a new fight over the selection of senate conferees. Senator Simmons, minority finance leader, formally served notice the democrats would insist upon conferees favorable to his plan. If carried out, it would lead to an unprecedented situation.

One provision of the senate bill, which the house also enacted, was a flat reduction of 25 per cent on all 1923 incomes, payable during the current year. If the bill is enacted finally before adjournment, this reduction will become effective June 15, when the second installment is due.

Slashes All Down Line.

The senate bill also would slash taxes all down the line, but greater relief would be given the small taxpayer than the large corporation or rich individual. In this respect it closely parallels the house bill except that the surtaxes upon incomes above $500,000 were materially higher.

The normal rates on both bills placed a 2 per cent tax on incomes up to $4,000, with a maximum of 6 per cent above $8,000. The senate bill contained a 4 per cent tax on the bracket between $4,000 and $8,000 while the house carried a 5 per cent tax.

Both bills granted $1,000 exemptions to single persons and $2,500 to married couples and provided for the publication of all income tax returns and consequently these provisions will not be changed in conference.

After conference, the bill will go to the white house where, if it meets a veto, it will preclude a summer adjournament and bring congress back for a new tax battle after the presidential conventions.

PLAN ATTEMPT TO MOVE CARS AT PITTSBURGH

and were taken at once to commissary and sleeping quarters fitted up by the railways company.

Arthur Thompson, president of the company, served notice on Mayor Magee that cars will be operated Monday and demanded that the city of Pittsburgh "take all legal means to protect the properties of the Pittsburgh Railways company."

Mayor Magee immediately called the city council together. The council passed an ordinance appropriating $25,000 for the purchase of riot guns, gas grenades and tear gas. This equipment will be supplied to the police in order that they may quell any possible disorders.

Meanwhile Pittsburghers tonight were looking on the strike as a novelty and taking their inconveniences good naturedly.

Thousands walked, other thousands rode in any conveyances obtainable, and still other thousands remained at home.

Many Conveyances Used.

Every mode of transportation, modern and ancient, has been called upon to meet the emergency. Automobiles, busses and trucks operated as "jitney's"—but are collecting 25 cent fares. Even several horse drawn buggies are seen on main thoroughfares.

More than a score of persons have been struck and injured by whizzing machines.

As the result of a traffic jam in the new Liberty tunnel, a tube for pedestrian and vehicle traffic, which connects the south and downtown Pittsburgh, forty persons were overcome by carbon monoxide gas.

Motors caught in the congested tunnel failed to turn off their engines and deadly fumes pervaded the air. Those overcome were rescued by firemen, policemen and a rescue crew from the bureau of mines. One hundred other persons staggered from the tube ill from the gas.

NAVY OF U. S. RANKS SECOND REPORT SHOWS

twenty-one cruisers of 10,000 tons each, over and above those now built or authorized, before it would be on a 5-5 ratio with Great Britain."

Given this many ships, Roosevelt said, America would have a preponderance of cruiser strength.

Has More Destroyers.

The American navy is equipped with more destroyers than either Great Britain or Japan, the report disclosed, but Great Britain has 196 in commission, as against 109 for the United States and sixty-three for Japan. The others of the American 288 total of destroyers are either laid up or are so old as to be obsolete.

With regard to aircraft carriers, the report showed, the United States ranks about four as compared to Japan five.

"We have no operating bases in the Pacific that are adequate," the report declared. "The Atlantic bases are better, but not nearly adequate. As regards petroleum reserves, we have a deficiency of 68 per cent in the reserves required in the Pacific. Th Atlantic reserve deficiencies are still greater. The reserve at Oahu (Hawaii) on January 1, 1924, was about 1,759,667 barrels. In a Pacific war the navy would use about 70,000,000 barrels during the first year of the war.'

Summing up, the report said:

"It is a fact that material of the fleet is generally deteriorating due to age and lack of funds to make all current repairs."

jection in the house Friday of Mr. Coolidge's compromise plan to extend this date to March 1, 1925.

Await Presidents Action.

The only nex tstep to look to now is President Coolidge's action on the bill, when it reaches the white house. Officials at the executive mansion today maintained complete silence as to whether the president will sign or veto the measure. Hughes likewise refused to comment on the situation.

Some observers in close touch with the situation, however, now believe that President Coolidge may feel it necessary to veto the bill because of the affront to Japan contained in the exclusion clause. This belief was based on the supposition that the president had warned the conferees on the bill that he would veto it if his compromise were not adopted and that Hughes probably will urge this step in the white house. Heretofore a veto has not been expected seriously as all hopes for a solution of the question had been centered in a compromise at the capitol.

Resignation Possibility.

The one possibility of Secretary Hughes resigning is involved in the president's action on the immigration measure, it was thought tonight.

The only real possibility of the secretary stepping out, in opinion here is a situation where he might urge Mr. Coolidge to use the veto, while the president might feel constrained to sign it. So far the president has backed the stand of Hughes to the limit.

There is a pair of anxiety at the white house that is seldom noticed. The factors involved in the strong stand the president already has taken and the seriousness involved in a possible veto are the cause.

On the other hand Hughes feels strongly on the immigration question. The establishment of the excellent relations with Japan, which has been one of Hughe's principal achievements in the state department, may be menaced by the application of the exclusion law to the Japanese, the secretary fears. There is no present danger of war with Japan.

Zev Runs Third In Excelsior Handicap

NEW YORK, May 10.—Once again the great Zev, champion money winner of American and the 1923 king of the turf, was downed at Jamaica this afternoon, this time in the Excelsior handicap.

The mighty Zev was not only defeated, but he was humiliated by coming in a bad third. Rialto, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's entry, won the race, as a 20 to 1 shot, and the Lilane's stable Sunini was second with Zev third.

For the first time in months, Earl Sande did not have the mount on Zev. He was given the leg up on the temperamental Madhatter and Laverne Fator rode Zev.

Kansas Boy Makes Record Shot Put

EMPORIA, Kan., May 10. — A world's high school record in the 12-pound shot was established by John Kuck of Wilson, Kan., high school, when he tossed the iron ball 56 feet 8 3-4 inches in the state high school meet at the Teachers' college here today. Kuck was the outstanding star of the meet. He won firsts in three events and his performance enabled his school to place higher than schools with a dozen entrants.

Rumanian Royalty To Visit England

LONDON, May 10.—Scenes of pre-war pomp will feature the visit of King Ferninand and Queen Marie of Rumania, when they arrive here on Monday for a three day stay as guests of King George and Queen Mary.

The royal visitors will cross the English channel from Ostend to Dover in the British royal yacht, escorted by four British warships. The Prince of Wales will go to Dover to welcome the Rumanian king and queen.

The chief event of the visit will be a gorgeous state banquet at Buckingham palace Monday night when it is expected King Ferdinand will be invested with the Order of the Garter.

Arsenic Biscuits Fed to Prisoners By Wife's Error

MADISONVILLE, Tenn., May 10.—Twenty-five persons including the deputy sheriffs and sheriff were suffering tonight from arsenic poisoning administered by the sheriff's wife who mistook the poison for flour and made it into biscuits.

Three of the prisoners in the county jail are in a serious condition. It is believed most of the victims will recover.

Mrs. Thomas Upson, wife of the sheriff who lives in the jail, said she had found what she thought was a bag of flour. She dumped it into the bin and made the biscuits. She herself was a victim of the poison.

AMERICAN TEAM GETS RAW DEAL

Yankee Rugby Players Sore Over Treatment By Paris Olympic Heads.

PARIS, May 10—Members of the American Olympic rugby team were debating today whether to appeal to the American Olympic committee or roll up their sleeves and do battle following another bitter attack on them in the Paris newspapers.

Feeling of the American athletes has been heated to the boiling point by a series of happenings which they construe as meaning nothing but a deliberate purpose to discriminate against them and to make it hard for the team.

Following the refusal of the French committee to allow them to practice against French clubs not entered in the games, and after they had been told that they could not take pictures in the stadium, the Americans were incensed when a Paris newspaper accuse them of having professionals on the team.

Robbed of All Valuables.

Fifteen of the players were then robbed of everything they possessed in the way of valuables while they were practicing in the stadium. The players, of course, did not hold the French officials responsible for the robbery, but they did feel that the proper means had not been taken to protect the dressing rooms while they were in the field.

Attacks even more bitter against the Americans were printed here today. Several newspapers criticized the Americans for the roughness of their game and predicted that there was going to be trouble if the Americans played the French team in the final match for the championship. The newspapers recalled the fights that occurred in the Pershing stadium durin gthe army games in 1919 and they predicted that the same scenes will be repeated.

Eastern Jealousy Crops Out.

NEW YORK, May 10—Predictions being made by prominent critics that the major portion of the American Olympic team will be composed of central and far western athletes are disputed by eastern officials, who maintain that the east will be represented on the team as generously as it ever was.

Eastern officials claim that the finest men ever turned out in their territory will face the starter in the eastern trials at the Yankee baseball stadium June 7.

Among the sprinters entered are Loren Murchison, Louis Clarke, Francis Hussey, Chester Bowman Robert McAllister, Frank Conway and Alfred Leconey.

TO REFUSE PAYMENTS.

BUENOS AIRES, May 10—Efforts of the government to work out a plan to make effective the national pension law, which would grant a life pension to all persons who have labored in the country twenty-five years, met with new difficulties tonight as leading industrialists said they will refuse any payments to the pension fund.

GRAIN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 10.

Lack of buying power featured the grain market today and all grains ended lower, with corn leading the drop due to commission house selling.

Wheat closed 5@5½c down, corn off ⅝ to 1¼c and oats ¼c lower.

WHEAT—Wheat opened lower today, prices were ¾ to ⅞c off with scattered commission house selling and poor support.

CORN—Corn started lower, prices ranging from ⅜ to ⅝c off. Commission houses were active in selling July, which showed the most weakness.

OATS—Oats were unchanged to ¼c lower at the start.

PROVISIONS—Provisions were steady at the start for lard.

GRAIN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 10.

Lack of buying power featured the grain market today and all grains ended lower, with corn leading the drop due to commission house selling.

Wheat closed ⅝@⅞c down, corn off ⅝ to 1¼c and oats ¼c lower.

WHEAT—Wheat opened lower today, prices were ¼ to ⅝c off with scattered commission house selling and poor support.

CORN—Corn started lower, prices ranging from ⅛ to ⅜c off. Commission houses were active in selling July, which showed the most weakness.

OATS—Oats were unchanged to ¼c lower at the start.

PROVISIONS—Provisions were steady at the start for lard.

LIFE AND CHARACTER READING.

This is a very hard sign to be born under and the influences are very difficult to overcome Those born on this date are fearless and kind, and very magnanimous when not irritated. They are generous and apt to load themselves with the troubles and sorrows of others.

These people can memorize with the greatest ease and very fine orators When friendly they are very loyal, and remain so as long as they are permitted to have their own way.

The governing sign of this date is Taurus, the sign of the Bull, and the last sign of the Fire Triplicity. The governing planet is Venus and the birthstone is a moss agate.

LIFE AND CHARACTER READING.

This is a very hard sign to be born under and the influences are very difficult to overcome. Those born on this date are fearless and kind, and very magnanimous when not irritated. They are generous and apt to load themselves with the troubles and sorrows of others.

These people can memorize with the greatest ease and very fine orators. When friendly they are very loyal, and remain so as long as they are permitted to have their own way.

The governing sign of this date is Taurus, the sign of the Bull, and the last sign of the Fire Triplicity. The governing planet is Venus and the birthstone is a moss agate.

GREAT OAKS FROM LITTLE ACORNS GROW

Save and Lay the Foundation for Your Own Home

BETTER HOMES WEEK is an incentive to own one—and the surest and easiest way to fulfill that ambition is to start with a Savings Account. Most every man wants his own "castle"—and to acquire it you must get a start

Remember, the great oak tree got its start from a little acorn You, too, can make that beginning with a small sum in this strong Company and add to it regularly. That home eventually will be yours.

AN "OUT-OF-THE-ORDINARY" "SQUARE" HOUSE

A square house is often desirable, and need not be ugly. But as it is handicapped in this respect to start with—for few of us would call a cube the most pleasing shape for a house—special care needs to be taken in the design of a square house

This out-of-the-ordinary house combines all the convince of the popular 24 by 26 floor plan with a distinctive exterior. At the same time, it is a house which may suitably be built in a row of ordinary square houses and not be considered freakish. Batten shutters and a half-timbered second story with bracketed overhang give a different touch to the exterior, and the overhang also one foot space each way to the rooms on the second floor.

The absence of heavy columns on the front porch, or stubby posts a-top of squat piles of masonry is a great improvement, don't you agree? The open cornice is to be commended from the artistic standpoint, also.

A single central chimney provides for hot-air heating system and for the kitchen range. The front door opens directly into the living room which extends across the front of the house, with an open stair at the left. It has one fault—the lack of a fireplace. There is a door at the rear of the living room which leads to the kitchen and to the grade entrance and basement. The kitchen is a small room with a built-in dresser and worktable, and windows on two sides to keep it pleasantly light and airy.

French doors lead from the living room to the dining room. A pair of new-old-fashioned corner china closets is pleasing as well as practical

Upstairs there are three bedrooms, each with at least one generous clothes closet, and two of them provided with a built-in dressing table and a tray case respectively. The bathroom is unusualy large, and includes a towel cabinet, and a full-sized linen case.

If you are looking for a six-room "square" house, modern and unusually convenient in plan, and in good taste architecturally, you cannot make a mistake in choosing this design

AN "OUT-OF-THE-ORDINARY" "SQUARE" HOUSE

A square house is often desirable, and need not be ugly. But as it is handicapped in this respect to start with—for few of us would call a cube the most pleasing shape for a house — special care needs to be taken in the design of a square house.

This out-of-the-ordinary house combines all the convince of the popular 24 by 26 floor plan with a distinctive exterior. At the same time, it is a house which may suitably be built in a row of ordinary square houses and not be considered freakish. Batten shutters and a half-timbered second story with bracketed overhang give a different touch to the exterior, and the overhang also one foot space each way to the rooms on the second floor.

The absence of heavy columns on the front porch, or stubby posts a-top of squat piles of masonry is a great improvement, don't you agree? The open cornice is to be commended from the artistic standpoint, also.

A single central chimney provides for hot-air heating system and for the kitchen range. The front door opens directly into the living room which extends across the front of the house, with an open stair at the left. It has one fault—the lack of a fireplace. There is a door at the rear of the living room which leads to the kitchen and to the grade entrance and basement. The kitchen is a small room with a built-in dresser and worktable, and windows on two sides to keep it pleasantly light and airy.

French doors lead from the living room to the dining room. A pair of new-old-fashioned corner china closets is pleasing as well as practical.

Upstars there are three bedrooms, each with at least one generous clothes closet, and two of them provided with a built-in dressing table and a tray case respectively. The bathroom is unusualy large, and includes a towel cabinet, and a full-sized linen case.

If you are looking for a six-room "square" house, modern and unusually convenient in plan, and in good taste architecturally, you cannot make a mistake in choosing this design.

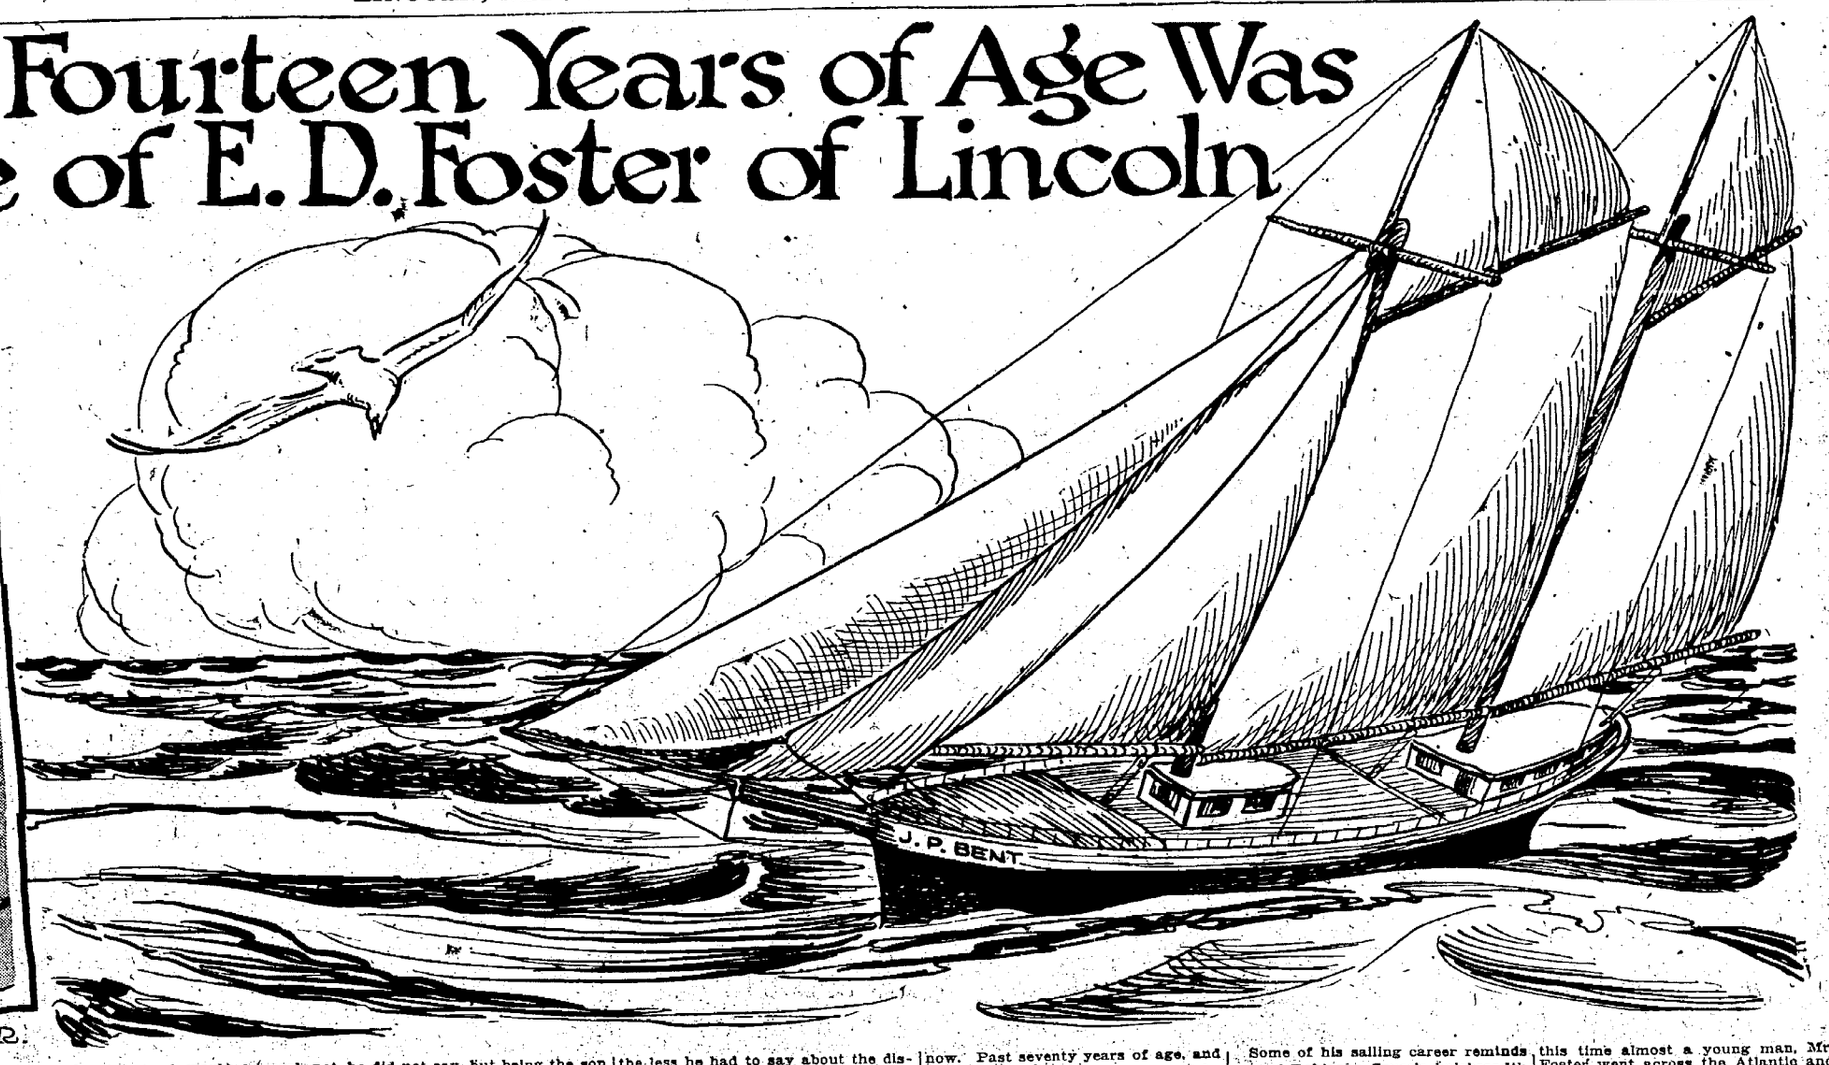
A Sailor at Fourteen Years of Age Was Experience of E. D. Foster of Lincoln

E. D. FOSTER.



BY LINNELLE GREER.

It's a great life, a sailor's life, if you don't weaken—but Ed Foster did.

When E. D. Foster, formerly of the Foster Grain Co., was a little boy and lived in Millbridge, Me., many years ago, it is very likely that all of the grown-ups of the town, and the children as well, called him Eddie.

And it is also likely that every once in a while some would say to him:

"Eddie, what are you going to be when you grow up?"

And Eddie's answer was always the same. He intended to follow in the footsteps of his father and be a seaman.

Ed Foster's father sailed the briny deep for forty years or more, as captain of a vessel. He knew all the ins and outs of a life at sea and did not hesitate in the least to impart any of this information to his young son who believed himself to be cut out for a sailor.

Call of the Sailor's Life.

But the boy Edward had no fear of the wind or wave. He wanted to be a sailor and a sailor he would be in spite of everyone.

So keen was his desire to become a sailor that he began his career at fourteen years of age.

At fourteen, the average boy is little more than a baby in strength and Ed Foster was no exception. He sailed as cabin boy on the schooner J. P. Brent, owned at Millbridge, Me., and sailed by Captain Fred Foster.

"The ship was built after the style of sailing ships of that date," said Mr. Foster, "and was a little above the average in sailing qualities and sea worthiness.

"The duties of the cabin boy were as follows: To care for and keep the ship's cabin, to brush the captain's clothes, shine his shoes and obey his commands. In his absence, the boy was to take the commands and obey the orders of all hands and the cook.

"The crew, on my first ship, consisted of a captain, first mate, three ordinary seamen, cook and cabin boy.

A Sailor at Fourteen.

"So the J. P. Brent and crew sailed from Millbridge, Me., to load lumber for New York. Calais is situated on the west bank of the St. Croix river which is the boundary line between the United States and the British Province of New Brunswick, Dominion of Canada. Millbridge is situated about ninety miles west of Calais at the mouth of the Narraguagus river in Washington county, and was formerly noted as a ship building point, and, when Maine was a baby state, for its large shipment of lumber to foreign countries."

Mr. Foster says that there was some beautiful scenery along the riverside, and at first he enjoyed it, but towards the close of day he began to think of home and mother.

"It was my first voyage, my first day away from home. A kind, Christian mother was uppermost in my thoughts, and I realized then that if I chose the calling of a sailor, this was only a foretaste of what would be my lot. I faltered in my determination to be a sailor, right then and there, but determination prevailed, and I followed in the footsteps of my father until I was past my twentieth year when I quit for keeps."

But poor little cabin boy. His was not an easy life by any means, he was supposed to brush the captain's clothes and shine his shoes and be general flunky, but little did he dream that his first night out he would be compelled to take his full trick at the wheel. But he did, although it was outside his duties.

A Homesick Cabin Boy.

"At about eight o'clock that night we dropped anchor at the mouth of the Lubec Narrows, a narrow stretch of water connecting two larger bodies of water which caused the tide to run through this narrow gut at a terrific pace. After we had anchored and the tide had got its full force on us, we were afraid to trust to our anchors as the bottom of this narrow channel is full of rocks and at low tide is very dangerous. So our captain, with due caution, decided that it would be necessary to keep a man at the helm in order to keep the ship heading to her anchors through the night, and it fell to the lot of the homesick cabin boy to do this."

What would some of the fourteen-year-olds of today think of that? They would, no doubt, be tremendously thrilled at the prospect, but after an hour or two of steady watch at the wheel the job would cease to be an adventure and would be real work.

Whether or not Ed Foster wanted to cut loose and run back home or not, he did not say, but being the son of a sea captain, and going to sea himself against the better judgment of his father he probably decided that the less he had to say about the disadvantages of being a cabin boy, the better.

But he isn't the least sorry about it now. Past seventy years of age, and an invalid for the past year or so, he lives over again every day his life as a sailor.

Some of his sailing career reminds one of Robinson Cruso's hairbreadth escapades.

For instance, on another voyage, this time almost a young man, Mr. Foster went across the Atlantic and up the Mediterraneon sea in the merchant ship Machias. The entire crew with the exception of Mr. Foster were Norwegians. Being the only American on board the writing of the ship's log was delegated to him by the Norwegian captain as the chief mate was incapable of the job.

"He was an excellent sailor and all right in every way except that he could not write the ship's log in the English language."

It was during this trip that the Machias was caught in a gale which lasted for twenty-four days. The ship, not a large affair threatened to sink most any moment, and the suspense was terrible. There were rations, but not many, and it was necessary that every member of the crew eat as little as possible for it was uncertain how long the gale would last. There was one chance in a million that the boat would stay put, and it was because of this chance that the food supply had to be carefully guarded.

"I weighed something like one hundred and fifty-seven pounds when I went on that ship," said Mr. Foster, "and the first time we went ashore after we finally got out of the gale, I weighed less than a hundred pounds.

Placed on Forced Diet.

"I think about that now and think what a really healthful idea it is to diet. It seemed to me that we were really much better off physically for going without food. Our systems were in better condition and when we had food again we picked up fast enough and felt better than ever. It wasn't twenty-five days until I felt as fine as could be."

Of course this experience wasn't quite as colorful as any Robinson Crusoe may have had, but at least it was true, and Mr. Foster can chuckle about it now and that was more than he could do them.

"After the first day or so," Mr. Foster said, "I didn't care whether I died or not. I had made up my mind that we would all be lost and tried to resign myself to my fate."

And who would ever have suspected Mr. Foster of having been a smuggler once upon a time? Well, he was, and that is another story.

When he was smuggling, Mr. Foster was on a ship which was owned by his uncle, who was a general merchant.

It was directly after the civil war and prices were very high on merchandise especially when duty must be paid. It was an easy matter to smuggle the silks and other more expensive fabrics in from the British provinces, that is, easy if you weren't caught at it.

Without the duty to be paid there was a large profit to be made on the silks, and of course, then as now everyone wanted as much profits as it was possible to get.

Smuggling Was Hard Business.

The penalty for smuggling was a seizure of the vessel and its cargo and perhaps a heavy fine or imprisonment for the owner.

While Mr. Foster was on the Essex, as the ship was called, it was never caught. Smuggling is a hard business unless you know how to commandeer the boat.

"But after I left the vessel there was a little jealousy between my uncle another branch of the family, and a brother-in-law told on him."

"My uncle had been a very prominent democrat in his community and elsewhere, and the democrats were in power at that time. I don't know how he did it, but somehow or other he seemed to be able to keep his ship, but I don't believe he smuggled any more."

There is a lot more to the smuggling episode, and perhaps Mr. Foster will tell that later.

Interesting But Weary Life.

"I have had quite an interesting life," Mr. Foster said, "and not the least interesting portion of it was my experience at sea.

"But that was not an easy part of it. A sea life is a hard one and I gave it up because my father discouraged me so completely. He had had forty years of it and felt that he knew what he was talking about."

Mr. Foster has been seasick many times, even if he were an honest-to-goodness sailor. And his father a sea captain for forty years was always seasick the first two days of any voyage, so Mr. Foster said. Two days isn't such a long time, but it is plenty long enough to be seasick, according to Mr. Foster.

Roundup Has Big Attraction For Dick Wick Hall of "Salome Where She Danced"

Dick Wick Hall—editor of the Salome Sun—"Made with a Laugh on a Mimeograph"—"A Little Smile for Every Mile"—Dick Wick Hall of Salome, Ariz.—"Salome Where She Danced"—who hasn't chuckled over the creations of his brain?—who hasn't beamed at his rarely quaint humor and philosophy?

His little mimeograph made him famous—brought in the shekels as yellow as the Arizona sunshine—but Dick Wick Hall had a good beginning—for he attended the university in the middle '90s. More than a quarter of a century ago he is on the roles as DeForest Hall, and he belonged to the class of '98—if the wanderlust hadn't struck him just too soon.

He's leaped into the class of "Famous Alumni" since he and Salome got together—but he can't come back for the Roundup June 4, 5, 6 and 7, for the Salome Sun must be done day by day for the travelers out that way. But he wrote us a letter about the Roundup because he couldn't come and because he wanted a little outside opinion on the Roundup. Dick Wick's out in Arizona and he hasn't been in Lincoln for many years, but the university still calls him.

He tells a little about himself—a little about Salome—a little about the Roundup—but it will be pretty hard to devote yourself to duty on those four June days after reading his letter—for your own memories will start a trekking through your mind along with his—and they'll be the kind you can't resist.

There'll be only one place you will want to be that first week in June—and that's in Lincoln on the campus. There will be a lot of others with memories not so different from yours and you'll want to get together for—well maybe next year you'll be out in Arizona with Dick Wick Hall and you can't get back.

Now's the time to take advantage of that "going back" feeling!

Dick Wick Hall says:

'Salome, Arizona,
"('Where She Danced'
'May 4, 1924

"Dear Committee:

"Your nice letter asking for a story for the third annual Roundup has just reached me out here in this little Northwest Corner of Hell. What a wonderful thing it would be if all of us could be rounded up from the old corners of the world and brought back even for a day, to the Old Campus and amidst the old time friends, scenes, and associations. Your letter turns my thoughts back nearly thirty years—but it would not seem the same if I were there in person.

"'Ma' Smith, God bless her, is not with you now—but her memory still lives with a lot of us. I didn't realize in those days what a time she must have had telling us what we could and could not take. I wonder if Miss Heppner is still there? I was only one of many to her but she will always linger in my memory as the instructor in German who boxed my ears for not paying ttention. Probably I deserved a club—and I have to laugh when I remember it.

"Jack Best—and he is gone. I would give ten dollars right now for one of those cold needle baths he used to make us take over at the gym. If I had the water he used to waste squirting on us I would soon make a million out here and my frog might learn to swim instead of taking sand baths. Jack used to lure us into the showers and turn on the coldest water on earth and then laugh at us. It would be worth a dime a glass out here.

"The interesting part of your letter is the reference to the outdoor luncheon and the informal luncheon. I have just returned from a long trip in the desert and, after beans and bacon and black coffee, any old kind of a luncheon would look good, regardless of form and I could go 'milin Thru' it like a hungry shoat after an ear of corn. I may be mistaken, but if my memory is correct we used to get board at one time at a place on 11th street, near the Conservatory of Music, for $2.25 a WEEK. Magee's Boarding Club was the name, I remember. And growl about it. Ye Gods! Meals like that out here now would set me back ten to twenty times as much.

"General Pershing was a lieutenant then and General Funston collecting botanical specimens for the University of Kansas, for Prof. Dicke if I am not mistaken. Prof. W. D. Hunter was specializing in entomology in those days, also acting as instructor in taxidermy. Once, when I tired of the monotony of confinement and my feet itched for the feel of strange soil, he gave me a butterfly net, a bottle of cyanide and some sheets of cork and told me to go to Florida and collect flies for the museum, at 5c each. So I LINCOLN.

"I talked some newspaper out of free transportation and was soon lost in the swamps of Florida. I didn't catch many flies but I saw a lot of Florida and got back to Jacksonville the day before my pass expired, with 10c and a big appetite. All I had to eat from Jacksonville to St. Louis was 15c worth of bananas—and from St. Louis to Lincoln just the memory of them. Some of these days I am going to take a day off and catch enough flies to pay Hunter for his butterfly net.

"I would like to get back for the Roundup and see a real baseball game once in my life. Strange to say I never have. I am probably the only man in America today who has never seen a genuine professional baseball game. I have always been too busy or too far away.

"Coming back to the Roundup would be like visiting a new world,

Dick Wick Hall of Salome, Ariz., and university alumnus, whose Salome Sun has enlivened many a sandy desert mile for tourists. He was christened De Forest but in '09 he was in Wickenburg, Ariz., where he became involved in political fights in the then territory of Arizona. A Phoenix paper called him "Dick of Wickenburg" and this was later abbreviated to Dick Wick Hall, which was commonly thought to be his real name. Later a real estate deed was made out to him under the name of Dick Wick Hall, the notary thinking it his name. When the lots unexpectedly became valuable and when he wished to transfer them the simplest way to clear the record was to have his name legalized as "Dick Wick Hall" in lieu of De Forest.

to me, from this wilderness. Life is serious, when one looks back upon the opportunities passed by and missed. If the exuberance of youth could only be tempered with the wisdom of experience what wonderful things might not many of us do. My feet itched—and I lost the golden opportunity to secure the education the university offers every youth. If I had finished my course I might now be a great mining engineer or geologist—maybe—instead of laying slight claim to fame as the man that made Salome dance and the father of a 7-year old frog that hasn't learned to swim. My heart is with you.

"Adios,
"(Signed) D. W. HALL."

The campus has changed since Dick Wick Hall was here—it has changed since almost the youngest graduate was here—but doesn't that make you want to return all the more—to keep abreast of the improvements on the campus? Don't you want to meet the members of this year's class as well as those of your own class?

And there's no time like the Roundup for renewing acquaintances and making new ones.

Real Genius Is Evidenced In Poetry Submitted By Students In State University Contest

Saturday, May 10 saw the publication of "Nebraska Verse"—a book of verse written, as the foreword announces, by students now in residence at the University of Nebraska. It is the first university publication of its kind. For its excellence, it should not be the last, but whether or not the poetry contest, which gave rise to the publication, will become annual, depends largely, it seems, on the generosity of prize-givers.

The forty-six titles in the book arranged alphabetically by authors' names present a remarkable array of forms, ranging from ancient to modern, from strictest to freest. There are sapphics, by Audry Diller and Emily Ross, free verse by Mildred Burcham, Wilbur Gaffney, Ione Gardner, and others, cinquains by Helen Rummons, an ode, by Emily Ross, two song cycles both by Janet Pressley, and eight sonnets, both the Italian and English forms being represented. And in all this array, trite thinking and phrasing are surprisingly absent. The observation is fresh, the tone is sincere. These young poets have something to say, and they are learning, and have learned, in past, how to say it.

Most of the topics are youthful in interest. A distinguished exception is Emily Ross's ode, 'Voices to Europa,' an ambitious and largely successful expression of western cultural traditions. Ione Gardner's work too, shows an interest in personality that is not likely to lessen with years. For the most part, however, the poems deal with youthful preoccupations, such as the aspects of nature, the aspects of love, the seeking after God.

Thus one writes:

It has been many months
Since I touched God.

And another:

The cathedral within me is closed.
Long days have passed since I walked along its quiet aisles Seeking to feel the peace of its shadows
And to love the beauty of its holiness.

A similar parallelism in thought occurs between the poems "To One Unknown" and "Eighteen." Like topics occupy these contemporaries.

The reader will not fail to remark that of the fifteen contributors, twelve are women. Hence it is not surprising that the writers whose contributions are most notable, both for quantity and interest are women. Janet Pressley, Ione Gardner, Emily Ross, and Helen Rummons.

"I fashion rare thoughts

writes Miss Pressley, and chooses inevitably the right word to characterize her own work. It is crystal delicate, exquisite. Often poignant, in "Apocalypse' it has flashing fire and power.

In the contest of which the book is the outcome, two prizes were offered, a first prize of fifty dollars, by the class of 1898, and a second prize of twenty-five dollars by the Vestals, an organization of girls in the College of Arts and Sciences. Of the poems submitted, the local committee, consisting of Miss Louise Pound, Miss Syford, Mr. Alexander, Mr. Gass and Mr. J. A. Rice, Jr., chose twenty, and submitted them for the final award to Christopher Morley, John G. Neihardt and Percy MacKaye. The prize-winning poems are respectively, "Apocalypse" by Janet Pressley, and "To One Unknown," by Helen Rummons. They follow:

APOCALYPSE.

Janet Pressley.

I dare not be too long alone
Lest I awake and find me gone;

Lest there come thunder in my ears,
The rush of wings, the clash of spears,

The riving of timber and in my eyes,
The stinging smoke of Paradise;

Lest heaviness should halt my blood
In its swift course, a seething flood

Of molten lava, burning wine
Possess this body I call mine,

Rush hotly through my finger-tips,
Strike leaping flames from my parched lips,

Filling my veins with such a fire
As Sidon knew or ravaged Tyre.

Under my breast my heart might grow
Too hot and high to be held so

My sentient self might rise and say,
"I am very strong, I will not stay

I am not you nor any woman;
I am not God, I am not human

It is no task to tear apart
The puny prison of your heart."

I dare not be too long alone
Lest I awake and find me gone

TO ONE UNKNOWN.

Helen Rummons.

Time has set our trysting place,
And Love has marked the day;
I know not if it be tonight,
Or many years away.

Sometimes I hate the many days
That lie between us two,
Sometimes I bless the surging years that bear me on to you.

Roundup Has Big Attraction For Dick Wick Hall of "Salome Where She Danced"

Dick Wick Hall—editor of the Salome Sun—"Made with a Laugh on a Mimeograph"—"A Little Smile for Every Mile"—Dick Wick Hall of Salome, Ariz.—"Salome Where She Danced"—who hasn't chuckled over the creations of his brain?—who hasn't beamed at his rarely quaint humor and philosophy?

His little mimeograph made him famous—brought in the shekels as yellow as the Arizona sunshine—but Dick Wick Hall had a good beginning—for he attended the university in the middle '90's. More than a quarter of a century ago, he is on the roles as DeForest Hall, and he belonged to the class of '98—if the wanderlust hadn't struck him just too soon.

He's leaped into the class of "Famous Alumni" since he and Salome got together—but he can't come back for the Roundup June 4, 5, 6 and 7, for the Salome Sun must be done day by day for the travelers out that way. But he wrote us a letter about the Roundup because he couldn't come and because he wanted a little outside opinion on the Roundup. Dick Wick's out in Arizona and he hasn't been in Lincoln for many years, but the university still calls him.

He tells a little about himself—a little about Salome—a little about the Roundup—but it will be pretty hard to devote yourself to duty on those four June days after reading his letter—for your own memories will start a-trekking through your mind along with his—and they'll be the kind you can't resist.

There'll be only one place you will want to be that first week in June—and that's in Lincoln on the campus. There will be a lot of others with memories not so different from yours and you'll want to get together for—well maybe next year you'll be out in Arizona with Dick Wick Hall and you can't get back.

Now's the time to take advantage of that "going back" feeling!

Dick Wick Hall says:

"Salome, Arizona,
"('Where She Danced'
"May 4, 1924.

"Dear Committee:

"Your nice letter asking for a story for the third annual Roundup has just reached me out here in this little Northwest Corner of Hell. What a wonderful thing it would be if all of us could be rounded up from the old corners of the world and brought back, even for a day, to the Old Campus and amidst the old time friends, scenes, and associations. Your letter turns my thoughts back nearly thirty years—but it would not seem the same if I were there in person.

"'Ma' Smith, God bless her, is not with you now—but her memory still lives with a lot of us. I didn't realize in those days what a time she must have had telling us what we could and could not take. I wonder if Miss Heppner is still there? I was only one of many to her but she will always linger in my memory as the instructor in German who boxed my ears for not paying ttention. Probably I deserved a club—and I have to laugh when I remember it.

"Jack Best—and he is gone. I would give ten dollars right now for one of those cold needle baths he used to make us take over at the gym. If I had the water he used to waste squirting on us I would soon make a million out here and my frog might learn to swim instead of taking sand baths. Jack used to lure us into the showers and turn on the coldest water on earth and then laugh at us. It would be worth a dime a glass out here.

"The interesting part of your letter is the reference to the outdoor luncheon and the informal luncheon. I have just returned from a long trip in the desert and, after beans and bacon and black coffee, any old kind of a luncheon would look good, regardless of form and I could go 'millin Thru' it like a hungry shoat after an ear of corn. I may be mistaken, but if my memory is correct we used to get board at one time at a place on 11th street, near the Conservatory of Music, for $2.25 a WEEK. Magee's Boarding Club was the name, I remember. And growl about it. Ye Gods! Meals like that out here now would set me back ten to twenty times as much.

"General Pershing was a lieutenant then and General Funston collecting botanical speciments for the University of Kansas, for Prof. Diche if I am not mistaken. Prof. W. D. Hunter was specializing in entomology in those days, also acting as instructor in taxidermy. Once, when I tired of the monotony of confinement and my feet itched for the feel of strange soil, he gave me a butterfly net, a bottle of cyanide and some sheets of cork and told me to go to Florida and collect flies for the museum, at 5c each f. o. b. LINCOLN.

"I talked some newspaper out of free transportation and was soon lost in the swamps of Florida. I didn't catch many flies but I saw a lot of Florida and got back to Jacksonville the day before my pass expired, with 15c and a big appetite. All I had to eat from Jacksonville to St. Louis was 15c worth of bananas—and from St. Louis to Lincoln just the memory of them. Some of these days I am going to take a day off and catch enough flies to pay Hunter for his butterfly net.

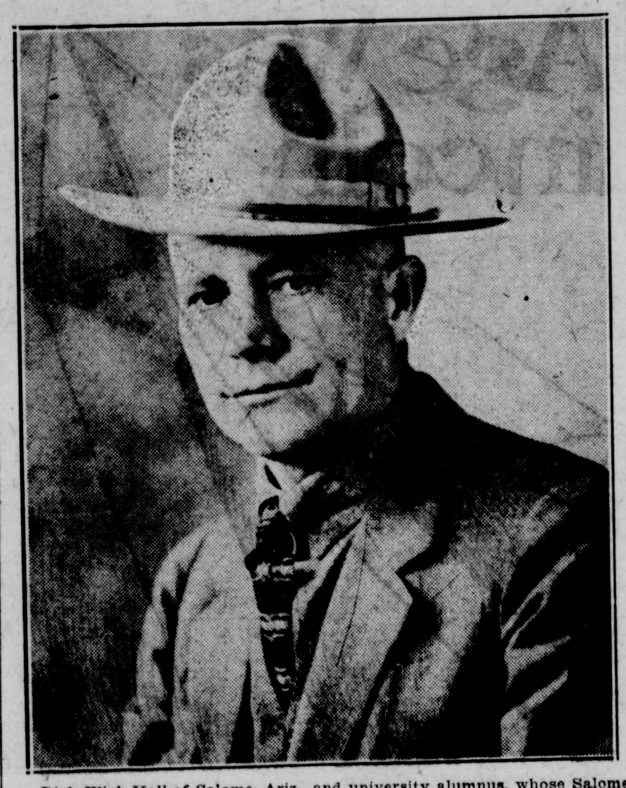
"I would like to get back for the Roundup and see a real baseball game once in my life. Strange to say I never have. I am probably the only man in America today who has never seen a genuine professional baseball game. I have always been too busy or too far away.

"Coming back to the Roundup would be like visiting a new world, to me, from this wilderness. Life is serious, when one looks back upon the opportunities passed by and missed. If the exuberance of youth could only be tempered with the wisdom of experience, what wonderful things might not many of us do. My feet itched—and I lost the golden opportunity to secure the education the university offers every youth. If I had finished my course I might now be a great mining engineer or geologist—maybe—instead of laying slight claim to fame as the man that made Salome dance and the father of a 7-year-old frog that hasn't learned to swim. My heart is with you.

"Adios,
"(Signed) D. W. HALL."

The campus has changed since Dick Wick Hall was here—it has changed since almost the youngest graduate was here—but doesn't that make you want to return all the more—to keep abreast of the improvements on the campus? Don't you want to meet the members of this year's class as well as those of your own class?

And there's no time like the Roundup for renewing acquaintances and making new ones.



Dick Wick Hall of Salome, Ariz., and university alumnus, whose Salome Sun has enlivened many a sandy desert mile for tourists. He was christened De Forest, but in '99 he was in Wickenburg, Ariz., where he became involved in political fights in the then territory of Arizona. A Phoenix paper called him "Dick of Wickenburg" and this was later abbreviated to Dick Wick Hall, which was commonly thought to be his real name. Later a real estate deed was made out to him under the name of Dick Wick Hall, the notary thinking it his name. When the lots unexpectedly became valuable and when he wished to transfer them the simplest way to clear the record was to have his name legalized as "Dick Wick Hall" in lieu of De Forest.

Real Genius Is Evidenced In Poetry Submitted By Students In State University Contest

Saturday, May 10, saw the publication of "Nebraska Verse"—a book of verse written, as the foreword announces, by students now in residence at the University of Nebraska. It is the first university publication of its kind. For its excellence, it should not be the last; but whether or not the poetry contest, which gave rise to the publication, will become annual, depends largely, it seems, on the generosity of prize-givers.

Two Lincoln Girls Crochet Many Beautiful Designs Though Have Been Blind For Years

In his "Invictus" Bruno Huhn says something about

I thank whatever Gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.

Success out of defeat, trust out of betrayal, gentleness after scorn, triumph out of handicaps—just unconquerable souls rising above their struggles.

Once long ago, pity and sympathy seemed the only things allowed those who walked in darkness. Idle hands, long hours of brooding, with a family's commiseration, were the only attributes of thier lives. Possible accomplishment was not even considered, denied the sight with which to achieve.

They might be talented in music, writing, sewing, cooking or any of a half dozen other arts but their talents were generally wasted for none felt the sightless could ever do anything with gifts that were theirs. They were condemned to darkness and it was the duty of others to make their lives pleasant, and theirs to sit passively by.

That theory in later years has been discarded. Somebdoy with sightless eyes but an unconquerable soul became rebellious, decided to change the old order of things in favor of a new one. Some one reasoned that lack of vision was compensated for in some other manner and that to waste these innate gifts was as unreasonable for the blind as for those with sight to disregard them.

And nowadays those who are denied sight do so many things, follow so many lines of work, that no one gives them more than a passing thought. So many have become famous— Fanny Crosby —Senator Gore—Helen Keller—of present day, following in the footsteps of those earlier ones, Homer and then Milton, that their accomplishments excite only momentary attention.

Two girls in Lincoln, who have been sightless for years, have never allowed their one handicap to stand in the way of accomplishing just about any thing they want to do. They might have listlessly passed through life, merely waiting for time to pass, but they chose differently.

Edna Koontz and Leona Jennings were rather well endowed by nature with talents and they didn't hide them within their consciousness, but brought them out into the sunlight where they could grow and develop. They found—they have been friends for years, since Nebraska City school days—that they had several gifts and they have developed them through the years.

Miss Koontz lives at 1123 Huff street and Miss Jennings just around the corner at 2900 Orchard. Since the time they were little girls they have loved to crochet and they spend many afternoons together in one of their favorite occupations. Miss Koontz learned when she was just a tiny girl, her sister taught her, and Miss Jennings has crocheted for years.

Miss Jennings generally takes her designs from edgings and lace already made up, feeling the stitches in the already crocheted article. She particularly enjoys making the edgings and insertings and at present is making a lovely edging for pillow slips. Some of her laces are made from the finest threads and the stitches are flawless. No pattern is too intricate for her hook and some of the most delicate and complicated ones would be a worthy accomplishment of one who could follow each stitch.

Miss Jennings makes a number of different fan patterns, which work up so attractively in crochet. She is also an adept at clover leaf and the knot stitch, and she does not care much about making filet. Miss Jennings makes table mats on frames, does the roll stitch, and makes some yokes. She has about fifteen patterns that she makes from memory, but that is but a few of the many she has made.

Both Miss Jennings and Miss Koontz belong to an afternoon social club and their facility with the crochet hooks is ever interesting to visitors, particularly. Both of the young women like to crochet for it does enable them to spend the afternoons with friends or receive them at home and yet be busy.

Miss Jennings has sold man, many of her crocheted pieces and yards upon yards of insertion lace, and edging. At Christmas time, she remembers friends with samples of her work and about that time many people purchase her wares for their own Christmas gifts. Miss Jennings, however, does not crochet one-third the amount, she says, now that she used to, because she spends so much time with her music.

Where Miss Jennings takes her patterns largely from completed designs, Miss Koontz takes her from any good needlecraft magazine. Her sister reads the directions to her and Miss Koontz crochets them into reality. If they are too complicated or too long and require some concentration to understand, she copies them in point system on her slate—a piece of waxed paper in a frame, which is used by the blind.

There is a magazine issued for the blind which now and again contains a crochet pattern, but Miss Koontz does not care so much for them. She has found mistakes in the directions and they are neither as attractive nor as satisfactory as the designs in magazines devoted to patterns.

Miss Koontz has no idea of the number of patterns she has made, but she knows that it runs into the hundreds. She enjoys fillet lace, and has made it for yokes, edges, and inserts in different kinds of scarfs. Miss Koontz knit a good many scarfs and sweaters during the war and she made shawls and jackets for her friends and relatives.

One Christmas, she made twenty-two pairs of bedroom slippers in all the colors of the spectrum, with the result that many odds and ends of yarn were left. From this, Miss Koontz crocheted a slumber robe for sleepy afternoons. She also enjoys

A rainy afternoon, some crocheting, and a friend to call—what more could one ask. Miss Edna Koontz, on the left, is calling on Miss Leona Jennings, on the right, and has brought her crocheting along. Neither Miss Koontz nor Miss Jennings can see their work, but that doesn't prevent them from making the most intricate patterns without losing a single stitch. They have been friends for years and they probably could not find space for themselves in the room if they started to pile all the yokes and doilies and edgings and scarfs they have made.

doing bead work, making bags or the bright little chains the girls wear now, and chooses her colors by the position of the boxes in which she keeps the beads.

Miss Koontz tats, makes cluny lace, Irish crochet—in fact she does everything that a person with sight can do except embroider. Because embroidery depends upon a stamped pattern for its completion, the blind can not do that.

Both young women are versatile. They are both graduates of the University School of Music. Miss Jennings has a piano and a harmony class and at present is preparing her pupils to appear in a recital at the end of May. Miss Koontz does not teach but she has done considerable concert work, appearing both as a pianist and vocalist. For five or six years, she kept a store on Tenth and K streets and only sold it a year or so ago because of her health. During the pleasant spring weather, Miss Koontz is canvassing for household supplies.

Buffalo Bill Monument Will Be Located On Granite Terrace At Cody Entrance To Yellowstone

Buffalo Bill, the world famous scout, will "hit the trail" again near his home town—Cody, Wyo.

He will ride his old "cayuse" along the familiar trails.

This is because the Buffalo Bill American association will erect a bronze equestrian statue of heroic size of the famous scout at the Cody, Wyoming, entrance to Yellowstone park, the unveiling to take place July 4. The statute is the work of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, and shows Col. Cody as a young man in his prime—thirty , to be exact. Miss XJane Cody Garlow of Cody, Wyo., granddaughter of Col. Cody, has been selected to unveil the statute, and Mrs. Whitney, the well known New York sculptress who designed and created it, will also be present at the unveiling ceremonies.

The Buffalo Bill American association uses Buffalo Bill as its inspiration and moving spirit, because he was an individualist, a sportsman, an athlete, a rugged personality who loved the outdoors and outdoor sports. He was a distinct and picturesque personality, and, because of his history and background, was known to every man, woman, and child throughout the country. They knew him as a scout, as an army officer, as a pioneer, a pathfinder and as a showman. His whole life's history as a courageous man, a pioneer, an individualist, makes it unnecessary to explain what he represented. For this reason he was chosen as the leader, in spirit, of the Buffalo Bill American association, which sponsors outdoor sport and individualism, and aims to infuse the present generation with the pioneer spirit.

The Architect's Task.

"Harnessing nature" is the way one might term the task of Albert R. Ross, New York architect, who is designing and constructing the gigantic granite plinth which will be the base of the statue for to Mr. Ross fell the stupendous engineering and architectural work of forcing nature to co-operate to give a fitting setting to the splendid statue of the great pioneer of the west.

The site of the monument is a majestic one. It will be located on a natural granite terrace that rises hundreds of feet from the Shoshone river. This terrace is in the heart of a great open space, right outside of Cody, Wyo. It faces the east entrance to Yellowstone park, and two snow-capped mountains, each five thousand feet high and ten thousand feet above sea level. There are Rattle Snake and Cedar mountains. The statue also faces Carter mountain, the site of Cody's original ranch.

Snow-kissed mountains, gorges, canyons, gulches, great granite terraces, canals, miles of sage-brush, vast open spaces—all of these must be visualized before one can get an accurate picture of Mr. Ross's "workshop." All of these natural elements enter into the selecting and building of the great plinth on which the Cody statue will stand.

Natural Granite Butte.

This plinth, when completed, will represent a natural granite butte, and the feat of constructing it is what might be termed harnessing nature. While part of the structure is natural formation, a certain element of artificiality enters into it. The plinth or base, will be fifteen feet high and two hundred feet long, and the statue itself is fifteen feet high, so base and statute will stand thirty feet high on the upper of a series of three natural terraces. The first of these terraces drops fifty feet, the next one hundred feet, and the third one hundred feet to the level of the river.

Rattle Snake and Cedar mountains, stately snow-crested sentinels, appear to stand guard at the entrance of the Shoshone canyon, twenty-five miles from the site.

Mr. Ross and his staff of workmen are re-arranging the stone in the great natural formation as it comes out of a ledge. The granite is backed up with concrete retaining walls, and part of the job consists of moving stones weighing about seven tons each, to form the base. Seven tons is the capacity of but one of the great trucks used in the gigantic engineering feat. A drag line, giant cranes, concrete mixing towers, huge trucks, and specially constructed tracks, are all used in the big job.

The task of conveying material, such as granite, cement, gravel, bronze, and machinery, in such a vast wilderness becomes a stupendous enterprise in itself. For instance, Mr. Ross had to send to Casper, Wyo., a day's trip from Cody, for the drag line. It had to be entirely dismantled, and pulled through a tunnel, a round-about way to the site.

Then the stone had to be transported from the site of the Shoshone river, and this was a tortuous trip up and down canyons, from one side of the river to the other. The cement was secured in Billings, almost a day's trip away from the work spot, and the bronze will be sent all the way from the east in box cars. The granite was given by the United States department of interior, and is quarried at Shoshone Canyon, twenty-five miles away. Of course, before the actual work commenced, there was the task of surveying, and finding the ideal spot for the statue, so that it would have a setting and background which would show it off to best advantage.

Cody Canal Tapped.

The further harnessing of nature came when the Cody canal was tapped, so that a natural stream could be brought around the base of the terrace-enthroned statue, to lend it further beauty. This stream is discharged back into the Shoshone river, and is intended to be a symbol of Buffalo Bill's activities in matters of irrigation. Mr. Ross points out that Buffalo Bill was not only a pioneer, a scout, and an army officer, but he was an irrigator, and that it was through his insight and foresight that the great Shoshone canal was built.

Thus, the bronze Buffalo Bill on his "cayuse" will be silhouetted against the sky, on a great granite terrace, or bench hundreds of feet high, as though he were reining up his mount on his old South Fork trail. A stream will flow to the left of him, and he will be "looking westward" toward his his old mountain home. So will millions of tourists to Yellowstone park see him as they "hit the trail."

Mr. Ross says he enjoys working out in the great open space with the wind whistling about his ears, and with the majesty of mountains constantly before him. He recalls, however, with a bit of discomfort, the day in January about a year ago when he staked out the site. It was thirty-eight degrees below zero, and the place was entirely blanketed with snow.

It is expected that the great plinth will be accomplished and the statue placed on it, by summer, with the unveiling ceremony taking place July 4.

It is certain that there will be a large attendance of easterners at the unveiling ceremony. They will have a double magnet to draw them to the home town of the famous scout. The Cody stampede is scheduled for July 3, 4 and 5. This is a great exhibition of horsemanship and cowboy prowess, and is put on in Buffalo Bill's home town by the home people. Its riders, ropers and outlaw horses come from the surrounding country. Perhaps "Smokey" will be there, the famous "cayuse" which was sent to New York from the old Cody ranch to pose for Mrs. Whitney, the sculptress, who created the equestrian statue.

The Cody stampede is a unique and vivid spectacle. For three days the wide main street is a surging mass of life and color; cowboys in chaps and gay shirts and handkerchiefs riding their top geldings; cowgirls in broad-brimmed hats and fringed gauntlets, Indians in their bright blankets astride their medicine horses.

Three-day Celebration.

During the three-day celebration in the little town backed up against the purple Rockies, the hilarious, spirited days of the cow camps and ranges, when Buffalo Bil lmade records shooting buffalo and stalking Indians, will be re-enacted for the benefit of visitors. Because of this stampede, July 4 was selected as the most appropriate time for the unveiling of the equestrian statue of Buffalo Bill, for the celebrants can make their pilgrimage to the magnificent site where the statue is located during intermission at the stampede.

The Buffalo Bill American association has a group of well-known western guides who will escort tourists to the site of the equestrian statue. One of them is "Joe" Jones, one of the best known ranchers in Wyoming. Mr. Jones has lived in Cody for twenty years, and is well known through all the western states, for, prior to becoming a rancher, he was a cowboy. His cowboy activities took him to Oregon, Nevada, Texas and Arizona, and to Mexico and Canada.

"Mont" G. Jones, a brother of "Joe", manages the T-E ranch, which is the old Cody ranch, for F. S. Groves, of Philadelphia. It was from this ranch that "Smokey", a typical western horse, was sent to New York as a model for the bronze equestrian statue of Buffalo Bill. Joe Jones knew Col. Cody well, and accompanied him on many big game hunts. Col. Cody was often a guest at Jones' ranch, which is about ten miles from the Cody ranch, on the south fork of the Shoshone river.

Ambrose Means, of Williams, Ariz., well known to eastern big game hunters, is another member of the guide group. Mr. Means was chosen guide because of his acquaintance with Col. Cody. Mr. Means was a cowboy and rode a bucking horse with the wild west shows which Buffalo Bill directed. The newly apponited guide vividly recalls one incident in his show days with Col. Cody, and, in connection with it, credits Buffalo Bill with having saved him from being a cripple. One day the cowboy, while riding his bucking horse in the arena, was thrown, and his foot crushed. He was rushed to a hospital, and the doctors decided to amputate the foot. When Col. Cody, resting in his tent, heard of the injury to one of his cowboys, and of the proposed operation, he immediately got into action. He opposed the operation, ordered "Johnny Baker", ring director, to see to it that Mr. Means was given the best of medical and surgical attention, and that the bills be sent to him. The cowboy recovered without the necessity of an operation, and will never forget the colonel's wisdom and generosity.

Mr. Means, in addition to hunting in the west, has been on big game hunting trips to East Africa, where zebra, giraffe and rhinoceros were the prizes. One of the live leopards brought back by him after ons of these trips was housed at the Bronx park zoo in New York for a number of years, until its death not long ago. Mr. Means has also been on gorilla hunts, and on one of his recent cougar hunts in the west, was accompanied by Rex Beach, the author, and Fred Stone of Broadway fame.

The Zeta Alpha society gave a picnic at the state park, Friday, in honor of their members who are graduating this year, and their mothers. Helen Eason, Linabell Ammon, and Annabell Wheeler are the members who graduate this year.

Little Bobby Elliott entertained his teachers at a 6 o'clock dinner Monday evening. Those present were Miss Frazier, Miss Scovel, Annabel Wheeler, Isabell Milne, Eva Barnes, Letitica Ellilocott, Agnes Auman, Esther Scofield, and Anna Nelson. The guests were met at the door by their host, Bobby. He entertained by playing his victrola records for them. At the table, the guests were again waited upon by their small host and his mother. All of the guests report a delightful time and are unanimous in declaring that Bobby is a host of no small merit.

Raymond High, Jake Lingle, Hugh O'Connor, and Bob Yates were in Mitchell last Friday to witness the track meet.

Kate Graham spent the week end at her claim near Alliance.

Miss Marion Allen, who graduates this spring, has signed a contract to teach in the grades at Bridgeport.

Annabel Wheeler was an Alliance visitor over the week end.

Miss Songer and her father, accompanied by Miss Frazier and Miss Zilma Smith attended church services in Alliance Sunday.

Among our teachers who will attend summer schools elsewhere are Miss Justice, University of California;; Miss Bruce and Mrs. Philpott, Columbia. Mr. Philpott will attend Michigan university at Ann Arbor this summer.

Coach Wills returned Saturday from Mitchell where he acted as referee and starter at the Western Nebraska track meet last Friday afternoon. Mr. Wills reports a very fine showing by the western Nebraska athletes.

The G. A. A. girls, assisted by Miss Delzell's household arts class, made and sold four delicious kinds of ice cream—pineapple, orange, chocolate, and lemon—Tuesday morning from 9.40 until 12. The money obtained from the sale is to go to the G. A. A. fund to help pay for letters, emblems, and other rewards given during the year. Miss MacCallum, the girls' physical training instructoress, attended to the details of the sale.

Miss Ruth Cockerall, principal at Gordon high school, will attend the summer school at Columbia university.

Edmund and Robert Slattery will receive their A. B. degrees at the university this spring. Edmund has been elected to teach in the Chadron high school. Robert will teach at Hay Springs.

Helen Eason was touring in the hills over the weekend. She visited Lead, Deadwood, Spearfish and Rapid City. She witnessed the track meet at Spearfish between Spearfish and Rapid City. She says that Spearfish won by ten points.

Tuesday evening, April 29, "Resolved that the Nebraska Code Law Should Be Repealed" was debated, and decided in favor of the negative. On the negative side were Mrs. Nesbit and Grace Burkholder; on the affirmative, Margaret Wright and Mildred Burroughs.

Linabell Ammon and Annabell Wheeler were hostesses to the Zeta Alpha society Monday evening. The officers for next year were elected. They are, president, Margaret Meer; vice president, Mabel Pierpont; secretary-treasurer, Catherine Treadway. The fficers will be installed at the next meeting.

The high school junior class had charge of the Y. W. C. A. program in honor o Mother's day Thursday. The following members of the class appeared on the program: Fred Schmechel, Edward Holyoke, Margaret Peet, Evelyn Currie, Elizabeth Patterson, Gretchen Richards, and Charles Beers.

Emory Austin, '24, signed a contract during the past week as principal of the Wood River, Neb., high school. Mr. Austin will be at the head of the department of mathematics.

Two Lincoln Girls Crochet Many Beautiful Designs Though Have Been Blind For Years

In his "Invictus' Bruno Huhn says something about

I thank whatever Gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.

Success out of defeat, trust out of betrayal, gentleness after scorn, triumph out of handicaps—just unconquerable souls rising above their struggles.

Once long ago, pity and sympathy seemed the only things allowed those who walked in darkness. Idle hands, long hours of brooding, with a family's commiseration, were the only attributes of thier lives. Possible accomplishment was not even considered, denied the sight with which to achieve.

They might be talented in music, writing, sewing, cooking or any of a half dozen other arts but their talents were generally wasted for none felt the sightless could ever do anything with gifts that were theirs. They were condemned to darkness and it was the duty of others to make their lives pleasant, and theirs to sit passively by.

That theory in later years has been discarded. Somebdoy with sightless eyes but an unconquerable soul became rebellious, decided to change the old order of things in favor of a new one. Some one reasoned that lack of vision was compensated for in some other manner and that to waste these innate gifts was as unreasonable for the blind as for those with sight to disregard them.

And nowadays those who are denied sight do so many things, follow so many lines of work, that no one gives them more than a passing thought. So many have become famous— Fanny Crosby —Senator Gore—Helen Keller—of present day, following in the footsteps of those earlier ones, Homer and then Milton, that their accomplishments excite only momentary attention.

Two girls in Lincoln, who have been sightless for years, have never allowed their one handicap to stand in the way of accomplishing just about any thing they want to do. They might have listlessly passed through life, merely waiting for time to pass, but they chose differently.

Edna Koontz and Leona Jennings were rather well endowed by nature with talents and they didn't hide them within their consciousness, but brought them out into the sunlight where they could grow and develop. They found—they have been friends for years, since Nebraska City school days—that they had several gifts and they have developed them through the years.

Miss Koontz lives at 1123 Huff street and Miss Jennings just around the corner at 2900 Orchard. Since the time they were little girls they have loved to crochet and they spend many afternoons together in one of their favorite occupations. Miss Koontz learned when she was just a tiny girl, her sister taught her, and Miss Jennings has crocheted for years.

Miss Jennings generally takes her designs from edgings and lace already made up, feeling the stitches in the already crocheted article. She particularly enjoys making the edgings and insertings and at present is making a lovely edging for pillow slips. Some of her laces are made from the finest threads and the stitches are flawless. No pattern is too intricate for her hook and some of the most delicate and complicated ones would be a worthy accomplishment of one who could follow each stitch.

Miss Jennings makes a number of different fan patterns, which work up so attractively in crochet. She is also an adept at clover leaf and the knot stitch, and she does not care much about making filet. Miss Jennings makes table mats on frames, does the roll stitch, and makes some yokes. She has about fifteen patterns that she makes from memory, but that is but a few of the many she has made.

Both Miss Jennings and Miss Koontz belong to an afternoon social club and their facility with the crochet hooks is ever interesting to visitors, particularly. Both of the young women like to crochet for it does enable them to spend the afternoons with friends or receive them at home and yet be busy.

Miss Jennings has sold man, many of her crocheted pieces and yards upon yards of insertion lace, and edging. At Christmas time, she remembers friends with samples of her work and about that time many people purchase her wares for their own Christmas gifts. Miss Jennings, however, does not crochet one-third the amount, she says, now that she used to, because she spends so much time with her music.

Where Miss Jennings takes her patterns largely from completed designs, Miss Koontz takes her from any good needlecraft magazine. Her sister reads the directions to her and Miss Koontz crochets them into reality. If they are too complicated or too long and require some concentration to understand, she copies them in point system on her slate—a piece of waxed paper in a frame, which is used by the blind.

There is a magazine issued for the blind which now and again contains a crochet pattern, but Miss Koontz does not care so much for them. She has found mistakes in the directions and they are neither as attractive nor as satisfactory as the designs in magazines devoted to patterns.

Miss Koontz has no idea of the number of patterns she has made, but she knows that it runs into the hundreds. She enjoys fillet lace, and has made it for yokes, edges, and inserts in different kinds of scarfs. Miss Koontz knit a good many scarfs and sweaters during the war and she made shawls and jackets for her friends and relatives.

One Christmas, she made twenty-two pairs of bedroom slippers in all the colors of the spectrum, with the result that many odds and ends of yarn were left. From this, Miss Koontz crocheted a slumber robe for sleepy afternoons. She also enjoys

A rainy afternoon, some crocheting, and a friend to call—what more could one ask. Miss Edna Koontz, on the left, is calling on Miss Leona Jennings, on the right, and has brought her crocheting along. Neither Miss Koontz nor Miss Jennings can see their work, but that doesn't prevent them from making the most intricate patterns without losing a single stitch. They have been friends for years and they probably could not find space for themselves in the room if they started to pile all the yokes and doilies and edgings and edgings and scarfs they have made.

doing bead work, making bags or the bright little chains the girls wear now, and chooses her colors by the position of the boxes in which she keeps the beads.

Miss Koontz tats, makes cluny lace, Irish crochet—in fact she does everything that a person with sight can do except embroider. Because embroidery depends upon a stamped pattern for its completion, the blind can not do that.

Both young women are versatile. They are both graduates of the University School of Music. Miss Jennings has a piano and a harmony class and at present is preparing her pupils to appear in a recital at the end of May. Miss Koontz does not teach but she has done considerable concert work, appearing both as a pianist and vocalist. For five or six years, she kept a store on Tenth and K streets and only sold it a year or so ago because of her health. During the pleasant spring weather, Miss Koontz is canvassing for household supplies.

Buffalo Bill Monument Will Be Located On Granite Terrace At Cody Entrance To Yellowstone

Buffalo Bill, the world famous scout, will "hit the trail" again near his home town—Cody, Wyo.

He will ride his old "cayuse" along the familiar trails.

This is because the Buffalo Bill American association will erect a bronze equestrian statue of heroic size of the famous scout at the Cody, Wyoming, entrance to Yellowstone park, the unveiling to take place July 4. The statute is the work of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, and shows Col. Cody as a young man in his prime—thirty , to be exact. Miss XJane Cody Garlow of Cody, Wyo., granddaughter of Col. Cody, has been selected to unveil the statute, and Mrs. Whitney, the well known New York sculptress who designed and created it, will also be present at the unveiling ceremonies.

The Buffalo Bill American association uses Buffalo Bill as its inspiration and moving spirit, because he was an individualist, a sportsman, an athlete, a rugged personality who loved the outdoors and outdoor sports. He was a distinct and picturesque personality, and, because of his history and background, was known to every man, woman, and child throughout the country. They knew him as a scout, as an army officer, as a pioneer, a pathfinder and a showman. His whole life's history as a courageous man, a pioneer, an individualist, makes it unnecessary to explain what he represented. For this reason he was chosen as the leader, in spirit, of the Buffalo Bill American association, which sponsors outdoor sport and individualism, and aims to infuse the present generation with the pioneer spirit.

Coach Wills returned Saturday from Mitchell where he acted as referee and starter at the Western Nebraska track meet last Friday afternoon. Mr. Wills reports a very fine showing by the western Nebraska athletes.

The G. A. A. girls, assisted by Miss Delzell's household arts class, made and sold four delicious kinds of ice cream—pineapple, orange, chocolate, and lemon—Tuesday morning from 9.40 until 12. The money obtained from the sale is to go to the G. A. A. fund to help pay for letters, emblems, and other rewards given during the year. Miss MacCallum, the girls' physical training instructoress, attended to the details of the sale.

Miss Ruth Cockerall, principal at Gordon high school, will attend the summer school at Columbia university.

Edmund and Robert Slattery will receive their A. B. degrees at the university this spring. Edmund has been elected to teach in the Chadron high school. Robert will teach at Hay Springs.

Helen Eason was touring in the hills over the weekend. She visited Lead, Deadwood, Spearfish and Rapid City. She witnessed the track meet at Spearfish between Spearfish and Rapid City. She says that Spearfish won by ten points.

Tuesday evening, April 29, "Resolved that the Nebraska Code Law Should Be Repealed" was debated, and decided in favor of the negative. On the negative side were Mrs. Nesbit and Grace Burkholder; on the affirmative, Margaret Wright and Mildred Burroughs.

Linabell Ammon and Annabell Wheeler were hostesses to the Zeta Alpha society Monday evening. The officers for next year were elected. They are, president, Margaret Meer; vice president, Mabel Pierpont; secretary-treasurer, Catherine Treadway. The fficers will be installed at the next meeting.

The high school junior class had charge of the Y. W. C. A. program in honor o Mother's day Thursday. The following members of the class appeared on the program: Fred Schmechel, Edward Holyoke, Margaret Peet, Evelyn Currie, Elizabeth Patterson, Gretchen Richards, and Charles Beers.

Emory Austin, '24, signed a contract during the past week as principal of the Wood River, Neb., high school. Mr. Austin will be at the head of the department of mathematics.

COOLIDGE OR CONGRESS.

A unique situation has been precipitated by this clash between President Calvin Coolidge and congress.

For the fifth consecutive time congress, in both branches of which there is a majority of republicans, has rejected the president's leadership. By refusing to redraft the Johnson immigration bill to meet the wishes of Mr. Coolidge, with particular reference to the date when the exclusion clause shall become effective, the house by a most decisive vote indicates its lack of sympathy with the president.

There have been few instances in American history where congress has so emphatically and consistently refused to follow the president. Mr. Coolidge in five definite and very specific particulars attempted to enforce his will on congress, and to assume the leadership which naturally would be conceded to the president whose party was in control of congress. He has failed in every instance. In every case, congress followed its own wishes, which were diametrically opposed to those of the president and his advisers.

Andrew Johnson faced a very similar situation. But Andrew Johnson was not a popular president. He was continually at war with his own party, and with the members of his party in congress. Contrast this with Calvin Coolidge, who has carried every state but two by overwhelming majorities in every primary contest as a candidate for the republican nomination at the 1924 convention at Cleveland.

Grover Cleveland found himself fiercely opposed at times by the members of his own party in congress but with notable success he met his opposition and was successful in more instances than he was defeated. In the waning years of the Taft administration, the president was unpopular, but Taft still managed to exercise control on the major issues.

President Coolidge's failure with congress is without a precedent in American political history. There must be much unexplained history why the present congress refuses to follow the lead of the man, which its majority membership again hopes to make president.

In formulating the program upon which he expected to go before the country, President Coolidge centered his efforts upon two matters. Both were vital parts of the tax problem.

President Coolidge presented his tax program to the country through what is known as the Mellon tax revision program. The house manhandled it fearfully. After first approving the democratic substitute, the Longworth compromise measure was finally sent to the senate. In the upper chamber the president fared as badly.

In his first message, Mr. Coolidge made known his hostility to the bonus. Yet, in a modified form, the bonus measure passed the house by an overwhelming vote and nearly as sweeping victory in the senate.

There have been distinctive tests of strength since then. Earlier in the various investigations conducted by congress, the president let it be known that the sweep which some of the inquiries were taking was distasteful to him. Congress landed solidly on him and finally forced the resignation of some of the cabinet members. Then along came the Johnson immigration bill, with its exclusion provision which was so obnoxious to the president. Mr. Coolidge pleaded with congress to eliminate that clause. Failing in that he sought to have the date when it was to become effective delayed. Again he was unsuccessful.

Congressional action certainly does not reflect the vote revealed in the primary election. Apparently the close-up view of Coolidge in Washington, which various republican members of congress are able to secure, is not so alluring as that at greater distance. Or, perhaps congress itself, recognizes that the flattering vote which has been given the president is not in reality an endorsement of the president and his policies but is the result of the fact that the voers have no other means of expression than to vote for Coolidge. There has been nothing in the candidacies of Bob LaFollette and Hiram Johnson to cause the great mass of voters in this country to break from moorings. The voters cast their ballots for Calvin Coolidge, not because they approve of his policies, but because they did not have anyone else to vote for.

The situation challenges attention.

If President Coolidge cannot command the confidence of the members of his own party in congress sufficiently to exercise the leadership he is expected to assume, shall this country entrust its troublesome problems to him? A continuance of congressional insurgency and revolt means that America is to be tossed and pulled around by the conflicting tides and sentiment in congress.

LINCOLN'S WIDE STREETS.

In the light of moden automobile traffic problems which are pressing for solution upon all the cities of the United States, the people of Lincoln have reason for self-congratulation upon the fact that these matters are less perplexing here than in many other places because of the width and regularity of thoroughfares in the main part of the city. It seems providential—certainly it cannot be regarded as a manifestation of extraordinary foresight—that the founders of Lincoln sixty-seven years ago laid out the original townsite with streets 100 to 120 feet wide placed only 300 feet distant from each other.

Only the cheapness of land on the western prairies in those days justified what probably was regarded by some of the early settlers as an extravagant waste of space for streets in the newly located capital of Nebraska. The automobile was not even dreamed of at that time, and no expectation existed that horse vehicle traffic, with street cars thrown in, would ever grow to such proportions as might tax the capacity of the city's highways.

The chief consideration in making the streets so wide undoubtedly was to allow for ample driveways and liberal sidewalk and park areas bordering them on each side. No doubt, the men who platted Lincoln visualized the future community with long perspectives of shade trees and grass plots lining the residential avenues—just as we see them—and with broad walks in the business district to accommodate crowds of shoppers and sightseers without undue congestion.

But the advent of the automobile some twenty years ago and its development in recent years as a universal means of locomotion have produced an entirely new situation, which could not possibly have been foreseen in 1867 or for a long time thereafter. Nowadays, it is a question of finding enough space in the streets to accommodate the vast and ever-increasing number of motor vehicles.

Lincoln, with her wide streets evenly distributed in the ratio of thirteen to each mile, is much more fortunate than most of the large cities, where streets have been evolved from old trails and cow paths, without particular plan or forethought, in many cases not more than 40 to 60 feet wide, running promiscuously here and there, winding and curving in every direction.

It has been lamented at times that the Nebraska capital was not laid out on a scheme similar to Washington, D. C., with main highways radiating in all directions from a central point. Under the old order of things, that would have been an ideal arrangement. But since the automobile has come into such general use, its desirability is questionable.

Right now, Detroit is wrestling with the problem of how to handle an enormous volume of motor vehicle traffic in her main business district, covering an area about one mile square. The principal thoroughfares there converge, as they do in Washington, like the spokes of a wheel, with the result that the city pours its huge tide of vehicular, street car and pedestrian travel every morning and evening along a few main routes, which are becoming hopelessly congested.

To relieve the situation, it has been found necessary to prohibit parking of automobiles within the district mentioned at any time during the day. Another measure now being considered is to require crosstown traffic to stay outside the central district and keep to outlying streets. The first expedient has done away with the acute congestion and enabled street cars, owned and operated by the city, to move on regular schedules, avoiding the former delays. With parking eliminated, automobiles run three abreast on each side of the street, thus eliminating delays and confusion caused by drivers backing out from the curb into streams of moving traffic.

Lincoln is fortunate in having a geographical layout which tends to distribute traffic over many streets. People driving down town in the morning and back in the evening can choose any one of a large number of possible routes, all of approximately equal distance. The parking problem exists here, as elsewhere, but in less acute form. Street cars are not held up by automobiles in the downtown area, there being plenty of room for both.

While it has been found advisable to widen Thirteenth street in order to take care of the large volume of traffic, this will be done without moving back any buildings. The additional street space needed is to be supplied merely by diminishing the width of sidewalks, which will still be broad enough to take care of pedestrian traffic. In other cities, it has been found necessary to cut off the fronts of buildings along narrow streets, in order to increase their width, or to remove the buildings entirely.

MOTHER'S DAY.

This is the eleventh nation-wide observance of Mother's Day.

In 1913 congress formally proclaimed the second Sunday in May as the day when American men publicly observe the memory of Mother.

Each year since then, in most communities of this country, increasing thought and attention has been given Mother's day until it has assumed a much larger significance in the calendar of events. In many of the larger cities of the country, special programs have been arranged, while in every pulpit of the land, reference is made to the crowning glory of womanhood.

Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia originated Mother's day. Her mother died in May 1906, and the following year in June 1907, she and a friend observed Mother's day. From that humble beginning has come one of the finest traditions of the American people.

Throughout this country today, millions of men will pause from their activities of the day in reflection and grateful appreciation of the memory of mother. There is no sweeter word in the English language than mother. Time adds to its beauty. Only the years can give it the poignant sweetness of its magical echo.

THE HIGH SCHOOL DEBATES.

For the last three days, district champions of the Nebraska High School Debating league have been settling the question of superiority.

The tournament to pick the grand champion in the forensic contests, which have occupied the attention of Nebraska high schools during the winter, was a big success. Eleven district champions competed and each team was a distinct credit to its school and its district. Increased interest in the debates was reflected in he large atendance which featured most of the contests.

There was an unusually high standard of excellence set by the debates. The high school students discussed the immigration question with an understanding and knowledge that reflects the utmost credit upon them. Geneva high school, in winning the championship, maintains her splendid record for proficiency in debate.

THE BENEFICENCE OF NATURE.

Certainly Nature is bountiful. Upon the surface of the earth, hidden in its interior or in the atmosphere surrounding it, is to be found everything essential for the nourishment or comfort of mankind. But Nature is God and among the first maxims imbibed by youth is that "God helps those who help themselves." So ever since man migrated from the garden of Eden he has been seeking and finding ways of helping himself.

The first white men who set foot upon the Hawaiian islands were quite firmly convinced that the original habitation of Adam could have been no more alluringly entrancing than the isles upon which they had fallen. Set in tropic seas, with an apparently unending May temperature and luxuriant vegetation capable of supplying one's every need in the matter of sustenance, it was thought little if any improvement could be made.

And this was the opinion of the world for very many years. Finally, however, it was found advisable to bring into play the ingenuity of man to insure in many parts of the islands the necessary irrigation waters for the fields of sugar cane, rice or other native products. While copious rains fall in the high mountains, it is stated some of the low lands do not get a sufficient amount of water during the growing season to supply the crops with moisture. Irrigation engineers have therefore gone into the mountain recesses and have built flumes and conduits wherewith to carry the surplus waters to where they will do the most good.

Millions of dollars have been expended on irrigation systems of the islands. On the island of Maui a number of sugar companies formed a co-operative organization which developed a system which alone cost over a million. It brings the rains from the mountain slopes of East Maui through a series of canals and tunnels over forty miles long onto the cane fields of the richly fertile slopes. The first ditch was constructed a little over twenty years ago, but since then, the need for water becoming greater, the ditches have penetrated many miles further into the mountains. According to the Scientific American the latest Kauigoa ditch consists almost entirely of tunnels through the solid rock, for out of 23,500 feet only 700 feet ofthis new oenstruction consists of open ditch. The ditches are six feet wide and the tunnels seven feet high.

One of the most intcresting features of the Hawaiian irrigation system is the manner in which it is supplemented by electricity. The storage facilities of the mountain regions are limited, because of the precipitous character of those areas, but beneath the fields where water is required are great subterranean reservoirs. In their rush to the lower levels the mountain waters are required to generate electrical power, which is transmitted to such points as it is needed and there it is used in pumping millions of gallons of water daily. One plantation alone has pumping facilities capable of raising thirty millions of gallons each day.

So it will be seen that no matter how generous Nature may have apparently been in her original endowment, there is generally room for improvement. The means and facilities for bringing about these improvements, however, are supplied from this same source, and require only the genius and energy of man to make them effective.

If Jack Frost knew how unwelcome he was he would not presume to infringe upon our hospitality.

STEPHEN LEACOCK

A Road Map of the New Mentality

Progress of the Human Mind Reduced to Decimals

I have been busily engaged of late in preparing a Manual of the Human Mind. I give here some parts and sections of it as far as it is yet completed. The final edition will be bound in half-calf for the ordinary readers, with a university education for scholars (complete calf), and for the rich an edition de luxe sold at an addition de luxe.

For ever so many centuries the Human Mind has been more or less dormant. It was known that it was there. But just where it was and what it did and how it did it was a matter of which nothing, if anything, was known.

All this has changed.

It is generally admitted that the human mind was first discovered about four years ago by a brilliant writer of that period. His article "Have We a Subconscious Ego?" was immediately followed by a striking discussion under the title "Are We Top Side Up?" This brought forth a whole series of popular articles and books under such titles as "Willing and Being," "How to Think," "Existence as a Mode of Thought," "The Super Self," and such special technical studies as "The Mentality of the Hen" and the "Thought Process of the Potato."

Mind Waves and Brain Storms.

Everybody's mind is now analyzed. People who used to be content with the humblest of plain thinking or with none at all, now resolve themselves into "reflexes" and "complexes" and "impulses." Some of our brightest people are kleptomaniacs, paranoiacs, agoraphobists, and dolomites. Some of the biggest business men have failed in the intelligence test and have been ruined. A lot of our criminals turn out not to be criminals at all, but merely to have a reaction for another persons's money.

Mind waves and brain storms blow about like sand in the Sahara. Things good and bad come at us like an infection. We live in deadly fear that we may catch bolshevism, as we might a cold. Everything rushes at us in "waves." A New York chauffeur chokes his employer, and it is called a "crime wave." The man is rushed off to a rest house to have his complex removed, while the people leave the city in the flood. Then they hear that a repentant burglar has given a million dollars to Trinity church, and that a moral wave is flooding over the city; and they come back.

There is now not only psychology in the academic or college sense, but also a psychology of business, psychology of education, a psychology of salesmanship, a psychology of religion, a psychology of boxing, a psychology of investment, and a psychology of playing the banjo. In short, everybody has his. In all our great cities there are already, or soon will will be signs that read "Psychologist—Open Day and Night."

Testing the Raw Mind.

The real meaning of this is found in the fact that we are now able to use psychology as a guide or test in a thousand and one practical matters. In the old days there was no way of knowing what a man could do except by trying him out. Now we don't have to do this at all. We merely measure the shape of his head and see whether, by native intelligence, he can, immediately and off-hand, pronounce TH backward.

Let us see then what the intelligence test means.

If we wish to realize how slipshod is the thinking of persons is apparently sound mental condition, we have only to ask any man of our acquaintance how much is 13 times 147. The large probability is that he doesn't know. Or let us ask any casual acquaintance how many cubic centimeters there are in the Woolworth building and his estimate will be found to be absurdly incorrect.

Compare with this the operation of the trained, keened mind such as is being fashioned by the new psychology.

Exterminator of Incompetence.

I questioned a man of this sort the other day. I said "You have been in such and such an apartment building, have you not? He answered, with characteristic activity of mind. "Yes." "And did you, on entering such an such a hall in the building, observe such and such a gold fish in such and such a bowl?" He told me that he had not only observed it, but had counted its scales and given it a peanut. My readers, moreover, will readily believe me when I say that the man in question is the head of one of the biggest corporations in the city.

But for the persons who lack the proper training and habits of observation the intelligence test acts as a ruthless exterminator of incompetence.

Here are a few little samples of what I mean, taken from the actual test questions used by one of our leading practical psychologists:

Intelligence Test for Bank Managerss

1. Can you knit?
2. Name your favorite flower.
3. Which is the larger end of a safety pin?
4. How many wheels has a Pullman car?
5. If a spider wants to walk from the top corner of a room to the bottom corner farthest away, will he follow the angular diameter of the floor, or will his path be an obese tabloid?

It is the last question, I may say, which generally gets them. Already four of the principal bank executives in New York have lost their positions over it.

Let us put beside this from the same source another interesting set of questions:

Test for Hospital Nurses.

1. What is the difference between a federal reserve note and a federal reserve bank note?
2. Suppose that a general buoyancy had led you to expand beyond what you considered prudent and you felt that you must deflate, what would you take in first?

I may say that of seventeen trained nurses only one was ablt to answer these questions, especially No. 2, without wandering from the essential meaning; even the odd one hardly counted, as she turned out to be engaged to a bank teller.

Still more striking is the application of the intelligence test to the plain manual occupations. I give an example:

Test for Marine Engineers.

1. Are you inclined to sympathize with Schiaparelli's estimate of Dante's "Divina Comedia"?
2. Luigi Pulci, it has been said, voices the last strains of the age of the troubadours. Do you get this?
3. Alfieri must always be regarded rather as the last of the cinquecentisti than as the first of the moderns. How do you stand on that?

Let us put beside this as an interesting parallel the following:

Professors of Comparative Literature

1. How much pressure per square inch of surface do you think a safe load to carry?
2. Suppose that, just as you were getting to work, you got trouble somewhere in your flow of gas, so that that set up a back-firing in your tubes, would you attribute this to a defect in your feed?
3. Suppose that you were going along late at night at moderate speed, and properly lighted up, and you saw a red light directly in front of you, would you stop or go right on?

"Not criminals at all, but merely have a reaction for another person's money."

From all of which it appears that by means of the Intelligence Test we have now an infallible means of knowing just what a man amounts to. If we want to know whether or not an applicant is suited for a job we have only to send him to the laboratory of a practicing psychologist, and we can find out in fifteen minutes all about him. How vastly superior this is to the old and cumbrous methods. Let me quote as a typical example the case of letters of recommendation. Compare the old style and the new.

Old-Fashioned Letter of Recommendation Given to a Young Man Seeking a Position in the Milling Business.

To Messrs. Smith, Brown & Co.

Dear Sirs,

I should like to recommend to you very cordially my youn gfriend Mr. O'Hagan. I have known him since his boyhood, and can assure you that he is an estimable young man who has had a good schooling and is willing to work. When I add that he was raised right here in Jefferson county, and that his mother was one of the Gerrigies, I feel sure that you will look after him.

We have had an open fall here, but a good cold spell has set in since New Year's.

Very faithfully,

.....

New-Fashioned Letter of Estimation as Supplied by a Psychological Laboratory Expert.

Messrs. Smith, Brown & Co.

Dear Sirs,

This certifies that I have carefully examined Mr. O'Hagan in my laboratory for fifteen minutes and submitted him to various measurements and tests, with a view to estimating his fitness for the Milling Business. He measures 198 centimeters from end to end, of which his head represents 7.1 per cent. We regard this as too large a proportion of head for a miller. His angle of vision is 47, which is more than he will need in your business. We applied various stimuli to the lobes of his neck and got very little reaction from him. We regret to say that he does not know what 17 times 19 is; and we further found that, after being in our laboratory for fifteen minutes, he had failed to notice the number of panes in the windows.

On the whole, we think him better suited for social service or university work or for the church than for a position of responsibility.

Very truly,

PLS. We enclose our statement of account for 17 tests at $5.00 per test.

The value of the system, however, does not stop even at this point. It is proving itself an invaluable aid in weeding out incompetent men who have perhaps escaped detection for many years. For example, a firm in Kansas were anxious to judge the selling power of their salesman. An intelligence test applied to their staff showed that not a single one knew how to sell anything. The firm had been misled for many years by the mere fact that these men were successfully placing orders.

One of the Kalamazoo Celery companies, anxious to develop the psychology of growing celery, instituted a searching test on fourteen of their gardeners. It appeared that only four of them had ever heard of psychology and only one of them could spell it. Yet here were men who had been professing to grow celery for twenty years!

Just Wait.

(York News-Times.)

The Boston councilman who wishes to remove Webster's dictionary from the library shelves has tackled a heavy subject. Quite apart from that, however, there are, by general consent, a number of very good words in Webster and it seems unjust to dismiss them all because one interloper offends this simple man.

One suspects some ulterior, and possibly political motive. The councilman, it may chance, has only just discovered the work and believes Mr. Webster is a candidate for office, guilty of a stupendous and treasonable piece of campaign literature, insidiously placed on the respectable shelves of the public library under the guise of a dictionary.

Else he is a subtle foe to Senator Lodge and hopes to thwart that antediluvian philosopher in his campaign for election by removing from his reach his entire source of inspiration and leaving him speechless.

Even so, separating Boston from Webster is no man's job. Just wait until Boston looks into the suspected volume and identifies the exact term in which it desires to phrase its comment. It should be good.

Highway Safety.

(Nebraska City News)

Secretary Hoover has called a conference of representatives of eight associations connected with automobile, insurance and other business interests, to see if something can not be done on a nation-wide scale to reduce the number of highway accidents.

The accidents that are occurring on the highways daily constitute a national disgrace, and they make the use of the public streets increasingly unsafe. It is a matter, however, that must be controlled largely by local authorities.

The public would not tolerate it if a great number of irresponsible and reckless people were allowed to operate railroad locomotives. But hundreds of thousands of such people are turned loose on the highways. Strict examination of applicants for automobile licenses reduces the number of daredevils somewhat, but the most reckless driver may be able to show excellent skill when his driving abilities are being tested. What is needed is such strict enforcement that speeders will be removed from the roads for periods sufficient to cultivate their caution.

Other Worlds At Hand.

BY GARRETT P. SERVICE.
Famous Astronemer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Is it the planets Jupiter and Mars in the early morning hours, one in the Virgin, the other in Sagittarius, that I see?—J. P. H."

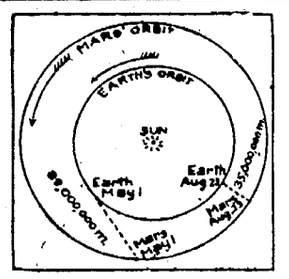
The planet that you see near Spica, the chief start of Virgo, is Saturn. It lies east of the star, nearly seven degrees. But it is slowly moving westward so as to diminish the apparent distance betwen them. In July, however, it will reverse its course and slowly increase its distance from Spica.

On the 18th-19th of April, Saturn is in opposition to the sun, and accordingly in the best position for observation. You ought to see its rings with a telescope. If you have no telescope of your own, and no entree to an observatory, some "street telescope" man should be able to show you Saturn's rings—a sight that is cheap at the price usually demanded.

The broad, softly glowing ringso for a luminous eclipse, crossing the ball of the planet south of its equator, and disappearing behind the ball on the north. It is the north surface of the flat rings that is now presented toward us.

The planet that you speak of as being in Sagittarius, though it is actually in Ophiuchus, to the west of Sagittarius, is not Mars, but Jupiter. It lies eastward from the great red star Antares in Scorpio.

Just about now Jupiter rises by 10 p. m., and, like Saturn, it is in good position for telescope observation. It will be in opposition to the sun on June 5th, and its splendid colored bolts make one of the most gorgeous of telescope views; only amateur observers must not expect too much. It requires some training of the eye and some special knowledge of what one is looking at to appreciate the real the real beauty and wondor of these celestial sights.



Jupiter appears to be a forming world, yet in a half-nebulous, half-molten state, with great convulsions going on in its interior, and affecting the appearance of its marvelously variegated and changeable surface. There is one spot, visible intermittently since 1878, which looks as if it may be Nature's first, rough sketch of a future continent on that giant world.

Mars is away east of Sagittarius in Capricornus. Its red color should identify it; there is no other red planet. Although it is continually moving eastward in its orbit, the earth is slowly overtaking it, travelling on an inside line. In the meanwhile the earth and Mars are drawing nearer one another, in the way shown in our diagram.

Mars' orbit is very eccentric compared with the earth's, and the opposition occurs when Mars is at the point of its orbit nearest the sun, which brings it so much nearer to the earth, since the latter is then between Mars and the sun. At opposition Mars will rise about 6 o'clock and cross the meridian at 12 p. m., and nobody will fail to look more than once at its red glare in the midnight sky.

PATERNALISTIC EVIL.

(Falls City Journal.)

The attitude of some individuals regarding the Muscle Shoals project is interesting as it indicates how many people are turning to the government for aid in their private business.

The president of the American Nitrogen Products company, large producers of fertilizers, stated yesterday that if Muscle Shoals was to be leased to a private individual that the government should grant a subsidy to present manufacturers to protect them against the cheap power at Muscle Shoals.

The man in business must take his chance regarding the establishment of better and cheaper processes. That is part of the penalty of being in business. He cannot, in justice ask government aid. We are traveling so far on the trend of paternalistic government that a business man of the stand of Mr. Graff unblushingly says that the manufacturers of fertilizer should receive a government subsidy.

A merchant would not expect government aid, if his competitor discovered a way to do business so cheaply as to force him out of business. Instead he would start to work to devise a way to lower costs himself. The fertilizer manufacturers are not entitled to any more consideration. If they cannot produce as cheaply as someone else, they must and should be forced out of business. True, it would be hard on them. But to do otherwise would entail a hardship of even greater proportions on the public.

It is competition that forces business to be aggressive and to be forever working and planning to cut costs and give service. And this acts to the benefit of the public in lowering prices. The new proposal would tend to destroy this practice. It would remove the incentive to strive for lower costs and consequently for lower prices to the public.

COOLIDGE OR CONGRESS.

A unique situation has been precipitated by this clash between President Calvin Coolidge and congress.

For the fifth consecutive time congress, in both branches of which there is a majority of republicans, has rejected the president's leadership. By refusing to redraft the Johnson immigration bill to meet the wishes of Mr. Coolidge, with particular reference to the date when the exclusion clause shall become effective, the house by a most decisive vote indicates its lack of sympathy with the president.

There have been few instances in American history where congress has so emphatically and consistently refused to follow the president. Mr. Coolidge in five definite and very specific particulars attempted to enforce his will on congress, and to assume the leadership which naturally would be conceded to the president whose party was in control of congress. He has failed in every instance. In every case, congress followed its own wishes, which were diametrically opposed to those of the president and his advisers.

Andrew Johnson faced a very similar situation. But Andrew Johnson was not a popular president. He was continually at war with his own party, and with the members of his party in congress. Contrast this with Calvin Coolidge, who has carried every state but two by overwhelming majorities in every primary contest as a candidate for the republican nomination at the 1924 convention at Cleveland.

Grover Cleveland found himself fiercely opposed at times by the members of his own party in congress but with notable success he met his opposition and was successful in more instances than he was defeated. In the waning years of the Taft administration, the president was unpopular, but Taft still managed to exercise control on the major issues.

President Coolidge's failure with congress is without a precedent in American political history. There must be much unexplained history why the present congress refuses to follow the lead of the man, which its majority membership again hopes to make president.

In formulating the program upon which he expected to go before the country, President Coolidge centered his efforts upon two matters. Both were vital parts of the tax problem.

President Coolidge presented his tax program to the country through what is known as the Mellon tax revision program. The house manhandled it fearfully. After first approving the democratic substitute, the Longworth compromise measure was finally sent to the senate. In the upper chamber the president fared as badly.

In his first message, Mr. Coolidge made known his hostility to the bonus. Yet, in a modified form, the bonus measure passed the house by an overwhelming vote and nearly as sweeping victory in the senate.

There have been distinctive tests of strength since then. Earlier in the various investigations conducted by congress, the president let it be known that the sweep which some of the inquiries were taking was distasteful to him. Congress landed solidly on him and finally forced the resignation of some of the cabinet members. Then along came the Johnson immigration bill, with its exclusion provision which was so obnoxious to the president. Mr. Coolidge pleaded with congress to eliminate that clause. Failing in that he sought to have the date when it was to become effective delayed. Again he was unsuccessful.

Congressional action certainly does not reflect the vote revealed in the primary election. Apparently the close-up view of Coolidge in Washington, which various republican members of congress are able to secure, is not so alluring as that at greater distance. Or, perhaps congress itself, recognizes that the flattering vote which has been given the president is not in reality an endorsement of the president and his policies but is the result of the fact that the voers have no other means of expression than to vote for Coolidge. There has been nothing in the candidacies of Bob LaFollette and Hiram Johnson to cause the great mass of voters in this country to break from moorings. The voters cast their ballots for Calvin Coolidge, not because they approve of his policies, but because they did not have anyone else to vote for.

The situation challenges attention.

If President Coolidge cannot command the confidence of the members of his own party in congress sufficiently to exercise the leadership he is expected to assume, shall this country entrust its troublesome problems to him? A continuance of congressional insurgency and revolt means that America is to be tossed and pulled around by the conflicting tides and sentiment in congress.

LINCOLN'S WIDE STREETS.

In the light of moden automobile traffic problems which are pressing for solution upon all the cities of the United States, the people of Lincoln have reason for self-congratulation upon the fact that these matters are less perplexing here than in many other places because of the width and regularity of thoroughfares in the main part of the city. It seems providential—certainly it cannot be regarded as a manifestation of extraordinary foresight—that the founders of Lincoln sixty-seven years ago laid out the original townsite with streets 100 to 120 feet wide placed only 300 feet distant from each other.

Only the cheapness of land on the western prairies in those days justified what probably was regarded by some of the early settlers as an extravagant waste of space for streets in the newly located capital of Nebraska. The automobile was not even dreamed of at that time, and no expectation existed that horse vehicle traffic, with street cars thrown in, would ever grow to such proportions as might tax the capacity of the city's highways.

The chief consideration in making the streets so wide undoubtedly was to allow for ample driveways and liberal sidewalk and park areas bordering them on each side. No doubt, the men who platted Lincoln visualized the future community with long perspectives of shade trees and grass plots lining the residential avenues—just as we see them—and with broad walks in the business district to accommodate crowds of shoppers and sightseers without undue congestion.

But the advent of the automobile some twenty years ago and its development in recent years as a universal means of locomotion have produced an entirely new situation, which could not possibly have been foreseen in 1867 or for a long time thereafter. Nowadays, it is a question of finding enough space in the streets to accommodate the vast and ever-increasing number of motor vehicles.

Lincoln, with her wide streets evenly distributed in the ratio of thirteen to each mile, is much more fortunate than most of the large cities, where streets have been evolved from old trails and cow paths, without particular plan or forethought, in many cases not more than 40 to 60 feet wide, running promiscuously here and there, winding and curving in every direction.

It has been lamented at times that the Nebraska capital was not laid out on a scheme similar to Washington, D. C., with main highways radiating in all directions from a central point. Under the old order of things, that would have been an ideal arrangement. But since the automobile has come into such general use, its desirability is questionable.

Right now, Detroit is wrestling with the problem of how to handle an enormous volume of motor vehicle traffic in her main business district, covering an area about one mile square. The principal thoroughfares there converge, as they do in Washington, like the spokes of a wheel, with the result that the city pours its huge tide of vehicular, street car and pedestrian travel every morning and evening along a few main routes, which are becoming hopelessly congested.

To relieve the situation, it has been found necessary to prohibit parking of automobiles within the district mentioned at any time during the day. Another measure now being considered is to require crosstown traffic to stay outside the central district and keep to outlying streets. The first expedient has done away with the acute congestion and enabled street cars, owned and operated by the city, to move on regular schedules, avoiding the former delays. With parking eliminated, automobiles run three abreast on each side of the street, thus eliminating delays and confusion caused by drivers backing out from the curb into streams of moving traffic.

Lincoln is fortunate in having a geographical layout which tends to distribute traffic over many streets. People driving down town in the morning and back in the evening can choose any one of a large number of possible routes, all of approximately equal distance. The parking problem exists here, as elsewhere, but in less acute form. Street cars are not held up by automobiles in the downtown area, there being plenty of room for both.

While it has been found advisable to widen Thirteenth street in order to take care of the large volume of traffic, this will be done without moving back any buildings. The additional street space needed is to be supplied merely by diminishing the width of sidewalks, which will still be broad enough to take care of pedestrian traffic. In other cities, it has been found necessary to cut off the fronts of buildings along narrow streets, in order to increase their width, or to remove the buildings entirely.

MOTHER'S DAY.

This is the eleventh nation-wide observance of Mother's Day.

In 1913 congress formally proclaimed the second Sunday in May as the day when American men publicly observe the memory of Mother.

Each year since then, in most communities of this country, increasing thought and attention has been given Mother's day until it has assumed a much larger significance in the calendar of events. In many of the larger cities of the country, special programs have been arranged, while in every pulpit of the land, reference is made to the crowning glory of womanhood.

Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia originated Mother's day. Her mother died in May 1906, and the following year in June 1907, she and a friend observed Mother's day. From that humble beginning has come one of the finest traditions of the American people.

Throughout this country today, millions of men will pause from their activities of the day in reflection and grateful appreciation of the memory of mother. There is no sweeter word in the English language than mother. Time adds to its beauty. Only the years can give it the poignant sweetness of its magical echo.

THE HIGH SCHOOL DEBATES.

For the last three days, district champions of the Nebraska High School Debating league have been settling the question of superiority.

The tournament to pick the grand champion in the forensic contests, which have occupied the attention of Nebraska high schools during the winter, was a big success. Eleven district champions competed and each team was a distinct credit to its school and its district. Increased interest in the debates was reflected in he large atendance which featured most of the contests.

There was an unusually high standard of excellence set by the debates. The high school students discussed the immigration question with an understanding and knowledge that reflects the utmost credit upon them. Geneva high school, in winning the championship, maintains her splendid record for proficiency in debate.

THE BENEFICENCE OR NATURE.

Certainly Nature is bountiful. Upon the surface of the earth, hidden in its interior or in the atmosphere surrounding it, is to be found everything essential for the nourishment or comfort of mankind. But Nature is God and among the first maxims imbibed by youth is that "God helps those who help themselves." So ever since man migrated from the garden of Eden he has been seeking and finding ways of helping himself.

The first white men who set foot upon the Hawaiian islands were quite firmly convinced that the original habitation of Adam could have been no more alluringly entrancing than the isles upon which they had fallen. Set in tropic seas, with an apparently unending May temperature and luxuriant vegetation capable of supplying one's every need in the matter of sustenance, it was thought little if any improvement could be made.

And this was the opinion of the world for very many years. Finally, however, it was found advisable to bring into play the ingenuity of man to insure in many parts of the islands the necessary irrigation waters for the fields of sugar cane, rice or other native products. While copious rains fall in the high mountains, it is stated some of the low lands do not get a sufficient amount of water during the growing season to supply the crops with moisture. Irrigation engineers have therefore gone into the mountain recesses and have built flumes and conduits wherewith to carry the surplus waters to where they will do the most good.

Millions of dollars have been expended on irrigation systems of the islands. On the island of Maui a number of sugar companies formed a co-operative organization which developed a system which alone cost over a million. It brings the rains from the mountain slopes of East Maui through a series of canals and tunnels over forty miles long onto the cane fields of the richly fertile slopes. The first ditch was constructed a little over twenty years ago, but since then, the need for water becoming greater, the ditches have penetrated many miles further into the mountains. According to the Scientific American the latest Kauigoa ditch consists almost entirely of tunnels through the solid rock, for out of 23,500 feet only 700 feet ofthis new construction consists of open ditch. The ditches are six feet wide and the tunnels seven feet high.

One of the most interesting features of the Hawaiian irrigation system is the manner in which it is supplemented by electricity. The storage facilities of the mountain regions are limited, because of the precipitous character of those areas, but beneath the fields where water is required are great subterranean reservoirs. In their rush to the lower levels the mountain waters are required to generate electrical power, which is transmitted to such points as it is needed and there it is used in pumping millions of gallons of water daily. One plantation alone has pumping facilities capable of raising thirty millions of gallons each day.

So it will be seen that no matter how generous Nature may have apparently been in her original endowment, there is generally room for improvement. The means and facilities for bringing about these improvements, however, are supplied from this same source, and require only the genius and energy of man to make them effective.

If Jack Frost knew how unwelcome he was he would not presume to infringe upon our hospitality.

STEPHEN LEACOCK

A Road Map of the New Mentality

Progress of the Human Mind Reduced to Decimals

"Not criminals at all, but merely have a reaction for another person's money."

I have been busily engaged of late in preparing a Manual of the Human Mind. I give here some parts and sections of it as far as it is yet completed. The final edition will be bound in half-calf for the ordinary readers, with a university education for scholars (complete calf), and for the rich an edition de luxe sold at an addition de luxe.

For ever so many centuries the Human Mind has been more or less dormant. It was known that it was there. But just where it was and what it did and how it did it was a matter of which nothing, if anything, was known.

All this has changed.

It is generally admitted that the human mind was first discovered about four years ago by a brilliant writer of that period. His article "Have We a Subconscious Ego?" was immediately followed by a striking discussion under the title "Are We Top Side Up?" This brought forth a whole series of popular articles and books under such titles as "Willing and Being," "How to Think," "Existence as a Mode of Thought," "The Super Self," and such special technical studies as "The Mentality of the Hen" and the "Thought Process of the Potato."

Mind Waves and Brain Storms.

Everybody's mind is now analyzed. People who used to be content with the humblest of plain thinking or with none at all, now resolve themselves into "reflexes" and "complexes" and "impulses." Some of our brightest people are kleptomaniacs, paranoiacs, agoraphobists, and dolomites. Some of the biggest business men have failed in the intelligence test and have been ruined. A lot of our criminals turn out not to be criminals at all, but merely to have a reaction for another persons's money.

Mind waves and brain storms blow about like sand in the Sahara. Things good and bad come at us like an infection. We live in deadly fear that we may catch bolshevism, as we might a cold. Everything rushes at us in "waves." A New York chauffeur chokes his employer, and it is called a "crime wave." The man is rushed off to a rest house to have his complex removed, while the people leave the city in the flood. Then they hear that a repentant burglar has given a million dollars to Trinity church, and that a moral wave is flooding over the city; and they come back.

There is now not only psychology in the academic or college sense, but also a psychology of business, psychology of education, a psychology of salesmanship, a psychology of religion, a psychology of boxing, a psychology of investment, and a psychology of playing the banjo. In short, everybody has his. In all our great cities there are already, or soon will will be signs that read "Psychologist —Open Day and Night."

Testing the Raw Mind.

The real meaning of this is found in the fact that we are now able to use psychology as a guide or test in a thousand and one practical matters. In the old days there was no way of knowing what a man could do except by trying him out. Now we don't have to do this at all. We merely measure the shape of his head and see whether, by native intelligence, he can, immediately and off-hand, pronounce TH backward.

Let us see then what the intelligence test means.

If we wish to realize how slipshod is the thinking of persons is apparently sound mental condition, we have only to ask any man of our acquaintance how much is 13 times 147. The large probability is that he doesn't know. Or let us ask any casual acquaintance how many cubic centimeters there are in the Woolworth building and his estimate will be found to be absurdly incorrect.

Compare with this the operation of the trained, keened mind such as is being fashioned by the new psychology.

Exterminator of Incompetence.

I questioned a man of this sort the other day. I said "You have been in such and such an apartment building, have you not? He answered, with characteristic activity of mind. "Yes." "And did you, on entering such an such a hall in the building, observe such and such a gold fish in such and such a bowl?" He told me that he had not only observed it, but had counted its scales and given it a peanut. My readers, moreover, will readily believe me when I say that the man in question is the head of one of the biggest corporations in the city.

But for the persons who lack the proper training and habits of observation the intelligence test acts as a ruthless exterminator of incompetence.

Here are a few little samples of what I mean, taken from the actual test questions used by one of our leading practical psychologists:

Intelligence Test for Bank Managerss

1. Can you knit?
2. Name your favorite flower.
3. Which is the larger end of a safety pin?
4. How many wheels has a Pullman car?
5. If a spider wants to walk from the top corner of a room to the bottom corner farthest away, will he follow the angular diameter of the floor, or will his path be an obese tabloid?

It is the last question, I may say, which generally gets them. Already four of the principal bank executives in New York have lost their positions over it.

Let us put beside this from the same source another interesting set of questions:

Test for Hospital Nurses.

1. What is the difference between a federal reserve note and a federal reserve bank note?
2. Suppose that a general buoyancy had led you to expand beyond what you considered prudent and you felt that you must deflate, what would you take in first?

I may say that of seventeen trained nurses only one was ablt to answer these questions, especially No. 2, without wandering from the essential meaning; even the odd one hardly counted, as she turned out to be engaged to a bank teller.

Still more striking is the application of the intelligence test to the plain manual occupations. I give an example:

Test for Marine Engineers.

1. Are you inclined to sympathize with Schiaparelli's estimate of Dante's "Divina Comedia"?
2. Luigi Pulci, it has been said, voices the last strains of the age of the troubadours. Do you get this?
3. Alfieri must always be regarded rather as the last of the cinquecentisti than as the first of the moderns. How do you stand on that?

Let us put beside this as an interesting parallel the following:

Professors of Comparative Literature

1. How much pressure per square inch of surface do you think a safe load to carry?
2. Suppose that, just as you were getting to work, you got trouble somewhere in your flow of gas, so that that set up a back-firing in your tubes, would you attribute this to a defect in your feed?
3. Suppose that you were going along late at night at moderate speed, and properly lighted up, and you saw a red light directly in front of you, would you stop or go right on?

From all of which it appears that by means of the Intelligence Test we have now an infallible means of knowing just what a man amounts to. If we want to know whether or not an applicant is suited for a job we have only to send him to the laboratory of a practicing psychologist, and we can find out in fifteen minutes all about him. How vastly superior this is to the old and cumbrous methods. Let me quote as a typical example the case of letters of recommendation. Compare the old style and the new.

Old-Fashioned Letter of Recommendation Given to a Young Man Seeking a Position in the Milling Business.

To Messrs. Smith, Brown & Co.

Dear Sirs,

I should like to recommend to you very cordially my youn gfriend Mr. O'Hagan. I have known him since his boyhood, and can assure you that he is an estimable young man who has had a good schooling and is willing to work. When I add that he was raised right here in Jefferson county, and that his mother was one of the Gerrigles, I feel sure that you will look after him.

We have had an open fall here, but a good cold spell has set in since New Year's.

Very faithfully,

.....

New-Fashioned Letter of Estimation as Supplied by a Psychological Laboratory Expert.

Messrs. Smith, Brown & Co.

Dear Sirs,

This certifies that I have carefully examined Mr. O'Hagan in my laboratory for fifteen minutes and submitted him to various measurements and tests, with a view to estimating his fitness for the Milling Business. He measures 198 centimeters from end to end, of which his head represents 7.1 per cent. We regard this as too large a proportion of head for a miller. His angle of vision is 47, which is more than he will need in your business. We applied various stimuli to the lobes of his neck and got very little reaction from him. We regret to say that he does not know what 17 times 19 is; and we further found that, after being in our laboratory for fifteen minutes, he had failed to notice the number of panes in the windows.

On the whole, we think him better suited for social service or university work or for the church than for a position of responsibility.

Very truly,

PLS. We enclose our statement of account for 17 tests at $5.00 per test.

The value of the system, however, does not stop even at this point. It is proving itself an invaluable aid in weeding out incompetent men who have perhaps escaped detection for many years. For example, a firm in Kansas were anxious to judge the selling power of their salesman. An intelligence test applied to their staff showed that not a singfle one knew how to sell anything. The firm had been misled for many years by the mere fact that these men were successfully placing orders.

One of the Kalamazoo Celery companies, anxious to develop the psychology of growing celery, instituted a searching test on fourteen of their gardeners. It appeared that only four of them had ever heard of psychology and only one of them could spell it. Yet here were men who had been professing to grow celery for twenty years!

Just Wait.

(York News-Times.)

The Boston councilman who wishes to remove Webster's dictionary from the library shelves has tackled a heavy subject. Quite apart from that, however, there are, by general consent, a number of very good words in Webster and it seems unjust to dismiss them all because one interloper offends this simple man.

One suspects some ulterior, and possibly political motive. The councilman, it may chance, has only just discovered the work and believes Mr. Webster is a candidate for office, guilty of a stupendous and treasonable piece of campaign literature, insidiously placed on the respectable shelves of the public library under the guise of a dictionary.

Else he is a subtle foe to Senator Lodge and hopes to thwart that antediluvian philosopher in his campaign for election by removing from his reach his entire source of inspiration and leaving him speechless.

Even so, separating Boston from Webster is no man's job. Just wait until Boston looks into the suspected volume and identifies the exact term in which it desires to phrase its comment. It should be good.

Highway Safety.

(Nebraska City News)

Secretary Hoover has called a conference of representatives of eight associations connected with automobile, insurance and other business interests, to see if something can not be done on a nation-wide scale to reduce the number of highway accidents.

The accidents that are occurring on the highways daily constitute a national disgrace, and they make the use of the public streets increasingly unsafe. It is a matter, however, that must be controlled largely by local authorities.

The public would not tolerate it if a great number of irresponsible and reckless people were allowed to operate railroad locomotives. But hundreds of thousands of such people are turned loose on the highways. Strict examination of applicants for automobile licenses reduces the number of daredevils somewhat, but the most reckless driver may be able to show excellent skill when his driving abilities are being tested. What is needed is such strict enforcement that speeders will be removed from the roads for periods sufficient to cultivate their caution.

Other Worlds At Hand.

BY GARRETT P. SERVICE.
Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular interest.

"Is it the planets Jupiter and Mars in the early morning hours, one in the Virgin, the other in Sagittarius, that I see?—J. P. H."

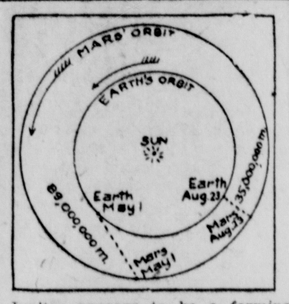
The planet that you see near Spica, the chief start of Virgo, is Saturn. It lies east of the star, nearly seven degrees. But it is slowly moving westward so as to diminish the apparent distance betwen them. In July, however, it will reverse its course and slowly increase its distance from Spica.

On the 18th-19th of April, Saturn is in opposition to the sun, and accordingly in the best position for observation. You ought to see its rings with a telescope. If you have no telescope of your own, and no entree to an observatory, some "street telescope" man should be able to show you Saturn's rings—a sight that is cheap at the price usually demanded.

The broad, softly glowing ringse for a luminous eclipse, crossing the ball of the planet south of its equator, and disappearing behind the ball on the north. It is the north surface of the flat rings that is now presented toward us.

The planet that you speak of as being in Sagittarius, though it is actually in Ophiuchus, to the west of Sagittarius, is not Mars, but Jupiter. It lies eastward from the great red star Antares in Scorpio.

Just about now Jupiter rises by 10 p. m., and, like Saturn, it is in good position for telescope observation. It will be in opposition to the sun on June 5th, and its splendid colored bolts make one of the most gorgeous of telescope views; only amateur observers must not expect too much. It requires some training of the eye and some special knowledge of what one is looking at to appreciate the real the real beauty and wonder of these celestial sights.



Jupiter appears to be a forming world, yet in a half-nebulous, half-molten state, with great convulsions going on in its interior, and affecting the appearance of its marvelously variegated and changeable surface. There is one spot, visible intermittently since 1878, which looks as if it may be Nature's first, rough sketch of a future continent on that giant world.

Mars is away east of Sagittarius in Capricornus. Its red color should identify it; there is no other red planet. Although it is continually moving eastward in its orbit, the earth is slowly overtaking it, travelling on an inside line. In the meanw hile the earth and Mars are drawing nearer one another, in the way shown in our diagram.

Mars' orbit is very eccentric compared with the earth's, and the opposition occurs when Mars is at the point of its orbit nearest the sun, which brings it so much nearer to the earth, since the latter is then between Mars and the sun. At opposition Mars will rise about 6 o'clock and cross the meridian at 12 p. m., and nobody will fail to look more than once at its red glare in the midnight sky.

PATERNALISTIC EVIL.

(Falls City Journal.)

The attitude of some individuals regarding the Muscle Shoals project is interesting as it indicates how many people are turning to the government for aid in their private business.

The president of the American Nitrogen Products company, large producers of fertilizers, stated yesterday that if Muscle Shoals was to be leased to a private individual that the government should grant a subsidy to present manufacturers to protect them against the cheap power at Muscle Shoals.

The man in business must take his chance regarding the establishment of better and cheaper processes. That is part of the penalty of being in business. He cannot, in justice ask government aid. We are traveling so far on the trend of paternalistic government that a business man of the stand of Mr. Graff unblushingly says that the manufacturers of fertilizer should receive a government subsidy.

A merchant would not expect government aid, if his competitor discovered a way to do business so cheaply as to force him out of business. Instead he would start to work to devise a way to lower costs himself. The fertilizer manufacturers are not entitled to any more consideration. If they cannot produce as cheaply as someone else, they must and should be forced out of business. True, it would be hard on them. But to do otherwise would entail a hardship of even greater proportions on the public.

It is competition that forces business to be aggressive and to be forever working and planning to cut costs and give service. And this acts to the benefit of the public in lowering prices. The new proposal would tend to destroy this practice. It would remove the incentive to strive for lower costs and consequently for lower prices to the public.

Pimples

BLOOD impurities are pumped by the heart into the face That is what causes that grainy appearance, that muddiness, sallowness, pimples, blackheads, acne, red spots, and that impossible "something" which no face cream, massage, or face powder can cover up or beautify! The foundation for a beautiful skin simply is not there, and no face treatment can give it to you But increase your red-blood cells,—and quickly the ruby tint of purity begins to glow in the cheeks, the complexion becomes venus-like and immaculate! Try it It will do it every time. S S S builds the red blood cells you need for a beautiful complexion Begin using S S S at once, and give yourself what you have been working for, for years

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

COTNER NOTES

The Y. M. C. A. retreat will be held May 9 to 11, inclusive, at Camp Strader, Crete. President Cobbey and various members of the board of faculty advisors will meet with the men.

The pageant written by Frances Newens '25, will be produced under the direction of Mrs. Malcolm as a part of the alumni day celebration during commencement week.

The following teachers have been placed by the teachers' bureau this week: Hazel Robb, sixth grade in Bethany; Leo McCullough, sixth grade in Havelock; Rilla Williams, home economics, Indianola, Neb., Helen Sherman, Bartley, Vera Cleland, Holdrege.

The 1924 Bulldog is off the press and is an unusually attractive number.

Cotner students showed their appreciation of the work of the faculty in the chapel hour on Thursday morning with a special convocation. The faculty were escorted to the platform and were presented with roses in expression of appreciation to each one. This was one of the most beautiful programs of the college year.

Mrs. R. L. Murdock, of North Platte, visited her daughter this week.

In the recent state typist contest held in Omaha, Ralph Rowland ranked third in the junior class and Esther Nason fifth in the champion class. Reports are that about 300 competed.

About 300 students attended annual "sneak day" planned by the senior class which was held on Wednesday at Horkey's park. In spite of the disagreeable weather a very enjoyable time was had. Boating, canoeing and athletic sports in the afternoon were the entertainment features.

Rev. I. Winters, Funk, '13, pastor at Jewel, Kan., is a campus visitor bringing with him four high school seniors from his church, who are planning to enter Cotner next year.

Students of Dean J. K. Shellenberger in Old Testament history and the department of philosophy expressed their appreciation of his work by redecorating his private office. New drapes and curtains soften the light. The wood work and walls were refinished and other comforts added which will contribute a great deal to the attractiveness of his room.

Mrs. Raymond Aylsworth and Mrs. Dora Winter wil appear on the program of the Woman's society of the Tabernacle Christian church on May 15. Mrs. Alysworth will give a musical program and Mrs. Winter will talk on "Cotner's Output."

Separate convocations were held for men and women Tuesday morning. The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. had charge of the periods. The men gathered in the library where the following program was given:

What Cotner Has Meant to Me, Paul Nichols, Dick McCann.

The Cotner Spirit, Dillard Lessley.

Dignity of the Small School, Paul Kraybill.

Boosting Cotner, Dean Duncan.

Apply Your Training at Home," Dr. Aylsworth.

The women met in the chapel, Ruth Moss leading the singing and Mildred Taylor, president of the Y. W., conducting the devotions. Plans were given for the Y. W. retreat which is to be held in about two weeks at Camp Kiwanis for girls at Milford, Nebraska. Plans and program were presented by Dean Winter.

Booster teams visited Omaha, Pawnee City, Ashland, Blanchard, Iowa last Sunday. Talks on subjects "Why Go to College," "Why Go to a Small School" and "What Cotner Offers" were made. Louis Bigge was in charge of the team that went to Omaha which was composed of Leslie Smith, Dick McCann and Henry Harmon. They appeared at Miller Park Christian church where Harold McMillan is pastor, in the morning and in the evening at the South Omaha Christian church, Rev. Barton Johnson, pastor. At Ashland Edwin Hogle, Wm. Macomber and Elwyn Wherry composed the team. At Pawnee City two meetings were held, one Saturday and one Sunday. The following was the program given Sunday evening:

Song, scripture reading, prayer.
Introduction of the team, E. D. Hageman, pastor.
Coronet solo, Lon Edwards.
Cotner Organizations, Clyde Gingles.
Reading, Mildred Halsted.
Cotner Athletics, Forest Clark.
Dormitory Life, Bessie Kellum.
Vocal solo, Marjorie Purcell.
Why Come to Cotner, Vena Clark.
Reading, Ruth Moss.
Young People's Conference, Frances Newens.

The party was chaperoned by Prof. Parminter, Prof. and Mrs. Sherer.

Frances Newens will direct the Hastings Vacation Bible school, to be held June 7 to July 9.

Abrupt stops, quick starts and side skids will ruin tires.

When a car has traveled 2000 miles shift the tires around from wheel to wheel so that the wear wil lbe equalized.

GOOD FURNITURE LINCOLN.

What Is a Bird House Without Birds Sighs Landlord Searching For Feathered Tenants

Apartments for rent—in Lincoln's imperfect apartment house

It is situated in one of Lincoln's choicest residence sections—unusual, yes—but the neighbors didn't even consider getting an injunction against the building

The apartment house—it is really a family hotel—is built in the midst of lovely shade trees, which protect it from the heat. The lawn is not a mixture of wood and dirt and stones and bits of shingles and sparse shoots of grass, as are so many apartment lawns, but it is green and soft and inviting for an afternoon or an evening

It's always cool—if there is a breeze, the apartments get it.

It's well lighted—there isn't a room with air shaft exposure nor a single inside apartment.

The groceries must be carried in by ——ah, et—mouth, as there is no dumb waiter, but the apartment is most conveniently situated near deli catessens and markets

And the owner wants families with children!

Friendly as New Marcel.

In this day when babies and apartment house owners are as friendly as a new marcel and a summer shower its most refreshing to find one who wants children—the more the merrier—and he doesn't care how much they crow and sing and gurgle He doesn't mind how much they hop around the halls or sprawl over the front porches or scratch up the lawn

This is one place with a large welcome sign for the youngsters

As though the waiting list wouldn't be long enough without all these utopian charms, the apartments are rent free, absolutely, positively, entirely rent free The occupants can't pay if they want to—and who's the one that's going to urge rent on the reluctant owner?

Empty as a Vacant Lot

But they are empty They've never had an occupant to make curlycue marks by the telephone and leave funny square marks on the wall where the family portraits hung

Here, however, is the letter—decisions gratefully received

Miss E. Ruth Pyrtle,
McKinley School,
Lincoln, Nebraska.

My dear Miss Pyrtle —

"Last year when I placed my order with you, as director general of the McKinley School Center, for one of their famous bird houses you insisted that it should be a Martin apartment house, and, while there is nothing in the contract, it seems to me there is an implied obligation on your part to furnish tenants. You told me that on account of the lateness in opening the house that probably no families would move in last year and none did You did tell me, however, that Martin moving day was April 1 and that, I might reasonably expect four families I am writing to complain that they have not yet arrived

"I wish to enclose an advertisement and ask your advice as whether it is too late to run this, And if not, in what advertising mediums you recommend its insertion.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) Walter S Whitten,
Secretary."

Pending the decision, the apartment house is still empty—very empty and very still.

Mrs. John Chapman Celebrates Ninetieth Birthday; Tells of Early Life On Nebraska Plains

BY LULU MAE COE.

Fifty-six years ago early next month a tired woman peered from a covered wagon at the sparsely settled regions around Nebraska City

She was only one of hundreds of pioneer women who had come west that year Her wagon was only one of the shaky train that had wriggled and hunched and slid itself across the priaries for more than a decade

But she had made the journey in one of the hot months of the year May breezes have a sentimental sound but May suns can be scorching on the unshaded plains, the dust powdered by dozens of horses hoofs is choking in May sunshine and the virility and vigor of the cooler months is at low ebb in the merry month of May

A half dozen or more children, none of them very old, crowded the narrow wagon to capacity They were fretful and peevish in the wagon The woman and her husband were weary of the winding of the constant moving, of the search for a new home

West Thinly Populated

They intended to go several hundred miles further than Nebraska City The western lands weren't so thickly populated Larger homesteads could be obtained There was greater opportunity to acquire wealth

When the woman gazed out upon the little hamlet, though, she knew that the western lands would never see them, at least as homesteaders Nebraska City was ragged and scraggly and meagre, but it might have been Utopia on that June 3, 1868, when she saw it, for it meant almost the journey's end

The woman and her husband and the children came north and west over fifty miles to Centerville precinct in the vicinity of Roca And for thirty-five years the woman and her husband and at least some of the children lived on the eighty acre homestead which they took at that time

A week ago last Thursday, the woman Mrs John Chapman sat in the yard of her daughter, Mrs Charles Perkins ten miles south on Fourteenth street, and gazed at the homestead which she and her husband had taken more than half a century ago It is located just across the line from Mrs Perkin's farm, just a tiny little walk from her front yard

Mrs Chapman was celebrating her ninetieth birthday that Thursday and she was surrounded by relatives and friends Bright and active with a remarkable memory in spite of her four score years and ten they had come to surprise Mrs Chapman, old friends young friends, and neighbors of pioneer days Among the guests were Sunday school scholars whom Mrs Chapman had taught thirty-five and forty years ago and two friends who were in Nebraska when she came, Mrs Mollie Hoy and Mrs Jane Shamp

Erected Sod House

After coming to Centerville, about the first thing Mrs Chapman did was to rip up the cover of the wagon which had brought the family on that month's journey from Michigan City, Ind., so that none of them would be tempted to any wanderlust The next thing was the erection of a sod house in which they lived for some time until the fields could be plowed and a crop planted for fall harvesting

The Chapman homestead comprised only eighty acres instead of the usual one hundred sixty because that was the only ground not taken in this part of the country They had come here, after the change in plans, because an uncle of Mrs Chapman's and his two sons had already been here The land was rich and gave excellent crops but the homestead was smaller than the ordinary ones

Later that year, Mr Chapman hauled grain to Nebraska City which he traded for lumber for a new house Nebraska City was the center of trading in those days and many many journeys has Mrs Chapman made there to buy "groceries" Lincoln was closer, although it was not so promising as the Otoe county village but prices, according to Mrs Chapman, were nearly double here to those asked in Nebraska City In Lincoln the freighting charges were added to the cost, as all goods was brought overland from Nebraska City by "freighters" In Nebraska City, the purchaser did not have the freight charges which paid, more than paid for the longer journey

The Chapmans generally took two days for the fifty five mile trip They would go one day, spend the night in Nebraska City, and return the next day, or they would start out late in the day, camp on the road, and return the next day

Caravans of Freighters

The freight road as it was in the early days follows the south line of Mrs Perkins' farm and from there into Roca Mrs Chapman remembers when whole caravans of these freighters would go by Lincoln-ward Some times they would go in groups of five-sometimes in groups of nine or more, always for protection with the thought of possible Indian attacks

Mrs Chapman says that they were never bothered by Indians although they saw many hundreds of them Their home was on the route which the Omahas took to visit their more southern brethren and they were always going calling They were always friendly, but great beggars Mrs Chapman gave them food the first time they came and they never forgot it, returning the call many times

One day seventeen Indians came, begging food and drink, and there was practically nothing left in the house when they departed However, they did not show the slightest hostility at any time and were perfectly satisfied to eat, seeming to have no desire to injure

Mr Chapman was a minister and preached in many of the small churches in the county, Jamaica, Cheney, Emerald, Adams and Barland where he found a church Many Indians came to the church services, always appearing quiet and peaceable enough although there had been an Indian scare the year before the Chapmans came west

Preaching in those early days was less of a profession and more of a job than it is now Mr Chapman preached in dugouts, sod houses, log huts, outdoors, in a few frame houses store buildings—almost any where but in a church, for they came later to the homes He went for miles and wide sloshing through late fall rains, down the dust white roads of summer, through the spring mud and through the deep drifts of early Nebraska winters He didn't have a day for baptisms and for marriages and for other church ceremonies but he might do almost anything when he arrived to preach

Among the guests who came for Mrs Chapman's ninetieth birthday were Mrs Lloyd Suddens, Mrs F. M Stoughton, Mrs Madge Agis, Mrs. Lethe Conner, Mrs Fred Block, Mrs M A Hodgkins, Mrs John Bowers, Mrs Catherine Fischer, Mrs Walter Eis Jane Shamp, A. H Weinberger, S E Hoy, Mary A. Famous Collection of Jewels On Display

The Mauboussin collection of jewels valued at $5 000,000 is now on view at the Grand Central Palace, where it is one of the features of the French exposition These gems, brought in under bond by one of the oldest Parisian jewelry firms, include the second largest pearl in the world, one of the world's largest emeralds and what is said to be the finest set of blue sapphires in existence The collection is guarded day and night by private detectives and also watched by representatives of the United States Customs Service specially detailed for this purpose

The exhibit also contains interesting examples of the latest Parisian jewelry styles The most striking of these is a hip brooch designed for use as its name indicates It is about four inches across and composed of diamonds and sapphires, weighing altogether 107 carats Other styles of hip brooches show circles of black onyx and crystals flanked with diamonds Another novelty is the bell watch—a tiny cone of black and red enamel set with diamonds with the watch dial less than half an inch in diameter

The latest thing in bracelets is a solid strip of diamonds and rubies attached to a flexible background The design copies the famous frieze at the Athens Parthenon It is of particular interest to jewelry craftsmen because it is the first attempt to work out the human figure motif in relief, each individual muscle being brought out by the skilful work of the gem setter

Something new in earrings is a barbaric loop of pearls and diamonds the inspiration of which is said to be the nose loops favored by the dusky beauties of Central Africa

Suede Finish Fabrics for More Elaborate Coats.

Suede-finished material is used extensively for more elaborately trimed mcoats, chiefly in shades of green and blue This fabric is shown with an invisible plaid desgn as well as in plain colors

Black soutache braid and stitching are favored methods of decoration on the back and sides in panel effects and on several models, the trimming on the sides is further emphasized by buckled bands of the material placed over the panel sections Collars of American opossum are noted in this group, and a youthful touch is seen in the linings of printed crepe de Chine

More elaborate models are featured in a group of coats developed in pile fabrics of the Bolivia type in tans, brown and black Fur collars appear on the majority of these models and include Manchurian wolf, squirrel, beaver and fox The fur is frequently repeated in a narrow band several inches above the closely fitting cuffs

Venise and Valenciennes favored or white blouses in georgette and crepe Details in lace vie with frills, varying in styles and fabrics Jabots of folds and pleating

Cold Storage at Lincoln Hide and Fur Company

Cold storage sounds a bit ridiculous to talk about this kind of weather, but nevertheless it is a necessity when it comes to caring for winter furs and coats Store your furs with the Lincoln Hide and Fur company, and while you are there, look at the wonderful line of chokers they have in stock. They are worth noticing and also worth buying if one needs a choker and the most of us do

The mannish tuckin blouse in English broadcloth satin or pin stripes is in demand for wear with the tailored suit and for summer wear with sweaters

Party frocks and afternoon dresses favor such graceful fabrics as georgette and printed chiffon and voile For younger girls straight unbelted frocks of georgette are frequently trimmed with attractive motifs of silk embroidery arranged to give an allover effect A more elaborate style is shown in powder blue, designed with narrow ruffles and bands

Pongee Used For Another Group.

Pongee develops a number of dresses either alone or combined with checked pongee Appliqued designs or bright colored silk and wool embroidery are also employed in this group The design is frequently in the form of a large single flower spray and extends from the skirt to the middle of the bodice Bright red silk forms appliqued bands as well as the small collar and cuffs on a pongee model checked in red, designed for the older girl

A group of white crepe de Chine frocks designed for confirmations or graduation is also featured here These dresses are elaborately trimmed with ruffles and white satin ribbon Rows of narrow lace form a scalloped design on the skirts and wide bertha collars add to the youthful effect

Summer silks including silk broadcloth and taffeta are featured in a number of straightline sports dresses which show a definite influence of the tailored mode In general the frocks shown in this group are trimmed with crepe de Chine or tub silk in white although bindings and pipings of silk in the same shade as the check or stripe of the material are also noted Tucked and embroidered vestees of white are sponsored and one model is designed with a narrow vest effect of self material, extending to well below the waistline and trimmed with novel colored buttons

Large embroidered designs in several bright shades are shown on both the plain and novelty fabrics One unusual model of blue dotted in white is bound with the same material in bright red and trimmed with a large spray of embroidered flowers in red and yellow wool

Wool embroidery is also the chief trimming note on linen frocks in bright shades for younger girls Appliqued motifs in contrasting colors are frequently combined with the embroidery designs

Bright Colored Voile Combined With White.

Bright colored voile especially blue, is frequently combined with white, and provides a rather striking effect by being appliqued in large designs in geometric or zigzag patterns These unusual appliqued motifs are also shown on three-piece costumes of voile and linen composed of a straightline dress and short sleeve less jacket Three piece costumes of wool-filled crepe are also offered In on instance, jade is combined with gray in a striking blocked effect on the skirt

The linen frocks are more simply styled displaying many details of the tailored mode, such as embroidered monograms and bright colored handkerchiefs peeping from the pockets

Wedding Veils and Wreaths at Mayer Bros.

The time of brides is fast approaching the merry month of May is well on the road, and before long June will be with us For the smart wedding a veil is essential, and all of your veil troubles can be solved at the millinery department of Mayer Bros. There you will find lovely wedding veils and wreaths, and there are also confirmation veils for the sweet young girl who is to be confirmed this spring

Two-Tone Irregular Diagonal Grounds.

Departing from the plaided patterns are those of two-toned irregular diagonal grounds on which in distinct figures of considerable size are arranged at wide intervals Basket weave effects are distinguished by the colored nubs used in their construction Half-and half border fabrics are made up in contrasting mixtures, the line of division marked by a stripe of an intense shade of the color predominating in the mixture.

Twisted yarns register again in the suitings in which four tones frequently go to make up the general effect Color combinations which are well thought of in a cloth of this type in herringbone effect are black and white woven with blue and color green gold light tan and black and others in which black and light browns play a large part Broken checks and allover checks are noted

Braided Effects Relieve Dark Materials.

Braided effects composed of silver and two or three bright colors relieve the darker materials One interesting model in a soft pile fabric in black features godets trimmed with knots of beige chenille Unusual effects are achieved by combining brown with panel sections and borders of light tan

A throw scarf of the material of the coat is attached under the fur collar on a model of brown and tan and another individual note is struck in a coat of taupe designed with a loose panel across the back which extends to within a few inches above the hem

An overblouse of net, serviceable as well as cool sponsors the lace trimmed collar and jabot, the long sleeves also displaying Irish lace Another sheer fabric voile in blue, gray or lavender made entirely by hand employs lace insets and embroidery for its embellishment

English broadcloth in tailored and sports modes, either with the long or short sleeves boyish or snug little turnover collar, introducing touches of color by means of pipings, is equally attractive

Bright Colors Used In Combination.

The three-piece mode appears in flannel crepe de Chine and wool filled crepe Bright red and yellow are combined in a flannel model composed of a yellow skirt with perforations on the side pleats which show the read underneath, a mannish yellow vest, piped in red and a red jacket with perforated yellow revers Equally colorful is the crepe de Chine version of this mode which is composed of a sleeveless dress and a black jacket bordered with bands of yellow and red crepe de Chine

To give fullness to the skirts of several models inverted pleats are used and in the case of a three piece costume of wool Canton godets are so arranged at the sides that the skirt takes on the appearance of well creased trousers

In another group the most important fabric is linen in bright colors Drawn work and tucking are prominent trimmins gnad the three piece mode is often so simulated as to leave the back perfectly plain. Imported novelty eponges are also in evidence and cotton broadcloth is noted in several modes

The Operation I Avoided—

MRS IDA M COFFMAN
SIDELL ILL.

IF there is one thing more than another a woman dreads, it is a surgical operation, and to be told that one is necessary is very disheartening.

Hospitals are grand institutions, and undoubtedly many operations are necessary. However, we have received hundreds of letters from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation had been deemed advisable.

Every woman who suffers as Mrs. Coffman did naturally wishes to avoid an operation if possible, and the remarkable statements which she makes in her letter will be read with interest by women everywhere.

Mrs. Coffman's Letter Follows:

SIDELL, ILLINOIS — I was a nervous wreck I was suffering from a pain in my left side which was noticeable at all time but sometimes it was almost unbearable and I could not even let the bed-clothing rest on my body at night. I had been sick for seven years but not so badly until the last 18 months and had become so rundown that I cared for nobody and would rather have died than live I couldn't do my work without help and the doctor told me that an operation was all there was left for me I would not consent to that so my husband brought me a bottle of Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged me to take it I have taken fourteen bottles of it and I feel ten years younger Life is full of hope. I do all my housework and had a large garden this year I never will be without the Vegetable Compound in the house and when my two little girls reach womanhood I shall advise them to take it —MRS IDA M COFFMAN, R. R. No 2, Sidell, Illinois

Another Operation Avoided

DAYTON, OHIO — I was sick for eight weeks and had three doctors They told me I would have to be operated upon before I would be any better My sister told me about the Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound In one week's time I began to feel better I took seven bottles of it and also some of the Liver Pills and used your Sanative Wash and I soon gained my health I recommend your medicines to all women who feel badly and have troubles of this kind and I will answer all letters sent to me by women —MRS GRACE B GILLEM, 270 Valley Street, Dayton, Ohio

What Is a Bird House Without Birds Sighs Landlord Searching For Feathered Tenants

Apartments for rent—in Lincoln's pluperfect apartment house.

It is situated in one of Lincoln's choicest residence sections—unusual, yes—but the neighbors didn't even consider getting an injunction against the building.

The apartment house—it is really a family hotel—is built in the midst of lovely shade trees, which protect it from the heat. The lawn is not a mixture of wood and dirt and stones and bits of shingles and sparse shoots of grass, as are so many apartment lawns, but it is green and soft and inviting for an afternoon or an evening.

It's always cool—if there is a breeze, the apartments get it.

It's well lighted—there isn't a room with air shaft exposure nor a single inside apartment.

The goceries must be carried in by ——ah, er—mouth, as there is no dumb waiter, but the apartment is most conveniently situated near delicatessens and markets.

And the owner wants families with children!

Friendly as New Marcel.

In this day when babies and apartment house owners are as friendly as a new marcel and a summer shower, it's most refreshing to find one who wants children—the more the merrier—and he doesn't care how much they crow and sing and gurgle. He doesn't mind how much they hop around the halls or sprawl over the front porches or scratch up the lawn.

This is one place with a large welcome sign for the youngsters.

As though the waiting list wouldn't be long enough without all these utopian charms, the apartments are rent free, absolutely, positively, entirely rent free. The occupants can't pay if they want to—and who's the one that's going to urge rent on the reluctant owner?

Empty as a Vacant Lot.

Mrs. John Chapman Celebrates Ninetieth Birthday; Tells of Early Life On Nebraska Plains

BY LULU MAE COE.

More than half a century ago, Mrs. John Chapman with her husband and family came to Nebraska from the east and she has lived in the state since that time. She is making her home this summer with her daughter on South Fourteenth street and she can see the homestead, which they took way back in the summer of '68. Mrs. Chapman was ninety years old in April and she is seen here with the frilly birthday cake topped with many candles that was given her.

Fity-six years ago early next month a tired woman peered from a covered wagon at the sparsely settled regions around Nebraska City.

She was only one of hundreds of pioneer women who had come west that year. Her wagon was only one of the shaky train that had wriggled and hunched and slid itself across the priaries for more than a decade.

But she had made the journey in one of the hot months of the year. May breezes have a sentimental sound but May suns can be scorching on the unshaded plains, the dust powdered by dozens of horses hoofs is choking in May sunshine and the virillity and vigor of the cooler months is at low ebb in the merry month of May.

A half dozen or more children, none of them very old, crowded the narrow wagon to capacity. They were fretful and peevish in the wagon. The woman and her husband were weary of the winding of the constant moving, of the search for a new home.

West Thinly Populated.

They intended to go several hundred miles further than Nebraska City. The western lands weren't so thickly populated. Larger homesteads could be obtained. There was greater opportunity to acquire wealth.

When the woman gazed out upon the little hamlet, though, she knew that the western lands would never see them, at least as homesteaders. Nebraska City was ragged and scraggly and meagre, but it might have been Utopia on that June 3, 1868, when she saw it, for it meant almost the journey's end.

The woman and her husband and the children came north and west over fifty miles to Centerville precinct, in the vicinity of Roca. And for thirty-five years the woman and her husband and at least some of the children lived on the eighty acre homestead which they took at that time.

A week ago last Thursday, the woman, Mrs. John Chapman, sat in the yard of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Perkins, ten miles south on Fourteenth street, and gazed at the homestead which she and her husband had taken more than half a century ago. It is located just across the line from Mrs. Perkin's farm, just a tiny little walk from her front yard.

Mrs. Chapman was celebrating her ninetieth birthday that Thursday and she was surrounded by relatives and friends. Bright and active with a remarkable memory in spite of her four score years and ten, they had come to surprise Mrs. Chapman, old friends, young friends, and neighbors of pioneer days. Among the guests were Sunday school scholars whom Mrs. Chapman had taught thirty-five and forty years ago and two friends who were in Nebraska when she came, Mrs. Mollie Hoy and Mrs. Jane Shamp.

Erected Sod House.

After coming to Centerville, about the first thing Mrs. Chapman did was to rip up the cover of the wagon which had brought the family on that month's journey from Michigan City, Ind., so that none of them would be tempted to any wanderlust. The next thing was the erection of a sod house, in which they lived for some time until the fields could be plowed and a crop planted for fall harvesting.

The Chapman homestead comprised only eighty acres instead of the usual one hundred sixty because that was the only ground not taken in this part of the country. They had come here, after the change in plans, because an uncle of Mrs. Chapman's and his two sons had already been here. The land was rich and gave excellent crops, but the homestead was smaller than the ordinary ones.

Later that year, Mr. Chapman hauled grain to Nebraska City, which he traded for lumber for a new house. Nebraska City was the center of trading in those days and many, many journeys has Mrs. Chapman made there to buy "groceries." Lincoln was closer, although it was not so promising as the Otoe county village, but prices, according to Mrs. Chapman, were nearly double here to those asked in Nebraska City. In Lincoln, the freighting charges were added to the cost, as all goods was brought overland from Nebraska City by "freighters." In Nebraska City, the purchaser did not have the freight charges, which paid, more than paid, for the longer journey.

The Chapmans generally took two days for the fifty-five mile trip. They would go one day, spend the night in Nebraska City, and return the next day, or they would start out late in the day, camp on the road, and return the next day.

Caravans of Freighters.

The freight road, as it was in the early days, follows the south line of Mrs. Perkins' farm, and from there into Roca. Mrs. Chapman remembers when whole caravans of these freighters would go by Lincoln-ward. Some times they would go in groups of five, sometimes in groups of nine or more, always for protection with the thought of possible Indian attacks.

Mrs. Chapman says that they were never bothered by Indians, although they saw many hundreds of them. Their home was on the route which the Omahas took to visit their more southern brethren and they were always going calling. They were always friendly, but great beggars. Mrs. Chapman gave then food the first time they came and they never forgot it, returning the call many times.

One day seventeen Indians came, begging food and drink, and there was practically nothing left in the house when they departed. However, they did not show the slightest hostility at any time and were perfectly satisfied to eat, seeming to have no desire to injure.

Mr. Chapman was a minister and preached in many of the small churches in the county, Jamaica, Cheney, Emerald, Adams and Barland where he found a church. Many Indians came to the church services, always appearing quiet and peaceable enough, although there had been an Indian scare the year before the Chapmans came west.

Preaching in those early days was less of a profession and more of a job than it is now. Mr. Chapman preached in dugouts, sod houses, log huts, outdoors, in a few frame houses store buildings—almost any where but in a church, for they came later than the homes. He went far and wide, sloshing through late fall rains, down the dust white roads of summer, through the spring mud, and through the deep drifts of early Nebraska winters. He didn't have a day for baptisms and for marriages and for other church ceremonies, but he might do almost anything when he arrived to preach.

Among the guests who came for Mrs. Chapman's ninetieth birthday were: Mrs. Lloyd Suddens, Mrs. F. M. Stoughton, Mrs. Madge Agis, Mrs. Lethe Conner, Mrs. Fred Block, Mrs. M. A. Hodgkins, Mrs. John Bowers, Mrs. Catherine Fischer, Mrs. Walter Eis, Jane Shamp, A. H. Weinberger, S. E. Hoy, Mary A. McGramaham, Mrs. Alice Siddens, Mrs. G. F. The Operation I Avoided—

MRS. IDA M. COFFMAN
SIDELL, ILL.

IF there is one thing more than another a woman dreads, it is a surgical operation, and to be told that one is necessary is very disheartening.

Hospitals are grand institutions, and undoubtedly many operations are necessary. However, we have received hundreds of letters from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation had been deemed advisable.

Every woman who suffers as Mrs. Coffman did naturally wishes to avoid an operation if possible, and the remarkable statements which she makes in her letter will be read with interest by women everywhere.

Mrs. Coffman's Letter Follows:

SIDELL, ILLINOIS.—"I was a nervous wreck. I was suffering from a pain in my left side which was noticeable at all time but sometimes it was almost unbearable and I could not even let the bed-clothing rest on my body at night. I had been sick for seven years but not so badly until the last 18 months, and had become so rundown that I cared for nobody and would rather have died than live. I couldn't do my work without help and the doctor told me that an operation was all there was left for me. I would not consent to that so my husband brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged me to take it. I have taken fourteen bottles of it and I feel ten years younger. Life is full of hope. I do all my housework and had a large garden this year. I never will be without the Vegetable Compound in the house and when my two little girls reach womanhood I shall advise them to take it."—MRS. IDA M. COFFMAN, R. R. No. 2, Sidell, Illinois.

Another Operation Avoided

DAYTON, OHIO.—"I was sick for eight weeks and had three doctors. They told me I would have to be operated upon before I would be any better. My sister told me about the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In one week's time I began to feel better. I took seven bottles of it and also some of the Liver Pills and used your Sanative Wash and I soon gained my health. I recommend your medicines to all women who feel badly and have troubles of this kind and I will answer all letters sent to me by women."—MRS. GRACE B. GILLEM, 270 Valley Street, Dayton, Ohio.

Bride's Party Favors And Table Decorations At Ward-Warner Shop.

Bride's parties should always be just a bit nicer than ordinary parties, for it would seem that brides were always just a bit nicer than ordinary people, and that is why the favors and decorations for the table. Just a word, also, about the favors for the golf luncheon or dinner—they will be found at Ward-Warner's too.

Vegetable Plants at Grand Grocery.

Spring is supposed to be here in spite of the bad weather, and really, now is the time to put out the vegetable plants, all kinds of them that you can buy at the Grand Grocery at grocery store prices.

Famous Collection of Jewels On Display.

The Mauboussin collection of jewels valued at $5,000,000 is now on view at the Grand Central Palace, where it is one of the features of the French exposition. These gems, brought in under bond by one of the oldest Parisian jewelry firms, include the second largest pearl in the world, one of the world's largest emeralds and what is said to be the finest set of blue sapphires in existence. The collection is guarded day and night by private detectives and also watched by representatives of the United States Customs Service specially detailed for this purpose.

The exhibit also contains interesting examples of the latest Parisian jewelry styles. The most striking of these is a hip brooch designed for use as its name indicates. It is about four inches across and composed of diamonds and sapphires, weighing altogether 107 carats. Other styles of hip brooches show circles of black onyx and crystals flanked with diamonds. Another novelty is the bell watch—a tiny cone of black and red enamel set with diamonds with the watch dial less than half an inch in diameter.

The latest thing in bracelets is a solid strip of diamonds and rubies attached to a flexible background. The design copies the famous frieze at the Athens Parthenon. It is of particular interest to jewelry craftsmen because it is the first attempt to work out the human figure motif in relief, each individual muscle being brought out by the skilful work of the gem setter.

Something new in earrings is a barbaric loop of pearls and diamonds, the inspiration of which is said to be the nose loops favored by the dusky beauties of Central Africa.

Suede Finish Fabrics for More Elaborate Coats.

Suede-finished material is used extensively for more elaborately trimed mcoats, chiefly in shades of green and blue. This fabric is shown with an invisible plaid desgn as well as in plain colors.

Black soutache braid and stitching are favored methods of decoration on the back and sides in panel effects and, on several models, the trimming on the sides is further emphasized by buckled bands of the material placed over the panel sections. Collars of American opossum are noted in this group, and a youthful touch is seen in the linings of printed crepe de Chine.

More elaborate models are featured in a group of coats developed in pile fabrics of the Boliva type in tans, brown and black. Fur collars appear on the majority of these models and include Manchurian wolf, squirrel, beaver and fox. The fur is frequently repeated in a narrow band several inches above the closely fitting cuffs.

Venise and Valenciennes favored or white blouses in georgette and crepe. Details in lace vie with frills, varying in styles and fabrics. Jabots of folds and pleating.

Cold Storage at Lincoln Hide and Fur Company

Cold storage sounds a bit ridiculous to talk about this kind of weather, but nevertheless it is a necessity when it comes to caring for winter furs and coats. Store your furs with the Lincoln Hide and Fur company, and while you are there, look at the wonderful line of chokers they have in stock. They are worth noticing and also worth buying if one needs a choker and the most of us do.

The mannish tuckin-blouse in English broadcloth satin or pin stripes is in demand for wear with the tailored suit and for summer wear with sweaters.

Party frocks and afternoon dresses favor such graceful fabrics as georgette and printed chiffon and voile. For younger girls straight, unbelted frocks of georgette are frequently trimmed with attractive motifs of silk embroidery arranged to give an allover effect. A more elaborate style is shown in powder blue, designed wth narrow ruffles and bands.

Pongee Used For Another Group.

Pongee develops a number of dresses, either alone or combined with checked pongee. Appliqued designs or bright colored silk and wool embroidery are also employed in this group. The design is frequently in the form of a large single flower spray and extends from the skirt to the middle of the bodice. Bright red silk forms appliqued bands as well as the small collar and cuffs on a pongee model checked in red, designed for the older girl.

A group of white crepe de Chine frocks designed for confirmations or graduation is also featured here These dresses are elaborately trimmed with ruffles and white satin ribbon. Rows of narrow lace form a scalloped design on the skirts and wide bertha collars add to the youthful effect.

Summer silks, including silk broadcloth and taffeta, are featured in a number of straightline sports dresses which show a definite influence of the tailored mode. In general, the frocks shown in this group are trimmed with crepe de Chine or tub silk in white, although bindings and pipings of silk in the same shade as the check or stripe of the material are also noted. Tucked and embroidered vestees of white are sponsored, and one model is designed with a narrow vest effect of self material, extending to well below the waistline and trimmed with novel colored buttons.

Large embroidered designs in several bright shades are shown on both the plain and novelty fabrics. One unusual model of blue dotted in white is bound with the same material in bright red and trimmed with a large spray of embroidered flowers in red and yellow wool.

Wool embroidery is also the chief trimming note on linen frocks in bright shades for younger girls. Appiqued motifs in contrasting colors are frequently combined with the embroidery designs.

Bright Colored Voile Combined With White.

Bright colored voile, especially blue, is frequently combined with white, and provides a rather striking effect by being appliqued in large designs in geometric or zigzag patterns. These unusual appliqued motifs are also shown on three-piece costumes of voile and linen composed of a straightline dress and short, sleeveless jacket. Three-piece costumes of wool-filled crepe are also offered. In on instance, jade is combined with gray in a striking blocked effect on the skirt.

The linen frocks are more simply styled, displaying many details of the tailored mode, such as embroidered monograms and bright colored handkerchiefs peeping from the pockets.

Wedding Veils and Wreaths at Mayer Bros.

The time of brides is fast approaching, the merry month of May is well on the road, and before long June will be with us. For the smart wedding a veil is essential, and all of your veil troubles can be solved at the millinery department of Mayer Bros. There you will find lovely wedding veils and wreaths, and there are also confirmation veils for the sweet young girl who is to be confirmed this spring.

Two-Tone Irregular Diagonal Grounds.

Departing from the plaided patterns are those of two-toned irregular diagonal grounds on which indistinct figures of considerable size are arranged at wide intervals. Basket weave effects are distinguished by the colored nubs used in their construction. Half-and half border fabrics are made up, in contrasting mixtures, the line of division marked by a stripe of an intense shade of the color predominating in the mixture.

Twisted yarns register again in the suitings in which four tones frequently go to make up the general effect. Color combinations which are well thought of in a cloth of this type in herringbone effect are black and white woven with blue and cocoa, green gold, light tan and black, and others in which black nad light browns play a large part. Broken checks and allover checks are noted.

Braided Effects Relieve Dark Materials.

Braided effects composed of silver and two or three bright colors relieve the darker materials. One interesting model in a soft pile fabric in black features godets trimmed with knots of beige chenille. Unusual effects are achieved by combining brown with panel sections and borders of light tan.

A throw scarf of the material of the coat is attached under the fur collar on a model of brown and tan and another individual note is struck in a coat of taupe designed with a loose panel across the back, which extends to within a few inches above the hem.

An overblouse of net, serviceable as well as cool, sponsors the lace trimmed collar and jabot, the long sleeves also displaying Irish lace. Another sheer fabric, voile in blue, gray or lavender, made entirely by hand, employs lace insets and embroidery for its embellishment.

English broadcloth in tailored and sports modes, either with the long or short sleeves, boyish or snug little turnover collar, introducing touches of color by means of pipings, is equally attractive.

Bright Colors Used In Combination.

The three-piece mode appears in flannel, crepe de Chine and wool filled crepe. Bright red and yellow are combined in a flannel model composed of a yellow skirt with perforations on the side pleats which show the read underneath, a mannish yellow vest, piped in red and a red jacket with perforated yellow revers. Equally colorful is the crepe de Chine version of this mode which is composed of a sleeveless dress and a black jacket bordered with bands of yellow and red crepe de Chine.

To give fullness to the skirts of several models inverted pleats are used, and in the case of a three-piece costume of wool Canton godets are so arranged at the sides that the skirt takes on the appearance of well creased trousers.

In another group the most important fabric is linen in bright colors. Drawn work and tucking are prominent trimmins gnad the three-piece mode is often so simulated as to leave the back perfectly plain. Imported novelty eponges are also in evidence and cotton broadcloth is noted in several modes.

A lovely guest who has been the honoree at a number of social affairs is Miss Mary Buchanan, of Evanston, Ill., who is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Aitken.

Miss Valada Lemme of Evansville, Ind., is another charming Lincoln visitor. Miss Lemme came nearly three weeks ago to be a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Meehan, 2127 Ryons street. Miss Lemme will remain in Lincoln for several weeks.

Mrs. Bess Funke is an attractive Lincoln matron who is making a serious study of music. She has been attending the University School of Music the past year, and on Tuesday evening, May 13, will appear in graduation recital . She will devote a part of the summer to concert work.

Weddings

McGERR-MARA

The marriage of Miss Anna McGeer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. McGeer of Ceresco, to John Mara, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Mara, also of Ceresco, took place Thursday morning May 1, at 9:30 o'lock at St. Mary's church in Davey. Rev. Father O'Boyle officiated.

The bride wore a suit of navy blue poiret twill with accessories to match. Her corsage was of roses and sweet peas. Marguerite McGeer, sister of the bride acted as maid or brother's groomsman. Miss Claire McGeer of Lincoln played the wedding music from Lohengrin as the bridal party entered the church, and Miss Eilene Derleg sang Gounod's "Ave Maria" at the offertory. Immediately following the service a wedding breakfast for twenty relatives and friends was served at the home of the bride's parents. The tables were prettily decorated with spring flowers and candles in crystal holders. Miss Mae Bell and Mary Claro Healey assisted in serving. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Mara will make their home on a farm near Ceresco.

Parties of the Week

Honoring Miss Ruth Ellsworth, a June bride, the active members of Delta Zeta sorority entertained at a dinner and miscellaneous shower Wednesday evening at the chapter house, 557 North Sixteenth street. The sorority colors of old rose and nile green were used in decorating and the centerpiece was a bowl of spring blossoms. The place cards were suggestive of the bridal party. Covers were laid for thirty-five. The shower followed the dinner.

Mrs. E. P. Maupin of St. Joseph, Mo., who has been visiting the past week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. H. McHugh will be honor guest at several affairs planned for the coming week. She was also honored at the dinner Friday evening at the home of Mrs. R. E. White of Bethany, when twelve of her intimate friends were present. Honeysuckles were used in decoration at the dinner table, and the evening was spent informally. Mrs. Walter Shaffer will entertain at a buffet supper this evening for Mrs. Maupin, at her home, 1732 Washington street, and Mrs. G. M. Howe will be hostess at an informal dinner Monday evening at her home, 116 South Fourteenth street. Mrs. L. C. Gillett and Mrs. J. F. Spealman will entertain at a luncheon Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Spealman, 2740 Holdrege street, when the guests will be ladies who were members of the northwest circle at the time when Mrs. Maupin belonged to that organization. Thursday evening, Mrs. Sherman Smith, 1962 Lake street, wil lentertain at bridge in honor of Mrs. Maupin.

Mrs. Gerald Krause entertained twenty guests at 1 o'clock luncheon and bridge Saturday afternoon at her home, 931 Garfield street. Lavender and white were the colors used in decoration, and carried out with lilacs and snowballs. Crepe paper streamers from the chandeliers to the two large tables formed May poles, and baskets of flowers, tied with tulle, were used on the tables. Favors and place cards were miniature baskets.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Miller will entertain at a reception Friday evening from 8 to 11 o'clock at their home, 1849 C street, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Kirschstein, who are leaving in June to make their home in Los Angeles.

Miss Florence Immenhausen entertained twelve friends Thursday evening informally at her home, 2118 Sewell street. The evening was spent with games and guessing contests, after which supper was served. The guests were seated at three small tables, which were each centered with a miniature May pole. At each place was a Columbia rose, in which was a scroll containing the engagement announcement of Miss Immenhausen to H. E. Leinberger of Lincoln. A color motif of pink and green was used in the decorations.

The teachers of Prescott school entertained at dinner Wednesday evening in the Garden room of the Lincoln hotel for four of their members whose weddings will take place in the near future, Misses Janet Chase, True Jack, Ella Larsen, and Neva Wilson. Following the dinner, a mock wedding was given, in which Myrtle Hendrickson was "Maggie," the bride, Mrs. Lulu Day was "Jiggs," the groom, Effie Hult, best man, Blanche Rowe, bridesmaid, Edna Gabus, flower girl, and Mrs. Merte Theno, minister. Miss Ruth Fetterman played the wedding march and led the singing. Misses Edna Morgenthaler and Mildred Morning sang "Kiss Me Again." The brides-to-be in charge of Misses Alice Henigan, Edna Morgenthaler, Bernice Wert, and Bess Maguire, and Mrs. Mary D. Smith and Mrs. Beatrice F. Craig, were formed in lock step and thier life sentence imposed upon them. The future brides responded with songs, after which they cut a large wedding cake, containing symbolical favors. Mrs. May Morley, on behalf of the Prescott teachers, presented them with Irish filet buffet sets, accompanied with four miniature rolling pins, made and given by J. P. Slothower. The committee in charge of the dinner was composed of Misses Alice Henigan, Daisy Johnson, and Ruth Fetterman.

The Sigma Chi fraternity entertained fifty-five couples at a spring house dance Friday night at the chapter house, 518 North Sixteenth street. Blue and gold, the fraternity colors, were used in the rooms and bowls of spring flowers in the dining room, where salad, coffee, and wafers were served. Dr. and Mrs. George Condra and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McNichols were the chaperones.

Honoring Miss Edna Fitzsimmons and Miss Fern Jackson, Misses Mildred Moyer and Genevieve Wilson entertained at an attractive luncheon yesterday in the English room of the Lincoln hotel. Covers were placed for sixteen at a table on which a pink and lavender motif was used. The table was graced with a crystal bowl of Columbia roses and lavender tapers in crystal holders tied with pink tulle were at either end. The guests were given favors of pink and lavender sweet pea corsages. The afternoon hours were spent with bridge at the home of Miss Moyer, 1954 B street. McGERR-MARA

The marriage of Miss Anna McGeer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. McGeer of Ceresco, to John Mara, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Mara, also of Ceresco, took place Thursday morning May 1, at 9:30 o'lock at St. Mary's church in Davey. Rev. Father O'Boyle officiated.

The bride wore a suit of navy blue poiret twill with accessories to match. Her corsage was of roses and sweet peas. Marguerite McGeer, sister of the bride acted as maid or brother's groomsman. Miss Claire McGeer of Lincoln played the wedding music from Lohengrin as the bridal party entered the church, and Miss Eilene Derieg sang Gounod's "Ave Maria" at the offertory. Immediately following the service a wedding breakfast for twenty relatives and friends was served at the home of the bride's parents. The tables were prettily decorated with spring flowers and candles in crystal holders. iMss Mae Bell and Mary Clare Healey assisted in serving. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Mara will make their home on a farm near Ceresco.

Parties of the Week

Honoring Miss Ruth Ellsworth, a June bride, the active members of Delta Zeta sorority entertained at a dinner and miscellaneous shower Wednesday evening at the chapter house, 557 North Sixteenth street. The sorority colors of old rose and nile green were used in decorating and the centerpiece was a bowl of spring blossoms. The place cards were suggestive of the bridal party. Covers were laid for thirty-five. The shower followed the dinner.

Mrs. E. P. Maupin of St. Joseph, Mo., who has been visiting the past week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. H. McHugh will be honor guest at several affairs planned for the coming week. She was also honored at the dinner Friday evening at the home of Mrs. R. E. White of Bethany, when twelve of her intimate friends were present. Honeysuckles were used in decoration at the dinner table, and the evening was spent informally. Mrs. Walter Shaffer will entertain at a buffet supper this evening for Mrs. Maupin, at her home, 1732 Washington street, and Mrs. G. M. Howe will be hostess at an informal dinner Monday evening at her home, 116 South Fourteenth street. Mrs. L. C. Gillett and Mrs. J. F. Spealman will entertain at a luncheon Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Spealman, 2740 Holdrege street, when the guests will be ladies who were members of the northwest circle at the time when Mrs. Maupin belonged to that organization. Thursday evening, Mrs. Sherman Smith, 1962 Lake street, wil lentertain at bridge in honor of Mrs. Maupin.

Mrs. Gerald Krause entertained twenty guests at 1 o'clock luncheon and bridge Saturday afternoon at her home, 931 Garfield street. Lavender and white were the colors used in decoration, and carried out with lilacs and snowballs. Crepe paper streamers from the chandeliers to the two large tables formed May poles, and baskets of flowers, tied with tulle, were used on the tables. Favors and place cards were miniature baskets.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Miller will entertain at a reception Friday evening from 8 to 11 o'clock at their home, 1849 C street, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Kirschstein, who are leaving in June to make their home in Los Angeles.

Miss Florence Immenhausen entertained twelve friends Thursday evening informally at her home, 2118 Sewell street. The evening was spent with games and guessing contests, after which supper was served. The guests were seated at three small tables, which were each centered with a miniature May pole. At each place was a Columbia rose, in which was a scroll containing the engagement announcement of Miss Immenhausen to H. E. Leinberger of Lincoln. A color motif of pink and green was used in the decorations.

The teachers of Prescott school entertained at dinner Wednesday evening in the Garden room of the Lincoln hotel for four of their members whose weddings will take place in the near future, Misses Janet Chase, True Jack, Ella Larsen, and Neva Wilson. Following the dinner, a mock wedding was given, in which Myrtle Hendrickson was "Maggie," the bride, Mrs. Lulu Day was "Jiggs," the groom, Effie Hult, best man, Blanche Rowe, bridesmaid, Edna Gabus, flower girl, and Mrs. Merte Theno, minister. Miss Ruth Fetterman played the wedding march and led the singing. Misses Edna Morgenthaler and Mildred Morning sang "Kiss Me Again." The brides-to-be in charge of Misses Alice Henigan, Edna Morgenthaler, Bernice Wert, and Bess Maguire, and Mrs. Mary D. Smith and Mrs. Beatrice F. Craig, were formed in lock step and thier life sentence imposed upon them. The future brides responded with songs, after which they cut a large wedding cake, containing symbolical favors. Mrs. May Morley, on behalf of the Prescott teachers, presented them with Irish filet buffet sets, accompanied with four miniature rolling pins, made and given by J. P. Slothower. The committee in charge of the dinner was composed of Misses Alice Henigan, Daisy Johnson, and Ruth Fetterman.

The Sigma Chi fraternity entertained fifty-five couples at a spring house dance Friday night at the chapter house, 518 North Sixteenth street. Blue and gold, the fraternity colors, were used in the rooms and bowls of spring flowers in the dining room, where salad, coffee, and wafers were served. Dr. and Mrs. George Condra and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McNichols were the chaperones.

Honoring Miss Edna Fitzsimmons and Miss Fern Jackson, Misses Mildred Moyer and Genevieve Wilson entertained at an attractive luncheon yesterday in the English room of the Lincoln hotel. Covers were placed for sixteen at a table on which a pink and lavender motif was used. The table was graced with a crystal bowl of Columbia roses and lavender tapers in crystal holders tied with pink tulle were at either end. The guests were given favors of pink and lavender sweet pea corsages. The afternoon hours were spent with bridge at the home of Miss Moyer, 1954 B street. Miss Jackson and Miss Fitzsimmons were given the guest prizes.

SOCIETY

teen members were present, and at the close of an informal afternoon, the hosts assisted by Mrs. Ray King, served a two-course luncheon. The club meets May 22 at the home of Mrs. Homer Scott, 4300 R street.

Mrs. Joseph Hickey, 2926 Orchard street, entertained the members of the H. E. O. club at her home Thursday evening, in honor of Mrs. L. S. Cowell, one of the members of the club who leaves soon to make her home in Douglas, Wyo. The afternoon was spent socially, and Mrs. E. Koontz presented Mrs. Cowell with a leather bag, on behalf of the club. Coffee and cakes were served. The club meets next Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Koontz, 1123 Huff street.

Mrs. Charles Meshier, 2024 N street, Havelock, was hostess Wednesday afternoon to the L. T. and T. club, of which she was formerly a member. The afternoon was spent socially and in a unique guessing contest, Mrs. I. O. Lansing won the prize. Mrs. A. G. Baker and Mrs. M. E Brugen were guests. The hostess served a luncheon at the close of the afternoon, after which the club adjourned for the summer. The next meeting will be held in September.

Members of the T. N. T. club were entertained Wednesday at 1 o'clock luncheon at the home of Mrs. John R. Bennett, 2700 Ryons street. Guests were seated at one large table, where pink tapers and miniature May poles with tiny dolls formed the decorations. Mrs. George Belshaw, Mrs. D. V. Wood, and Mrs. J. I. Davis were the guests of the club. At cards Mrs. M. J. Blish won the club prize, and Mrs. Belshaw high score for the guests. The club meets in two weeks at the home of Mrs. J. W. Carothers, 2407 Garfield street.

Mrs. Frank Campbell, Fiftieth and Randolph streets was hostess Tuesday to members of the Idleaway club. Mrs. E. P. Skinner, Mrs. C. W. Frost Mrs. J. E. Worley, Mrs. C E. Copenhaver, and Mrs Homer Scott were guests of the club. Prizes at five hundred went to Mrs. E. E. Burnett and Mrs. Skinner. The hostess served a dainty luncheon at the close of the afternoon. The club meets in two weeks at the home of Mrs. John Rosenstock, 1009 South Nineteenth street.

Royal Five Hundred club met with Mrs. G. W. Moore, 220 South Eighteenth street, Thursday afternoon. Three tables were set for cards, and Mrs. Felix O'Neil won the prize. The hostess served a two-course luncheon at the small tables. Mrs. S. B. Robbins was a guest of the club. Members meet in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Bert Barribo, 1108 South Thirteenth street.

Members of the No Name club were entertained Thursday at an old-fashioned 1 o'clock luncheon at the home of Mrs. J. R. Holmes, 1443 South Twenty-first street. A red tablecloth with red napkins to match added an original tone, and kerosene lamps were used on the table. An old-fashioned caster formed the center decoration. Garden flowers were the only ones used. The afternoon was spent informally. For the next meeting, the second half of the club's membership will entertain the first half at the home of Mrs. George Park, South street and Bradfield drive.

Members of the Jolly Crew entertained their husbands at a 7 o'clock dinner Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. A. G. Sharp, 1200 Garfild street. Lavender and yellow were the colors carried out in decorations, and the centerpiece and appointments at the dinner table were carried out in flowers of those shades. Prizes at cards following the dinner went to William Foster and Mrs. J. J. Beyette, with consolations to R. C. Buehlow and Mrs. W. F. Eis. Next Thursday afternoon the club meets at the home of Mrs. H. C. Sanders, 1248 Plum street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Garson 1110 South Fourteenth street, entertained the members of the Twilight Five Hundred club Wednesday evening at their home. Four tables were placed for cards, and Frank Marlow and Mrs. Ed Wood won high scores. The hostess served a luncheon after the game. Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Schneider will entertain the club May 21 at their home, 1519 D street.

Mrs. Adna Dobson entertained the members of the E. E. D club Tuesday afternoon at her home, 3024 Stratford avenue at a farewell party for Mrs. E. E. Babcock, who leaves soon to make her home in California. Spring flowers were used through the house, and the luncheon was served buffet style. The afternoon was spent informally, as a kensington. The time and place for the June meeting are as yet indefinite.

Ocho bridge club met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Joe Tucker, 2701 O street. Mrs. F. A. Roehl, Mrs. O. M. Parke, and Mrs. G. L. Taylor were guests of the club. Red tulips and lilacs were used in decoration, and nut cups in the shape of tulips were a part of the luncheon appointments, which carried out the lavender and rose color scheme. High score at cards during the afternoon went to Mrs. J. D. Parks. The club meets in two weeks at the home of Mrs. T. E. Williams, 1220 D street.

Members of the Kil Awhyle Klub met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Porter, 1303 D street. Three tables were placed for five hundred, high scores going to Mrs. Will Peterson and Frank Porter. Dr. and Mrs. F. R. Woodring will entertain the club Friday evening, May 23, at their home, 518 North Twenty-sixth street.

Members of the Three Fours club were entertained Thursday at 1 o'clock luncheon at the Lincoln hotel when Mesdames M. Mulvihill, M. Morse and H. H. Bradley were hostesses. Decorations were carried out in lilacs and pink tulips, and at each plate was found an individual favor: a corsage of these flowers. A large centerpiece was made of pink and lavender tulips, and the same colors were also used in appointments. At bridge during the afternoon, Mrs. H. G. Clark won high score and Mrs. G. W. Eash the consolation. The members will be guests May 22 at 1 o'clock luncheon at the Lincoln hotel.

Social Clubs

Palm club met Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Knoblauch, 3016 Q street. At cards during the afternoon, Mrs. Floyd Belote won the prize. The hostess served a thre-course luncheon after the game. The club's next meeting will be held this Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wittstruck, 350 North Thirty-third street.

Mrs. Den Hunt was hostess Wednesday afternoon to the members of the Wimodausis club at her home at Fifty-first and O streets. Nineteen members were present, with Mrs. Anna Towns as the only guest. Mrs. Lawrence Wentz gave several piano selections. The hostess was assisted in serving by her daughter, Miss Evelyn, and her daubhter-in-law, Mrs. Cronin Hunt. The club meets June 4 with Mrs. J. P. Clements, at the home of Mrs. J. C. Clements, 414 South Fifty-third street.

Mrs. S. W. Maynard, 1819 South Twenty-third street, entertained at luncheon Wednesday for members of the Llasinet club. The guests were seated at one table at which a color scheme of yellow and green was carried out in all the appointments. A basket of yellow roses and daisies formed the centerpiece and at either end of the table were crystal candlesticks with yellow tapers and tied with yellow tulle ribbon. The living room was made attractive with spring flowers. The afternoon was spent at fancy work and discussion of current events. A short business meeting was held and the following officers weer elected for the coming year: Mrs. S. W. Maynard, president; Mrs. J. S. Bishop, secretary. The next meeting will be held Friday, May 23, when the club members will entertain at 7 o'clock dinner for their husbands, at the home of Mrs. A. D. Grow, 402 South Twenty-ninth street.

R. C. club met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Bell, 1517 North Thirty-third street. The business meeting was followed by a social hour, and in a contest, the prize went to Mrs. E. S. Wood. Refreshments were served by the hostess. The place and date for the next meeting will be announced later.

Mrs. John Beachley, Mrs. George Levi, and Mrs. John Selleck were hostesses Friday at 1 o'clock luncheon at the University club for members of the San Shi club. Lavender and yellow were used in decorations at the luncheon table, and Mrs. Duane Marcotte won high score at bridge after the luncheon. The date for the next meeting is as yet indefinite.

Parties of the Week

The Philathea class of the second Presbyterian church entertained the mothers of members with a banquet Friday evening at the Woodburn. Covers were laid for thirty-two at tables attractively decorated with spring flowers and candles. A three course dinner was served. Class songs were sung, class yells given, and greetings read from absent philatheas. Following the dinner the guests were entertained by an interesting program consisting of readings by Miss Ferree and saxaphone selections by Miss Ferree accompanied by Mr. Fetz. Besides the Philathea mothers, there were present as guests, Dr. and Mrs. S. S. Hilscher.

The seniors of Mu Phi Epsilon of the University School of Music were entertained at dinner by Miss Alice Hussong Wednesday evening at her home, 1549 South Twenty-third street. The table appointments were in purple and white, the sorority colors. Miss Grace Bazant, Ethyl Robinson, Nira Means, Halcyon Hooker, Edla Jedlicka, Alliebelle Brown ,and Alice Sorenson were the honor guests. Mrs. Edith B. Ross, who will leave in June for a trip abroad, was among the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Wolf were given a surprise party last Sunday evening at their home, 635 North Sixteenth street, by a group of their friends in honor of their tenth wedding anniversary, the party being arranged by Mr. and Mrs. E. Hill. Six tables of players were present, high scores being made by Dan Hill and Mrs. Greenstone. At the close of the evening, refreshments were served.

Gamut club of the Teachers' college of the University gave a dinner Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Brunell, 331 North Thirteenth street, at which Mrs. Lucile Duncan who was for six years in the Yukon read some of her original poems of life there and Miss Jessie Green of the extension department of the agricultural college discussed club work for boys and girls. Miss Elsie Silver was elected president, Miss Mary Davis, Miss Irene Parsons, Miss Lillian Basler, and Miss Louise Snapp, vice presidents; Miss Mabel Buhacek, secretary; and Miss Lucile Livingston, treasurer. Dr. Lida B. Earhart is sponsor of the organization.

The annual spring guest night of the Wooden Spoon will be held Tuesday evening. Dinner will be served at the Miller and Paine tea room, after which an interesting program has been planned. Covers will be placed for about eighty guests.

Complimenting Miss Janet Chase, whose marriage to George Sallidan will take place in June, Mrs. Samuel Waugh and Mrs. W. B. Romans entertained at a bridge luncheon yesterday. Luncheon was served at the home of Mrs. Waugh, 2501 Bradfield drive, where the sixteen guests were seated at two tables. Crystal baskets massed with bridal wreath centered the tables and white tapers were at either end. The place cards were tiny brides and small green and white candy plants were given as favors. The after luncheon hours were spent with bridge at the home of Mrs. Romans on Rathbone road. Mrs. Norman Curtice of Dayton, O., was an out of town guest.

Honoring Mrs. E. P. Dunkman of Rock Island, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thornton entertained at the only large dinner at the Country club last night. Fifty guests were seated at the two tables on which spring decorations were used. The after-dinner hours were spent with dancing.

Mrs. Sherman Doman, 3050 N street, had as her guests last week end Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Daggett and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Maul of Des Moines. They also spent some time with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Mitchell, 3800 Dudley street. Mrs. Doman, Mrs. Mitchell, and Mrs. Daggett are sisters.

Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell entertained at bridge at their home in honor of the visitors. Three tables of players were present and spring blossoms were used in decorating. Supper was served at the close of the evening. Sunday evening, Mrs. Doman was hostess at an informal evening affair for the same guests. Seventeen guests were present. Valley lilies were used in the rooms.

LAST SUNDAY EXHIBIT LINCOLN ARTISTS' GUILD.

The art gallery in the library building of the university will be open to the public from 3 to 10 o'clock today. This will be the last exhibit of the Lincoln Artists' Guild, but on account of the meeting of the grand chapter of Eastern Star in Lincoln, the pictures will not be taken down until the last of the week.

The paintings and crafts have been enjoyed by a great many people, and the public has appreciated the Sunday openings. Several hundred have visited the gallery, especially to enjoy these works, which include portraits, landscapes, batik, china, wood carving and other crafts, all by Lincoln artists, or by artists who have at some time lived in Lincoln.

Among the members of the guild who will be present during the opening hours today will be: Mrs. Alice Edmiston, Mrs. Clara Leland, Mr. and Mrs. Keats W. Lorenz, Mr. and Mrs. Paul S. Laune, Misses Helen Tuttle, Lillie Yont, Helen Wilson, Gladys Dana and Martha Turner.

EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Mary J. Miller, who celebrated her eightieth birthday anniversary Thursday at her home, 1822 South Fifteenth street. Her four children and their families were with her, which is the first time in thirty-five years that Mrs. Miller and her sons and daughter have all been together. Those who were at the celebration were Andrew Miller and family, Roseville, Cal.; Mrs. M. C. Woolington, Denver, Col.; Ira Miller and Sherman Miller, Lincoln.

Dinner, which was attended by the family only, was served at 4 o'clock. The table was centered with a birthday cake, topped with eighty candles. The cake was heart shaped and the candles were arranged in the figure "80." Spring flowers were used in decorating. In the evening, a reception was held, and a large number of relatives and friends called during the receiving hours. Mrs. Miller was presented with a large number of gifts.

Mrs. Miller was born in Picquay county, O., in 1844 and was married February 22, 1866, in Lafayette, Ind., to Washington Miller, a Civil war soldier. Mr. Miller died in 1885 and Mrs. Miller came to Lincoln the following year.

Mrs. Miller has excellent health and walks to and from Trinity M. E. church once or twice each Sunday. She has been a member of this church for twenty years.

HELLENIC CHAUTAUQUA COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM.

Hellenic Chautauqua circle met at the home of Mrs. C. E. Abbott, 1455 Washington street, last Tuesday for a 1 o'clock luncheon, and commencement program. Twenty members and guests were present seated at one large and one small table. A bowl of tulips surrounded with lilacs, formed the center piece and crystal candle holders with green tapers, stood at the ends of the tables. Baskets of lilacs were used in the living room.

Several flute solos by Rex Fair, accompanied by Miss Katherine Kimball, preceded the program and were greatly enjoyed.

The program which follows, closes the year's work and completes four years work required for graduation:

America was sung by class, accompanied by Mrs. Parker Wickstrum, and led by Mrs. E. S. Gunn.

Chautauqua motto, and the motto for 1924, by the class, Mrs. C. O. Morgan, leader.

Greeting to new officers, Mrs. B. A. Cosner; response, Mrs. E. S. Franklin.

LAST SUNDAY EXHIBIT LINCOLN ARTISTS' GUILD.

The art gallery in the library building of the university will be open to the public from 3 to 10 o'clock today. This will be the last exhibit of the Lincoln Artists' Guild, but on account of the meeting of the grand chapter of Eastern Star in Lincoln, the pictures will not be taken down until the last of the week.

The paintings and crafts have been enjoyed by a great many people, and the public has appreciated the Sunday openings. Several hundred have visited the gallery, especially to enjoy these works, which include portraits, landscapes, batik, china, wood carving and other crafts, all by Lincoln artists, or by artists who have at some time lived in Lincoln.

Among the members of the guild who will be present during the opening hours today will be: Mrs. Alice Edmiston, Mrs. Clara Leland, Mr. and Mrs. Keats W. Lorenz, Mr. and Mrs. Paul S. Laune, Misses Helen Tuttle, Lillie Yont, Helen Wilson, Gladys Dana and Martha Turner.

EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Mary J. Miller, who celebrated her eightieth birthday anniversary Thursday at her home, 1822 South Fifteenth street. Her four children and their families were with her, which is the first time in thirty-five years that Mrs. Miller and her sons and daughter have all been together. Those who were at the celebration were Andrew Miller and family, Roseville, Cal.; Mrs. M. C. Woolington, Denver, Col.; Ira Miller and Sherman Miller, Lincoln.

Dinner, which was attended by the family only, was served at 4 o'clock. The table was centered with a birthday cake, topped with eighty candles. The cake was heart shaped and the candles were arranged in the figure "80." Spring flowers were used in decorating. In the evening, a reception was held, and a large number of relatives and friends called during the receiving hours. Mrs. Miller was presented with a large number of gifts.

Mrs. Miller was born in Picquay county, O., in 1844 and was married February 22, 1866, in Lafayette, Ind., to Washington Miller, a Civil war soldier. Mr. Miller died in 1885 and Mrs. Miller came to Lincoln the following year.

Mrs. Miller has excellent health and walks to and from Trinity M. E. church once or twice each Sunday. She has been a member of this church for twenty years.

HELLENIC CHAUTAUQUA COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM.

Hellenic Chautauqua circle met at the home of Mrs. C. E. Abbott, 1455 Washington street, last Tuesday for a 1 o'clock luncheon, and commencement program. Twenty members and guests were present seated at one large and one small table. A bowl of tulips surrounded with lilacs, formed the center piece and crystal candle holders with green tapers, stood at the ends of the tables. Baskets of lilacs were used in the living room.

Several flute solos by Rex Fair, accompanied by Miss Katherine Kimball, preceded the program and were greatly enjoyed.

The program which follows, closes the year's work and completes four years work required for graduation:

America was sung by class, accompanied by Mrs. Parker Wickstrum, and led by Mrs. E. S. Gunn.

Chautauqua motto, and the motto for 1924, by the class, Mrs. C. O. Morgan, leader.

Greeting to new officers, Mrs. B. A. Cosner; response, Mrs. E. S. Franklin.

Farewell to graduates, with original rhyme to each, Mrs. A. F. Berggren.

Response—"What Chautauqua has meant to me"—Each graduate, Mrs C. E. Abbott, Mrs. W. A. Kirby, Mrs. A. B. Cole, Mrs. C. O. Morgan.

Piano solos—Mrs. Parker Wickstrum; Vocal solos—Miss Dorothy Abbott.

Address by the president, Mrs. E. S. Gunn, followed by the presentation of booklets, "A Friend or Two" by Wilbur D. Nesbit, to members of the graduating class.

The hostess, Mrs. C. E. Abbott, was assisted by Mrs. J. J. Bristow, Mrs. Rex Fair, Mrs. J. B. Hollenbeck and Mrs. J. H. Strayer.

RANDOLPH P. T. A. HOLDS ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The Randolph Parent-Teacher association met in the school building last Tuesday afternoon for the annual election of officers. An interesting programs of songs and piano numbers was given by the pupils before the regular business, which included reports from the old officers and committees. The election resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Orin Bates; vice president, Mrs. R. C. Pauley; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Charles A. Mohrman; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Miles J. Breuer.

Plans were completed for the picnic May 28. This is to be the annual school picnic. The picture was won again by the kindergarten, which makes it the final property of that room.

CHAPTER BR, P. E. O. IN MOTHER'S DAY PARTY.

Chapter BR P. E. O. held the annual Mother's day party Saturday, May 3, at the home of Mrs. C. H. Batie. They sang three numbers in chapel, one from Bach's "Passion Play," "Twenty-third Psalm" by Schubert, and an old Norwegian hymn, "Built on the Rock, the Church Doth Stand." Their singing is most beautiful and harmonious.

The marriage of Miss Inez Larson of Oakland, Nebraska, and Mr. Thomas Rinde, a senior in the seminary, took place on Friday noon, May 2. Miss Larson is a Midland student having attended Midland until just recently. Mr. Rinde will graduate from the seminary this spring and has accepted a call to Laramie, Wyoming, where they will be at home to their friends after October 1.

Dean W. E. Tilberg will give a talk on "The Responsibility for the Compromise Failure of 1860" at the meeting of the State Historical association at Lincoln, Nebraska, Saturday, May 10.

1916 HODGMAN SERVICE 1924

"Let me live by the side of the road and be a friend to man."

THE question of how much to spend on a funeral should be determined by the financial circumstances of the family or close friends of the deceased. We allow our patrons to set the price. Our policy is to render the best possible service at the lowest possible price. We do not offer "cheap" funerals, nor are we high priced.

MIDLAND NOTES.

Thursday morning, April 29, the College Sacred Octette made their first appearance in chapel before the student body and faculty. These singers have been especially trained by Professor Jones and are going out on the field in behalf of Midland's endowment campaign. They sang three numbers in chapel, one from Bach's "Passion Play." The "Twenty-third Psalm" by Schubert, and an old Norwegian hymn, "Built on the Rock, the Church Doth Stand." Their singing is most beautiful and harmonious.

The marriage of Miss Inez Larson of Oakland, Nebraska, and Mr. Thomas Rinde, a senior in the seminary, took place on Friday noon, May 2. Miss Larson is a Midland student having attended Midland until just recently. Mr. Rinde will graduate from the seminary this spring and has accepted a call to Laramie, Wyoming, where they will be at home to their friends after October 1.

Dean W. E. Tilberg will give a talk on "The Responsibility for the Compromise Failure of 1860" at the meeting of the State Historical association at Lincoln, Nebraska, Saturday, May 10.

1916 HODGMAN SERVICE 1924

"Let me live by the side of the road and be a friend to man."

THE question of how much to spend on a funeral should be determined by the financial circumstances of the family or close friends of the deceased. We allow our patrons to set the price. Our policy is to render the best possible service at the lowest possible price. We do not offer "cheap" funerals, nor are we high priced.

MOTHER'S DAY

This is the only day in the year when men and women pause and think in unison of the same word. Mother is uppermost in all minds and, quietly, all praise and honor her. For the mothers of this commonwealth, are the greatest soldiers we have and this is the day when all do honor to their name—with a visit, if they are living and we are able to go to them, with a letter if it be impossible to reach them; and if their spirit has gone to the great beyond, a quiet meditation. She has gone but her work goes on and as one has said,

"She may be listening-in at some angel radio station and hearing the message of love which fills my heart."

The first annual May Music festival, May 5 and 6, at Nebraska Wesleyan university was a notable event in the suburb. Visitors were present from many parts of the state, and expressed satisfaction and pleasure in the whole program.

The idea of the festival originated with Dean Parvin Witte of the Wesleyan College of Fine Arts. His plan was approved by the Wesleyan board of trustees in the spring of 1923 and a committee was appointed to cooperate with the dean. The work of assembling the chorus was begun when the university opened in September. Rehearsals for the oratorio were started in January.

Witte Selects Soloists.

Soloists were selected by Dean Witte from those whose excellence was familiar to him from his days of maintaining studios in Chicago and Kansas City.

Howard E. Preston of Chicago has long been a personal friend of the dean. Mr. Preston has a fine baritone voice and an impressive personality together with the ability to understand music and people. Many in the audience thought the duet he insisted upon introducing into the initial performance was the best thing on that program. This he sang with Dean Witte.

Carleton Cummings of Chicago received a pleasant welcome from the audience as he was known to his hearers both by name and personally from the days when he was a student at the Wesleyan conservatory. His tenor voice has both strength and sweetness. He possesses also the pleasing quality of musical adjustment to the composition and his fellow singers.

Women Vie for Honors.

Mesdames Allen Taylor, soprano, and Raymond Havens, contralto, of Kansas City vied for honors with their hearers. Their singing was delightful. Mrs. Taylor's voice is clear and of much compass. Mrs. Havens' voice possesses unusual sweetness with a velveyt richness

The Monday afternoon concert was given by the quartet. Every number was commendable. The audience demanded encores and were given by Mr. Cummings, "That Sweet Little Woman of Mine," "Hard Trials;" Mrs. Taylor, "Ecstasy;" Mrs. Havens, "Ma Lindy Lou;" Mr. Preston, "Trade Winds."

The Monday Program.

The Monday afternoon program consisted of these numbers:

"Flower Song" from "Carmen," Bizet—Mr. Cummings.

Vergebliches Standchen, Brahms; The Cave, Schneider; The Answer, Terry—Mrs Havens.

Four Songs from the Cycle: "Vignettes of Italy"—Winter Watts.

Ruins of Paestrum, Night Songs of Amalfi, Ponte Vecchio, Florence; Addio—Mrs. Taylor.

In Quest Ora from LaForza, Verd—Dean Witte and Mr. Preston.

"Vission Fugitive" from "Heriodiade," Massenet—Mr. Preston.

O Let Night Speak of Me, Chadwick; Long Ago, MacDowell; Eleanore, Coleridge Taylo—Mr. Cummings.

The Blind Ploughman, Clark; Danny Deever, Damroseh—Mr. Preston.

Duet from "Aida," Verdi
"Fu la Sorte dell Armi"—Mrs. Allen Taylor, Mrs. Raymond Havens, Roy Fager at the piano.

Miss Macbeth in Concert.

Miss Florence Macbeth of the civic grand opera company of Chicago presented the second concert of the Wesleyan festival Monday evening. Each number was selected to make for unity of theme. This wonderful singer, already called by many the foremost vocalist in America, cannot be given her due with cold, hard rhetoric and unfeeling grammar. Many who heard her Monday evening declared they had never imagined the human voice could give such delight. Miss Macbeth is lovely and gracious. Her voice is perfect. She has intellectuality and charm. When she sings in the Chicago auditorium even the topmost galleries are filled. The Italian resident brings his entire family and many of the city's poor who love music go without the price of a meal or two for an evening within the spell of her voice. Perhaps next time Miss Macbeth comes to Nebraska she will find no empty seats confronting her. She was kind in encores which formed no small part of her performance. These included Schaefer's "Cuckoo Clock," "The Lilac Tree," and "Annie Laurie."

George Roberts, composer and pianist, was the accompanist. His solo group was excellently received.

The Macbeth-Roberts program was as follows:

What's Sweeter Than a New Blown Rose, Handel.
Passing By, Purcell.
Kum Kyra (Norweglan Echo Song) Thrane.
Miss Macbeth.
Der Nussbaum, Schumann.
Die Forelle, Schubert.
Ah! Si Les Fleurs, Massenet.
The Nightengale and the Rose, Saint-Saens.
Miss Macbeth.
Aria "Caro Nome," Verdi (From "Rigoletto")—Miss Macbeth.
Saf, Saf, Susa, Sibelius Palmgren.
Gringe Tango, Lane.
Ride of the Cowboy, Ross.
Mr. Roberts.
Bitterness of Love, Dunn.
Pierrot, Roberts.
I Hear a Thrush at Eve, Cadman.
Come to the Fair, Martin.
Miss Macbeth.

Concludes With Oratorio.

Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," was presented in the final concert Tuesday evening by the Wesleyan chorus of 120, directed by Dean Witte an orchestra of twenty-five pieces conducted by August Molzer, and the quartet, Mesdames Taylor and Havens and Messrs. Cummings and Preston. Dean and Mrs. Witte achieved remarkable results. The latter was grouped with the sopranos and appeared in the double quartet. Other notable voices heard were those of Mrs. O. H. Bimson, Miss Sara Marshall, and Miss Stella Olson.

The voices of the chorus blended well. They showed sweetness and vigor, and Dean Witte and Prof. Molzer received many compliments for their fine work. Mr. Preston carried the role of "Elijah" with commendable dramatization of the part, and Mr. Cumming's singing of "Then Shall the Righteous" was pleasing. Mrs. Havens sang the part of the "Angel." The role of "widow" in the oratorio was charmingly taken by Mrs. Taylor.

Pianists Deserve Praise.

The accompanists at the piano deserve much praise. Miss Fleda Graham of Lincoln accompanied her cousin, Mr. Cummings, in the initial performance, and Roy Fager of Franklin, Nebraska, appeared to good advantage in that concert also. Miss Alta Vaughan of the Wesleyan conservatory was excellent in the oratorio.

The chorus and soloists of the Omaha Music society will give a concert at the Temple theater Wednesday, May 28, under the auspices of the Lincoln Unit of the Steuben Society of America. The program will consist of numbers for men's, women's, and mixed choruses and of vocal and violin solos. The chorus is under the direction of Prof. Theodore Rud Reese, a chorus and orchestra conductor of note. On the committee of arrangements are George Meyer, August Brauer, George Schrank, G. F. Beschorner, Mrs. Gerald C. Krause, Mrs. W. A. Krause, Mrs. V. E. Cather, Miss F. A. Meyer, and Miss Helen Pfeiff.

A review of music and drama by artists trained in Lincoln will be given Thursday evening at 6:15 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce under the auspices of the Knife and Fork club. Members and guests for whom they wish to reserve tickets will be present. The program to be presented follows:

Travel and Resorts

Colorado One Of Beauty Spots Of All America

Mining and agriculture have brought to Colorado a great measure of its fame, but to its scenic beauty—its mountain playgrounds—must the state give credit for its greatest fame. To the state's delightful climate, and unsurpassed qualifications as a summer resting place also must go a great measure of credit.

Perhaps nowhere in America is there a state which can boast of such profound canyons hollowed out by the rivers of ancient days when nature was building North America's greatest watershed, as can Colorado

Valleys of Amazing Beauty.

Mountain valleys of amazing beauty lie between the great ranges, the world renouned natural parks where resorts have been opened to care for the sight-seer, fisherman, mountaineer, horseman, and naturalist. Add to this perpetual snow and ice, within a few hours of the most populous cities, and their easy accessibility, both by safe motor trails, and train, and you have the reason for the state's outstanding popularity among summer pleasure seekers.

The high and varied character of Colorado's scenic grandeur, her great snowy peaks, rugged canyons, musical mountain streams, sparkling cascades, beautiful lakes, living glaciers, delightful wild-flower gardens of astonishing variety and profusion, and mile upon mile of excellent roads and trails, offering unbounded opportunity for recreation and healthful surroundings, are some of the outstanding elements that go to produce the liresistable appeal of the state.

Beauty Continually Changing.

Never an hour of the day but there is a change in the scenic beauty of the state. Hour by hour as the sun rises to its zenith, now touching the snow-capped peaks, transforming them into a wonderland of color; and then dipping down into valley and dale to kiss away the morning dew it defies the skill and brush of the greatest of nature artists to reproduce its glories.

This summer from all parts of the United States people will go to Colorado to spend a week; two weeks perhaps, or a month. And there will be many who will go from Lincoln and Nebraska. They will need travel helps before they decided on where to go, so many are the resorts and so beautiful is the scenery of the entire country.

To help readers of the Lincoln Star make their decisions on summer vacations, this paper has established a Resort and Travel bureau in the business office.

Helps Make Decisions.

The bureau is a departure from the generally accepted idea of newspaper's business, but it is the business of the Lincoln Star to assist its readers in any way we can, hence the bureau.

In our bureau can be found literature on every point of interest in the state of Colorado. Not only can the outstanding places of interest be learned here, but motor and railway routes, hotels and hotel rates are available.

The service of the Resort and Travel bureau is free to everybody. Those who are not readers of the Lincoln Star are as free to use the service as are those who are. Persons living outside the city enclose 4 cents in stamps to cover cost of mailing, and address your letter to the resort and Travel bureau, Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Neb.

The first annual May Music festival, May 5 and 6, at Nebraska Wesleyan university was a notable event in the suburb. Visitors were present from many parts of the state, and expressed satisfaction and pleasure in the whole program.

The idea of the festival originated with Dean Parvin Witte of the Wesleyan College of Fine Arts. His plan was approved by the Wesleyan board of trustees in the spring of 1923 and a committee was appointed to cooperate with the dean. The work of assembling the chorus was begun when the university opened in September. Rehearsals for the oratorio were started in January.

Witte Selects Soloists.

Soloists were selected by Dean Witte from those whose excellence was familiar to him from his days of maintaining studios in Chicago and Kansas City.

Howard E. Preston of Chicago has long been a personal friend of the dean. Mr. Preston has a fine baritone voice and an impressive personality together with the ability to understand music and people. Many in the audience thought the duet he insisted upon introducing into the initial performance was the best thing on that program. This he sang with Dean Witte.

Carleton Cummings of Chicago received a pleasant welcome from the audience as he was known to his hearers both by name and personally from the days when he was a student at the Wesleyan conservatory. His tenor voice has both strength and sweetness. He possesses also the pleasing quality of musical adjustment to the composition and his fellow singers.

Women Vie for Honors.

Mesdames Allen Taylor, soprano, and Raymond Havens, contralto, of Kansas City vied for honors with their hearers. Their singing was delightful. Mrs. Taylor's voice is clear and of much compass. Mrs. Havens' voice possesses unusual sweetness with a velveyt richness.

The Monday afternoon concert was given by the quartet. Every number was commendable. The audience demanded encores and were given by Mr. Cummings, "That Sweet Little Woman of Mine," "Hard Trials;" Mrs. Taylor, "Ecstasy;" Mrs. Havens, "Ma Lindy Lou;" Mr. Preston, "Trade Winds."

The Monday Program.

The Monday afternoon program consisted of these numbers:

"Flower Song" from "Carmen," Bizet—Mr. Cummings.
Vergebliches Standchen, Brahms; The Cave, Schneider; The Answer, Terry—Mrs. Havens.
Four Songs from the Cycle: "Vignettes of Italy"—Winter Watts.
Ruins of Paestrum, Night Songs of Amalfi, Ponte Vecchio, Florence; Addio—Mrs. Taylor.
In Quest Ora from LaForza, Verd—Dean Witte and Mr. Preston.
"Vission Fugitive" from "Heriodiade," Massenet—Mr. Preston.
O Let Night Speak of Me, Chadwick; Long Ago, MacDowell; Eleanore, Coleridge Taylo—Mr. Cummings.
The Blind Ploughman, Clark; Danny Deever, Damroseh—Mr. Preston.
Duet from "Aida," Verdi
"Fu la Sorte dell Armi"—Mrs. Allen Taylor, Mrs. Raymond Havens, Roy Fager at the piano.

Miss Macbeth in Concert.

Miss Florence Macbeth of the civic grand opera company of Chicago presented the second concert of the Wesleyan festival Monday evening. Each number was selected to make for unity of theme. This wonderful singer, already called by many the foremost vocalist in America, cannot be given her due with cold, hard rhetoric and unfeeling grammar. Many who heard her Monday evening declared they had never imagined the human voice could give such delight. Miss Macbeth is lovely and gracious. Her voice is perfect. She has intellectuality and charm. When she sings in the Chicago auditorium even the topmost galleries are filled. The Italian resident brings his entire family and many of the city's poor who love music go without the price of a meal or two for an evening within the spell of her voice. Perhaps next time Miss Macbeth comes to Nebraska she will find no empty seats confronting her. She was kind in encores which formed no small part of her performance. These included Schaefer's "Cuckoo Clock," "The Lilac Tree," and "Annie Laurie."

George Roberts, composer and pianist, was the accompanist. His solo group was excellently received.

The Macbeth-Roberts program was as follows:

What's Sweeter Than a New Blown Rose, Handel.
Passing By, Purcell.
Kum Kyra (Norwegian Echo Song) Thrane.
Miss Macbeth.
Der Nussbaum, Schumann.
Die Forelle, Schubert.
Ah! Si Les Fleurs, Massenet.
The Nightengale and the Rose, Saint-Saens.
Miss Macbeth.
Aria "Caro Nome," Verdi (From "Rigoletto")—Miss Macbeth.
Saf, Saf, Susa, Sibelius Palmgren.
Gringe Tango, Lane.
Ride of the Cowboy, Ross.
Mr. Roberts.
Bitterness of Love, Dunn.
Pierrot, Roberts.
I Hear a Thrush at Eve, Cadman.
Come to the Fair, Martin.
Miss Macbeth.

Concludes With Oratorio.

Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," was presented in the final concert Tuesday evening by the Wesleyan chorus of 120, directed by Dean Witte an orchestra of twenty-five pieces conducted by August Molzer, and the quartet, Mesdames Taylor and Havens and Messrs. Cummings and Preston. Dean and Mrs. Witte achieved remarkable results. The latter was grouped with the sopranos and appeared in the double quartet. Other notable voices heard were those of Mrs. O. H. Bimson, Miss Sara Marshall, and Miss Stella Olson.

The voices of the chorus blended well. They showed sweetness and vigor, and Dean Witte and Prof. Molzer received many compliments for their fine work. Mr. Preston carried the role of "Elijah" with commendable damatization of the part, and Mr. Cumming's singing of "Then Shall the Righteous" was pleasing. Mrs. Havens sang the part of the "Angel." The role of "widow" in the oratorio was charmingly taken by Mrs. Taylor.

Pianists Deserve Praise.

The accompanists at the piano deserve much praise. Miss Fleda Graham of Lincoln accompanied her cousin, Mr. Cummings, in the initial performance, and Roy Fager of Franklin, Nebraska, appeared to good advantage in that concert also. Miss Alta Vaughan of the Wesleyan conservatory was excellent in the oratorio.

The chorus and soloists of the Omaha Music society will give a concert at the Temple theater Wednesday, May 28, under the auspices of the Lincoln Unit of the Steuben Society of America. The program will consist of numbers for men's, women's, and mixed choruses and of vocal and violin solos. The chorus is under the direction of Prof. Theodore Rud Reese, a chorus and orchestra conductor of note. On the committee of arrangements are George Meyer, August Brauer, George Schrank, G. F. Beschorner, Mrs. Gerald C. Krause, Mrs. W. A. Krause, Mrs. V. E. Cather, Miss F. A. Meyer, and Miss Helen Pfeiff.

A review of music and drama by artists trained in Lincoln will be given Thursday evening at 6:15 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce under the auspices of the Knife and Fork club. Members and guests for whom they wish to reserve tickets will be present. The program to be presented follows:

Travel and Resorts

Colorado One Of Beauty Spots Of All America

Mining and agriculture have brought to Colorado a great measure of its fame, but to its scenic beauty—its mountain playgrounds—must the state give credit for its greatest fame. To the state's delightful climate, and unsurpassed qualifications as a summer resting place also must go a great measure of credit.

Perhaps nowhere in America is there a state which can boast of such profound canyons hollowed out by the rivers of ancient days when nature was building North America's greatest watershed, as can Colorado.

Valleys of Amazing Beauty.

Mountain valleys of amazing beauty lie between the great ranges, the world renouned natural parks where resorts have been opened to care for the sight-seer, fishermaa, mountaineer, horseman, and naturalist. Add to this perpetual snow and ice within a few hours of the most populous cities, and their easy accessibility, both by safe motor trails, and train, and you have the reason for the state's outstanding popularity among summer pleasure seekers.

The high and varied character of Colorado's scenic grandeur, her great snowy peaks, rugged canyons, musical mountain streams, sparkling cascades, beautiful lakes, living glaciers, delightful wild-flower gardens of astonishing variety and profusion, and mile upon mile of excellent roads and trails, offering unbounded opportunity for recreation and healthful surroundings, are some of the outstanding elements that go to produce the irresistable appeal of the state.

Beauty Continually Changing.

Never an hour of the day but there is a change in the scenic beauty of the state. Hour by hour as the sun rises to its zenith, now touching the snow-capped peaks, transforming them into a wonderland of color; and then dipping down into valley and dale to kiss away the morning dew it defies the skill and brush of the greatest of nature artists to reproduce its glories.

This summer from all parts of the United States people will go to Colorado to spend a week; two weeks perhaps, or a month. And there will be many who will go from Lincoln and Nebraska. They will need travel helps before they decided on where to go, so many are the resorts and so beautiful is the scenery of the entire country.

To help readers of the Lincoln Star make their decisions on summer vacations, this paper has established a Resort and Travel bureau in the business office.

Helps Make Decisions.

The bureau is a departure from the generally accepted idea of newspaper's business, but it is the business of the Lincoln Star to assist its readers in any way we can, hence the bureau.

In our bureau can be found literature on every point of interest in the state of Colorado. Not only can the outstanding places of interest be learned here, but motor and railway routes, hotels and hotel rates are available.

The service of the Resort and Travel bureau is free to everybody. Those who are not readers of the Lincoln Star are as free to use the service as are those who are. Persons living outside the city enclose 4 cents in stamps to cover cost of mailing, and address your letter to the resort and Travel bureau, Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Neb.

BIG WONDER SHOW COMING.

Taken from all angles the engagement of Blackstone and his magical extravaganza at the Orpheum, Lincoln, May 13 and 14, with daily matinees is of more than passing importance. Not only is Blackstone himself regarded as the foremost of living copjurers but the outfit is the largest in personnel and equipment that has ever been attempted in the history of necromancy. No attraction of any kind, not even musical comedies, exceeds the Blackstone in magnitude.

Not even the late Herrmann the Great, boasted such an elaborate repertoire of opulent illusions as Blackstone maintains. He features the magnificent and spectacular, thus placing his enterprise far beyond the confines of the usual magic entertainment and invades the field of spectacle and extravaganza. In his famous "Vanishing Horse" illusion alone, several tons of paraphernalia is employed. In "Birth of Fashion" numerous handsome mannequins are revealed. "Duck Inn" requires the services of a flock of feathered Magis let alone their human aids.

Two double length baggage cars are required to transport the Blackstone outfit while a company of twenty-five is employed to aid the master in his mystifying accomplishments.

ETHEL BARRYMORE IN "THE LAUGHING LADY" AT THE ORPHEUM THURSDAY NIGHT.

After an absence of two years, Ethel Barrymore is about to visit Lincoln. For one night she comes to the Orpheum and as comedienne in the exercise of the abilities in which her public most prefer her. The piece is "The Laughing Lady," by Sir Alfred Sutro, serious comedy of engaging pattern originally acted by Miss Barrymore in New York last season. The play moves in high places socially and is bestewn with sharp and witty tongues. It begins with the unwarranted divorce of a Lady Marjorie Colladine; unfolds the infatuation she has fired in the lawyer who convicts her; restores him to soberer courses; in the end, leading her back to her husband. Out of the whole, shines Miss Barrymore as comedienne with an able company around her. Arthur Hopkins has prepared and also sponsors the performance.

ROBERT B. MANTELL COMES TO THE ORPHEUM MAY 19, 20, 21.

The distinguished tragedian, Robert B. Mantell, supported by Genevieve Hamper and a brilliant company of players come to the Orpheum theatre for three nights and Wednesday matinee, commencing Monday, May 19. Four great plays will be presented and every one a classic. The engagement will be inaugurated with Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton's historical drama, "Richelieu," with Mr. Mantell in one of his greatest characterizations as the cardinal minister of France. Tuesday night, "Macbeth" will be the bill with Mr. Mantell as the Thane of Cawdor and Miss Hamper as the sonumbulistic Lady Macbeth. At the matinee Wednesday, Miss Hamper will be seen in one of her most charming roles, Rosalind, in "As You Like It." Mr. Mantell will interpret Jacques. The engagement will be brought to a close Wednesday night with the ever popular "Julius Caesar" with Mr. Mantell as Brutus and Miss Hamper as Portia. Each play will have a magnificent pictorial setting.

A FINE ARRAY OF FEATURE PHOTOPLAYS AT THE LYRIC, RIALTO AND COLONIAL.

At the Lyric "Lilies of the Field," a society drama of rare strength and magnificence; at the Rialto, "Boy of Mine," the year's greatest human drama, and at the Colonial, "West of the Water Tower," a picturization of the most widely discussed novel of recent years.

ROSINI, THE MARVEL HEADLINES SPLENDID NEW BILL OPENING AT THE LIBERTY MONDAY MATINEE.

The new bill opening at the Liberty Monday for the first half of the week, should prove to be wonderful entertainment and delight all lovers of good vaudeville. Rosini is a master magician who will amaze all with his pretentious offering; La Paiva & Company in the Chilconee ballet divertisement is one of the best known organizations of its kind in Europe and is creating a sensation in this coutry; Knox & Inman have a clever comedy in "The Collector;" Rives & Arnold have a distinct novelty that convulse al lwith laughter; The Wellington Trio of singing funsters; Gordon Bennett, barjtone, and the last chapter of "The Leatherstocking Tales;" News Weekly and Babich and his orchestra. Coming the last half of the week, Carl Fletcher & Company in a beautiful offering, "Sweet Sixteen," and other excellent acts.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I have never written before and am not a Lincoln fan. I am only visiting here. Will you please tell me the names of the Rialto and Lyric orchestra players, and the instruments each play? If you can, will you tell me the nationality of each. Or if you do not know, will you tell me from what nation their names comes from?

Why is it saxophones or bassons do not prevail in orchestras that play for shows. I play both. But only have seen them used in dance orchestras. Thanking you in advance, I am, LEONARD.

Ans.—The members of the two orchestras are, of course, all Americans. I'm afraid it would be too much like delving into ancient history, to try to "dig up" the nation from which their names was derived.

The members of the Rialto orchestra are, Prof. Jean Schaefer, conductor and violinist; Mrs. Helen Wittmann, pianist; August Dietz, bass viol; Don Berry, trumpet; E. M. Jackson, drums; cello, Herbert Gray; organist, Herbert McAhan.

At the Lyric the personnel of the orchestra is Ernest Harrison, pianist and director; A. L. Bonner, violin; Vern Forbes, trumpet; Bernard Nevin, drums; V. Schlonecker, relief pianist. E. E. Ewing, clarinet; C. I. Matthews, flute.

At the Lyric a trio, composed of Misses Geralyn Walreth, violin; Willa Givens, cello, and Marjorie Little, piano, relieves the orchestra.

Screen Siftings

Gilbert Signs Contract.—John Gilbert has the honor of being the first actor to sign with the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company. The contract takes Mr. Gilgert back to the studio where he did his first motion picture work, at Culver City. He has been starring in Fox pictures recently, and is considered one of the most romantic actors of the screen.

Announces Engagement—Lucy Fox has announced her engagement to Jules Forman, a silk merchant of New York. The marriage will take place in October, when Miss Fox plans to retire from the screen for private life.

"Dirty Hands"—"Dirty Hands," an original screen story, will be the fourth and last picture Jackie Coogan will make under his famous Metro contract. The final production is to be started early this summer, so that Jackie can start on his trip to the Near East in September Jackie will have charge of a "million dollar" cargo of milk and food for the starving orphans of Greece, Armenia and the Holy Lands. Prior to his sailing, Master Jack will lead a Modern Children's Crusade throughout this country, appealing for suport and co-operation with the Near East Relief.

Special Musical Score—Frank Lloyd's First National Picture, "The Sea Hawk," has inspired a musical composition which will be inserted in the special musical score being written for the play and will be offered on the music stands under the title of "Sea Hawk" or "The Song of a Love Pirate's Sweetheart." Modest Altschuler, former conductor of the Russian symphony orchestra of New York, is responsible for the composition.

Shoot Extra Film—The average director usually "shoots" 60,000 to 90,000 feet of film to get a feature that appears on the screen in finished form in 6,000 feet. Louis H. Tolhurst, who makes the "Secrets of Life" series for Principal Pictures Studios, works with "bugs" and shoots 1,100 feet to get 1,000 feet of finished product.

Signs For London Picture—Pauline Garon has just signed a contract to make a picture in London. She is on her way to New York from Hollywood, and will sail immediately for Europe. This is her first trip abroad.

Featured Roles—Huntley Gordon Gertrude Astor are playing husband and wife for the third time in motion pictures. Both are cast in featured roles in Roland West's new production, "Driftwood," which is being made at Goldwyn studio.

Completing McLean Pictures—Final scenes are being "shot" for "Never Say Die," the latest Douglas MacLean picture. It is an adaptation of the William Collier stage vehicle which ran so long in New York, London and Australia. This makes Doug's third independent starring production.

Will Direct Norma—Joseph Schenck announces that Bidney Olcott will direct Norma Talmadge in her next picture, an original by C. Gardner Sullivan, which has been titled, "The Fight." Mr. Olcott directed Marion Davies in "Little Old New York."

Andy Gump Series—Jackie Morgan, the "Little Chester" of Universal's series of Andy Gump comedies, has been cast for an important role in "Judgment of West Paradise" which is being made at Universal City under the direction of Nat oRss. Jackie will have the role of a country kid. John Walker and Gladys Hulette head the cast, which includes also Billy Sullivan, Philo McCullough, Margaret Landis and George Nichols.

Cancels Stage Plans—Myrtle Stedman is so much in demand for pictures that she has been forced to cancel her plans to tour the Orpheum circuit in a one act dramatic playlet. She started work this week in an important role in "Bread," which is being made at the Metro Studio. As soon as her work in that picture is completed, Miss Stedman has a featured part in "Wine," a Universal special waiting for her.

Wears Boy's Clothes—Dorothy Devore wears boy's clothes and makes three changes in her masculin attire during the filming of the current Christie Comedy "Hold Your Breath," in which she heads the all-star cast.

Keeps Her Busy—It keeps Pola Negri busy these days denying the report of her engagement to Rod La Rocque. She admits she admires him, and that she's been his partner at several dinner parties, but that does not necessarily constitute an engagement.

"Belonging."—"Belonging," a novel by Olive Wadsley dealing with high society life in Paris and London, has been purchased by M. C.: Levee for Maurice Tourneur's next production. Mr. Tourneur recently completed "The White Moth," in which Conway Tearle and Barbara La Marr were featured. He will start camera work on "Belonging" about June 1. Glenn Hunter has journeyed from New York to Hollywood, where he will make a screen version" of his stage hit, "Merton of the Movies." The picture will be made under the direction of James Cruze.

Opens Beauty Shop—Edna Flugrath, who in private life is the wife of Harold Shaw, motion picture director, and the sister of Viola Dana has opened up a beauty shop in Hollywood.

Purchase Screen Rights.—According to a recent announcement by the new Goldwyn-Metro-Mayer merger, "The Merry Widow," will be Mae Murray's next picture. Goldwyn purchased the screen rights to the operetta, which is particularly suitable for a Mae Murray vehicle.

To Travel Incognito—Upon completing her work in "Tess of the D'Ubervilles," which she is making under the direction of her husband, Marshall Neilan, Blanche Sweet is planning a three months tour of Europe. She will travel incognito and will visit Ireland, England, France, Germany, Russia and Italy before returning to this country.

"The Alaskan"—Thomas Meighan, who has been making most of his pictures in the east will go to Hollywood to film "The Alaskan" under Herbert Brenon's direction.

"He Who Gets Slapped"—Lon Chaney, one of the best known character actors of the screen, has been engaegd to play the role in the screen version of "He Who Gets Slapped," which Richard Bennett played on the stage last year. The famous Leonid Andreyev drama is to be picturized by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, with Victor Seastrom handling the megaphone.

The Doane Players gave two performances of "Adam and Eva" at the auditorium of the Lincoln high school, May 9 and 10.

HASTINGS COLLEGE NOTES

Plans to make the 1924 May fete the greatest in the history of the school are progressing rapidly. This year's fete will be held on the campus the evening of May 20 or the first evening after that date the weather will permit. Miss Roberta Mackechnie is the general chairman in charge of the annual event and out-of-doors event and work on the various features of the entertainment is well under way. Special seating arrangements and lighting to accommodate the largest crowd which has ever attended the fete are being made and it is anticipated this will be one of the greatest events of the college year.

Russell Chandler, '23, principal of the Nelson high school, was the speaker in the college Y. M. C. A. meeting on Thursday morning.

Among the principle events of the remainder of the year are the recitals of the conservatory of music. The recitals at the close of the year always attract a great deal of attention both from the student body and the friends of the college in the city and out in the state. The group this year gives promise of being an unusually good one. The following are the recitals with their dates:

May 13—Voice pupils of Hayes M. Fuhr.

May 23—Graduation piano recital of Mabel Giddings.

May 26—Graduation piano recital of Roberta Mackechnie.

May 27—Piano and voice recital, pupils of Iss Margaret Jamieson and Miss Helen Crawford.

May 30—Violin and Piano recital, pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Sammis.

June 2—Graduation voice recital of Boyd Bohlke and Lindsey Henning.

June 3—Final conservatory concert.

To The Theater goers of Lincoln and Her Empire:

It is with more than a little pleasure that I am able to chronicle the advent of BLACKSTONE and his corps of wonderful workers to Lincoln. This attraction is now playing cities in the east, and I go on record that it is past peradventure the finest entertainment, from all angles, I have ever seen or had the opportunity of providing at POPULAR PRICES in my career as a showman. Absolutely all attendance records in the history of theatricals have been broken by BLACKSTONE.

I commend BLACKSTONE to you and believe that you have the biggest treat of the entire season in prospect.

Sincerely Yours,
L. M. GARMAN, Managing Director. Orpheum Theater.

A Typical Newspaper Review of Blackstone Show.
What Lansing State Journal Said:

THE GREAT BLACKSTONE

I went over to see The Great Blackstone Sunday afternoon.

Well, sir, he made a real live horse disappear right in front of your eyes, got a whole barnyard full of animals from an empty packing box, caught pigeons out of the air with a landing net, did card tricks slicker than you have ever seen done before and had an awful time with a little girl in a red and white gingham dress. He gave the little girl a rabbit and offered to wrap it up for her, but she had evidently seen Blackstone before because she said not to bother. So Blackstone wrapped it up anyway and turned it into a box of candy. The little girl appeared a little peeved and seemed inclined to stick for a finish so Blackstone took the wrapping paper and made the rabbit appear again and gave it back to the little girl to keep.

Another little boy nearly got himself in bad by "giving" Blackstone a watch instead of loaning" it to him, but they finally found it again all tied up in the bottom of about seven trunks, each of which was inside of another. The little boy got the watch back.

It was pretty good when Blackstone got a whole flock of East Lansing ducks out of a bucket of water and again when he borrowed a handkerchief from a fat man in the third row and made it dance all around the stage. One of the most magical things he did was to give the audience an idea of what a bachelor spends his time thinking about. "The Bachelor's Dream," he called it, turned out to be quite an eye full.

But in all seriousness, Blackstone is a real magician. He does not resort to the old time methods, but presents his show in a most modern manner and his business-like methods serve to disarm suspicion and you are able to sit back and enjoy the show without any feeling of antagonism whatsoever. You are willing to watch him and you have no desire to overtax your brain in a vain effort to solve his mysteries or fathom his necromancy.

Blackstone is a smooth-working gentleman, making a special play for the children. He gives them magic that recalls, mystifies and makes them laugh. In fact the Blackstone show probably holds more laughs, either from the tricks or the audience and sometimes both than any single whole evening magician has ever been able to produce.

Blackstone starts off easily, running his show without a single hitch or a single wait. You will be relieved to know that he does not take up half of his running time with coin palming and card manipulation. He does just enough to convince you that he can do all the things you have ever seen done before, only much better. Content with that, he introduces rapidly his many illusions and the truly big effects which he carries. His is, without a doubt, one of the heaviest shows of its kind on the road today. He has tricks, illusians, magical apparatus and stage props without end and there are no waits nor pauses. His dramatic effect is secured by the actual execution of his tricks and he never depends upon claptrap or artificial means to make his impression.

His disappearing horse is just about the greatest illusion ever attempted. It will give you something to think about for some time to come. Sufficient to say that you had better get a firm grip on your false teeth or you are likely to have to borrow the usher's flashlight to find them.

It would be impossible to list all of the startling things which Blackstone does. It would be equally impossible to tell you what all he is going to do—and anyway that is a job for the press agent. You will like to know, however, that Blackstone changes his show every day. You can go Monday or Tuesday and see something different. To sum it all up, Blackstone is just about the best you have ever seen. Don't miss him.

In his famous "Vanishing Horse" illusion alone, several tons of paraphernalia is employed. In "Birth of Fashion" numerous handsome mannequins are revealed. "Duck Inn" requires the services of a flock of feathered Magis let alone their human aids.

Two double length baggage cars are required to transport the Blackstone outfit while a company of twenty-five is employed to aid the master in his mystifying accomplishments.

Beauty and the Beast—A pair of canine and feminine aids to Blackstone who will be seen when the big show comes to the Lincoln Orpheum, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 13, and 14, with daily matinees.—Adv.

ETHEL BARRYMORE IN "THE LAUGHING LADY" AT THE ORPHEUM THURSDAY NIGHT.

After an absence of two years, Ethel Barrymore is about to visit Lincoln. For one night she comes to the Orpheum and as comedienne in the exercise of the abilities in which her public most prefer her. The piece is "The Laughing Lady," by Sir Alfred Sutro, serious comedy of engaging pattern originally acted by Miss Barrymore in New York last season. The play moves in high places socially and is bestewn with sharp and witty tongues. It begins with the unwarranted divorce of a Lady Marjorie Colladine; unfolds the infatuation she has fired in the lawyer who convicts her; restores him to soberer courses; in the end, leading her back to her husband. Out of the whole, shines Miss Barrymore as comedienne with an able company around her. Arthur Hopkins has prepared and also sponsors the performance.

ROBERT B. MANTELL COMES TO THE ORPHEUM MAY 19, 20, 21.

The distinguished tragedian, Robert B. Mantell, supported by Genevieve Hamper and a brilliant company of players come to the Orpheum theatre for three nights and Wednesday matinee, commencing Monday, May 19. Four great plays will be presented and every one a classic. The engagement will be inaugurated with Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton's historical drama, "Richelieu," with Mr. Mantell in one of his greatest characterizations as the cardinal minister of France. Tuesday night, "Macbeth" will be the bill with Mr. Mantell as the Thane of Cawdor and Miss Hamper as the sonumbulistic Lady Macbeth. At the matinee Wednesday, Miss Hamper will be seen in one of her most charming roles, Rosalind, in "As You Like It." Mr. Mantell will interpret Jacques. The engagement will be brought to a close Wednesday night with the ever popular "Julius Caesar" with Mr. Mantell as Brutus and Miss Hamper as Portia. Each play will have a magnificent pictorial setting.

A FINE ARRAY OF FEATURE PHOTOPLAYS AT THE LYRIC, RIALTO AND COLONIAL.

ROSINI, THE MARVEL HEADLINES SPLENDID NEW BILL OPENING AT THE LIBERTY MONDAY MATINEE.

The new bill opening at the Liberty Monday for the first half of the week, should prove to be wonderful entertainment and delight all lovers of good vaudeville. Rosini is a master magician who will amaze all with his pretentious offering; La Paiva & Company in the Chikonee ballet divertisement is one of the best known organizations of its kind in Europe and is creating a sensation in this coutry; Knox & Inman have a clever comedy in "The Collector;" Rives & Arnold have a distinct novelty that convulse al lwith laughter; The Wellington Trio of singing funsters; Gordon Bennett, baritone, and the last chapter of "The Leatherstocking Tales;" News Weekly and Babich and his orchestra. Coming the last half of the week, Carl Fletcher & Company in a beautiful offering, "Sweet Sixteen," and other excellent acts.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I have never written before and am not a Lincoln fan. I am only visiting here. Will you please tell me the names of the Rialto and Lyric orchestra players, and the instruments each play? If you can, will you tell me the nationality of each. Or if you do not know, will you tell me from what nation their names comes from?

Why is it saxophones or bassons do not prevail in orchestras that play for shows. I play both. But only have seen them used in dance orchestras. Thanking you in advance, I am, LEONARD.

Ans.—The members of the two orchestras are, of course, all Americans. I'm afraid it would be too much like delving into ancient history, to try to "dig up" the nation from which their names was derived.

The members of the Rialto orchestra are, Prof. Jean Schaefer, conductor and violinist; Mrs. Helen Wittmann, pianist; August Dietz, bass viol; Don Berry, trumpet; E. M. Jackson, drums; cello, Herbert Gray; organist, Herbert McAhan.

At the Lyric the personnel of the orchestra is Ernest Harrison, pianist and director; A. L. Bonner, violin; Vern Forbes, trumpet; Bernard Nevin, drums; V. Schlonecker, relief pianist. E. E. Ewing, clarinet; C. I. Matthews, flute.

At the Lyric a trio, composed of Misses Geralyn Walreth, violin; Willa Givens, cello, and Marjorie Little, piano, relieves the orchestra.

Screen Siftings

Gilbert Signs Contract.—John Gilbert has the honor of being the first actor to sign with the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company. The contract takes Mr. Gilgert back to the studio where he did his first motion picture work, at Culver City. He has been starring in Fox pictures recently, and is considered one of the most romantic actors of the screen.

Announces Engagement—Lucy Fox has announced her engagement to Jules Forman, a silk merchant of New York. The marriage will take place in October, when Miss Fox plans to retire from the screen for private life.

"Dirty Hands"—"Dirty Hands," an original screen story, will be the fourth and last picture Jackie Coogan will make under his famous Metro contract. The final production is to be started early this summer, so that Jackie can start on his trip to the Near East in September Jackie will have charge of a "million dollar" cargo of milk and food for the starving orphans of Greece, Armenia and the Holy Lands. Prior to his sailing, Master Jack will lead a Modern Children's Crusade throughout this country, appealing for suport and co-operation with the Near East Relief.

Special Musical Score—Frank Lloyd's First National Picture, "The Sea Hawk," has inspired a musical composition which will be inserted in the special musical score being written for the play and will be offered on the music stands under the title of "Sea Hawk" or "The Song of a Love Pirate's Sweetheart." Modest Altschuler, former conductor of the Russian symphony orchestra of New York, is responsible for the composition.

Shoot Extra Film—The average director usually "shoots" 60,000 to 90,000 feet of film to get a feature that appears on the screen in finished form in 6,000 feet. Louis H. Tolhurst, who makes the "Secrets of Life" series for Principal Pictures Studios, works with "bugs" and shoots 1,100 feet to get 1,000 feet of finished product.

Signs For London Picture—Pauline Garon has just signed a contract to make a picture in London. She is on her way to New York from Hollywood, and will sail immediately for Europe. This is her first trip abroad.

Featured Roles—Huntley Gordon Gertrude Astor are playing husband and wife for the third time in motion pictures. Both are cast in featured roles in Roland West's new production, "Driftwood," which is being made at Goldwyn studio.

Completing McLean Pictures—Final scenes are being "shot" for "Never Say Die," the latest Douglas MacLean picture. It is an adaptation of the William Collier stage vehicle which ran so long in New York, London and Australia. This makes Doug's third independent staring production.

Will Direct Norma — Joseph Schenck announces that Bidney Olcott will direct Norma Talmadge in her next picture, an original by C. Gardner Sullivan, which has been titled, "The Fight." Mr. Olcott directed Marion Davies in "Little Old New York."

Andy Gump Series—Jackie Morgan, the "Little Chester" of Universal's series of Andy Gump comedies, has been cast for an important role in "Judgment of West Paradise" which is being made at Universal City under the direction of Nat oRss. Jackie will have the role of a country kid. John Walker and Gladys Hulette head the cast, which includes also Billy Sullivan, Philo McCullough, Margaret Landis and George Nichols.

Cancels Stage Plans—Myrtle Stedman is so much in demand for pictures that she has been forced to cancel her plans to tour the Orpheum circuit in a one act dramatic playlet. She started work this week in an important role in "Bread," which is being made at the Metro Studio. As soon as her work in that picture is completed, Miss Stedman has a featured part in "Wine," a Universal special waiting for her.

Wears Boy's Clothes—Dorothy Devore wears boy's clothes and makes three changes in her masculin attiré during the filming of the current Christie Comedy "Hold Your Breath," in which she heads the all-star cast.

Keeps Her Busy—It keeps Pola Negri busy these days denying the report of her engagement to Rod La Rocque. She admits she admires him, and that she's been his partner at several dinner parties, but that does not necessarily constitute an engagement.

"Belonging."—"Belonging," a novel by Olive Wadsley dealing with high society life in Paris and London, has been purchased by M. C. Levee for Maurice Tourneur's next production. Mr. Tourneur recently completed "The White Moth," in which Conway Tearle and Barbara La Marr were featured. He will start camera work on "Belonging" about June 1. Glenn Hunter has journeyed from New York to Hollywood, where he will make a screen version" of his stage hit, "Merton of the Movies." The picture will be made under the direction of James Cruze.

Opens Beauty Shop—Edna Flugrath, who in private life is the wife of Harold Shaw, motion picture director, and the sister of Viola Dana has opened up a beauty shop in Hollywood.

Purchase Screen Rights.—According to a recent announcement by the new Goldwyn-Metro-Mayer merger, "The Merry Widow," will be Mae Murray's next picture. Goldwyn purchased the screen rights to the operetta, which is particularly suitable for a Mae Murray vehicle.

To Travel Incognito—Upon completing her work in "Tess of the D'Ubervilles," which she is making under the direction of her husband, Marshall Neilan, Blanche Sweet is planning a three months tour of Europe. She will travel incognito and will visit Ireland, England, France, Germany, Russia and Italy before returning to this country.

"The Alaskan"—Thomas Meighan, who has been making most of his pictures in the east will go to Hollywood to film "The Alaskan" under Herbert Brenon's direction.

"He Who Gets Slapped"—Lon Chaney, one of the best known character actors of the screen, has been engaegd to play the role in the screen version of "He Who Gets Slapped," which Richard Bennett played on the stage last year. The famous Leonid Andreyev drama is to be picturized by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, with Victor Seastrom handling the megaphone.

The Doane Players gave two performances of "Adam and Eva" at the auditorium of the Lincoln high school, May 9 and 10.

HASTINGS COLLEGE NOTES

Plans to make the 1924 May fete the greatest in the history of the school are progressing rapidly. This year's fete will be held on the campus the evening of May 20 or the first evening after that date the weather will permit. Miss Roberta Mackechnie is the general chairman in charge of the annual event and out-of-doors event and work on the various features of the entertainment is well under way. Special seating arrangements and lighting to accommodate the largest crowd which has ever attended the fete are being made and it is anticipated this will be one of the greatest events of the college year.

Russell Chandler, '23, principal of the Nelson high school, was the speaker in the college Y. M. C. A. meeting on Thursday morning.

Among the principle events of the remainder of the year are the recitals of the conservatory of music. The recitals at the close of the year always attract a great deal of attention both from the student body and the friends of the college in the city and out in the state. The group this year gives promise of being an unusually good one. The following are the recitals with their dates:

May 13—Voice pupils of Hayes M. Fuhr.

May 23—Graduation piano recital of Mabel Giddings.

May 26—Graduation piano recital of Roberta Mackechnie.

May 27—Piano and voice recital, pupils of iss Margaret Jamieson and Miss Helen Crawford.

May 30—Violin and Piano recital, pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Sammis.

June 2—Graduation voice recital of Boyd Bohlke and Lindsey Henning.

June 3—Final conservatory concert.

To The Theater goers of Lincoln and Her Empire:

It is with more than a little pleasure that I am able to chronicle the advent of BLACKSTONE and his corps of wonderful workers to Lincoln. This attraction is now playing cities in the east, and I go on record that it is past peradventure the finest entertainment, from all angles, I have ever seen or had the opportunity of providing at POPULAR PRICES in my career as a showman. Absolutely all attendance records in the history of theatricals have been broken by BLACKSTONE.

I commend BLACKSTONE to you and believe that you have the biggest treat of the entire season in prospect.

Sincerely Yours,
L. M. GARMAN, Managing Director. Orpheum Theater.

A Typical Newspaper Review of Blackstone Show.
What Lansing State Journal Said:

THE GREAT BLACKSTONE

I went over to see The Great Blackstone Sunday afternoon.

Well, sir, he made a real live horse disappear right in front of your eyes, got a whole barnyard full of animals from an empty packing box, caught pigeons out of the air with a landing net, did card tricks slicker than you have ever seen done before and had an awful time with a little girl in a red and white gingham dress. He gave the little girl a rabbit and offered to wrap it up for her, but she had evidently seen Blackstone before because she said not to bother. So Blackstone wrapped it up anyway and turned it into a box of candy. The little girl appeared a little peeved and seemed inclined to stick for a finish so Blackstone took the wrapping paper and made the rabbit appear again and gave it back to the little girl to keep.

Another little boy nearly got himself in bad by "giving" Blackstone a watch instead of "loaning" it to him, but they finally found it again all tied up in the bottom of about seven trunks, each of which was inside of another. The little boy got the watch back.

It was pretty good when Blackstone got a whole flock of East Lansing ducks out of a bucket of water and again when he borrowed a handkerchief from a fat man in the third row and made it dance all around the stage. One of the most magical things he did was to give the audience an idea of what a bachelor spends his time thinking about. "The Bachelor's Dream," he called it, turned out to be quite an eye full.

But in all seriousness, Blackstone is a real magician. He does not resort to the old time methods, but presents his show in a most modern manner and his business-like methods serve to disarm suspicion and you are able to sit back and enjoy the show without any feeling of antagonism whatsoever. You are willing to watch him and you have no desire to overtax your brain in a vain effort to solve his mysteries or fathom his necromancy.

Blackstone is a smooth-working gentleman, making a special play for the children. He gives them magic that recalls, mystifies and makes them laugh. In fact the Blackstone show probably holds more laughs, either from the tricks or the audience and sometimes both than any single whole evening magician has ever been able to produce.

Blackstone starts off easily, running his show without a single hitch or a single wait. You will be relieved to know that he does not take up half of his running time with coin palming and card manipulation. He does just enough to convince you that he can do all the things you have ever seen done before, only much better. Content with that, he introduces rapidly his many illusions and the truly big effects which he carries. His is, without a doubt, one of the heaviest shows of its kind on the road today. He has tricks, illusians, magical apparatus and stage props without end and there are no waits nor pauses. His dramatic effect is secured by the actual execution of his tricks and he never depends upon claptrap or artificial means to make his impression.

His disappearing horse is just about the greatest illusion ever attempted. It will give you something to think about for some time to come. Sufficient to say that you had better get a firm grip on your false teeth or you are likely to have to borrow the usher's flashlight to find them.

It would be impossible to list all of the startling things which Blackstone does. It would be equally impossible to tell you what all he is going to do—and anyway that is a job for the press agent. You will like to know, however, that Blackstone changes his show every day. You can go Monday or Tuesday and see something different. To sum it all up, Blackstone is just about the best you have ever seen. Don't miss him.

ANSWERS TO Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I read your page every Sunday and enjoy it very much In fact, I think it's about the first thing I read in the Star You will see by that that I am an ardent movie fan I've often wondered if the children of the movie stars always become movie actresses and actors like their parents It seems that they would have every opportunity in the world to get on the screen if they wanted to do so And then too, the stars would know just what the requirements are for good screen players and they could start their children on the right way just as soon as they were big enough and could have them taught to swim dance and do everything else that seems to be necessary for a screen career

Could you tell me any children besides Douglas Fairbanks jr, of the actors who have played on the screen?

Is Aileen Pringle married and if so to whom?

Can you tell me please who played the male lead in The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court?

Is Creighton Hale married and if so to whom? What is his next picture?

Thanking you in advance for any courtesy you may give my letter, I remain ARDENT FAN

Ans—Some of the children of the motion picture players are following in their parents footsteps but as a rule the players prefer other careers for their offsprings The actors realize that their profession is not the bed of roses that it looks to be from the outside and a great many of them do not even allow their families to visit the studios Gloria Swanson is so opposed to having her young daughter become an actress that she will not even now young as she is allow her to be photographed for the benefit of the public

Jackie Coogan's father is an actor, but it was Charlie Chaplin and not Mr Coogan, sr, who really started Jackie on his professional career Jackie made his first stage appearance by eluding his governess and running on the stage unannounced where his father was doing an act Of course, Jackie had been taught a few stunts

Dinkie Dean the latest Charles Chaplin protege, is the son of Charles Reisner the 'bad man' of First National pictures

Pat O'Malley's young daughter is occasionally cast in a picture and Buster Keaton's son has already made his professional debut in his father's comedies

Then of course we have Ralph Bushman son of Francis Lincoln Stedman whose mother is Myrtle Stedman of screen fame and Rush Hughes, whose father is author and director of motion pictures

Billie Windsor, Claire's little boy has played in a picture or two but he doesn't care much for them and Milton Sills daughter who is in her teens has no desire to become a movie star

Miss Pringle has been married to a non professional but she's single at the present writing

Harry Meyers was the featured player in The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court

Creighton Hale is married to a non-professional His latest picture is How to Educate a Wife

Dear Movie Editor—I have a little matter of relationship that I would like to get straightened out for me today if you can please Is Richard Talmadge a brother to Norma Constance and Natalie Talmadge? Are Ruth Clifford and Kathleen Clifford related I saw Kathleen here on the Orpheum circuit a few years ago and she was a blonde and I notice that Ruth is a blonde also I remember Kathleen well because she was so cute and dressed in boys clothes part of the time

Is Muriel Dana Viola Dana's little girl? And are Margaret and Cullen Landis related in anyway? I've heard that Cyril Ring was related to Thomas Meighan, but I don't know whether he's nephew cousin or just what the relationship is And is Mickey Daniels a brother to Bebe Daniels? Is Kathlyn Williams the wife of Earle Williams or is she related to him in any way

I hope I have not asked you something that you have already answered but I noticed you had a question on relationship a week or two ago and I didn't notice any of my answers in it Forgive me if they were and I didn't remember it Yours truly MARY K

Ans—I don't believe I have answered any of your questions relative to the relativity of the stars you mention recently Richard Talmadge is not a brother of the famous Talmadge girls—in fact I am under the impression that that is not Richard's honest-to-goodness name Anyhow he's not related to the sisters

Ruth and Kathleen are not related either much as they may resemble each other in eyes and hair

Muriel is not related to Viola Viola's name is not Dana at all in real life That's just a stage name The Landis are brother and sister and Cyril Ring is a brother to Frances Ring who is Mrs Thomas Meighan, so that would make him Tommy's brother-in-law

Bebe Daniels is not related to Mickey, and Kathlyn is not married, nor even related to Earle Williams She's Mrs Charles Eyton

Dear Madam Will you kindly give me the cast for "The Spanish Dancer" and tell me who directed the picture? Is that the picture that Pola made that is so nearly like Rosita Who directed Rosita?' Are they adapted from the same story? I didn't know that two companies ever made a picture at the same time from the same story I shouldn't think they would be allowed to do that?

Isn't Pola going to make some pictures in America under the direction of that European director Lubitsch or whatever his name is? If so what is the picture going to be? Is it true that Pola is going back to Germany because the Americans are so cold to her I heard that she was Is she still engaged to Charlie Chaplin?

Hoping to see my letter in the Sunday paper, I remain Yours truly P B X

Ans—The cast for 'The Spanish Dancer" is "Maritana," Pola Negri, "Don Caesar de Bazan Antonio Moreno 'King Philip LV," Wallace Beery "Queen Isabel de Bourbon Kathlyn Williams, 'Lazarillo,' Gareth Hughes "Don Sallusie Adolphe Menjou Olivares' Henry Vogel, "Marquis de Rotondo,' Edward Kipling Marchioness de Torondo,' Rosita Marstini Don Carlos' Dawn O Day, 'Diego Robert Brower, 'Cardinal Ambassador Charles A Stevenson Captain of the Guard,' Boyd Irwin Juan, Robert Agnew

The picture was directed by Herbert Brenon and Ernst Lubitsch, the German director directed Mary Pickford in 'Rosita." There is a great resemblance between the two pictures The plots and even the big situations are very similar 'The Spanish Dancer' is an adaptation of Don Caesar de Bazan" which was purchased as starring vehicle for Valentino by Famous Players Lasky about two years ago

"Rosita' was first started as "The Street Singer' and was supposedly an original which Lubitsch brought with him from Germany, and was written by two German men In one picture Mary Pickford is seen as a street singer in Seville and Pola Negri is a street dancer in Madrid in 'The Spanish Dancer The plot of the stories are practically the same throughout, even though the time of the Paramount picture is 200 years earlier than that of Mary Pickford's production

Pola just completed a picture under the direction of Lubitsch It is called 'Montmartre' and has just been released

Don't think there is any danger of Pola going back to her native land very soon She has applied for citizenship papers in the U S A, so she must be a little bit fond of the Americans. She is no longer engaged to Mr Chaplin—in fact she says she's not contemplating marriage with anyone at present, notwithstanding the rumors that seem to be afloat.

Dear Movie Editor—Please tell me who played the part of Louise in The Red Warning' with Jack Hoxie How old is she what is her address? How old is little Bruce Guernin? Also how old is Miriam Batista and what color hair and eyes has she?

Will you please give me the addresses of Frank Borsage Frank Lloyd Wesley Ruggles Al Santell and Mack Sennett? I want to write to them and see what they say about the prospects for a young man about twenty in the movies I noticed in an article lately that there was more demand for young men in the movies than there was for girls because most men are not as crazy about becoming stars as the girls are

Thnaking you in advance, I am, Yours truly N J A

Ans—Elinor Field had the leading role opposite Mr Hoxie in The Red Warning She was born in Plymouth Pa twenty two years ago and is a graduate of the Los Angeles High School She has hazel eyes and light hair Address her at 827 Glendale Ave Glendale, Calif

Bruce is only four Miriam has dark hair and eyes and is now ten Address Mr Borzage at 8974 Wilshire Blvd Los Angeles Calif Frank Lloyd lives at 1765 N Vine St Hollywood Calif Wesley Ruggles residence is located at 746 Crenshaw Bldg Los Angeles and Al Santell did live at the Cordova Hotel Los Angeles Mack Sennett can always be reached in care of his studio, 1712 Aliesandro St Los Angeles

Dear Movie Editor—My friend and I have been having an argument and we would like to have you settle it for us She says that Mary Pickford has bobbed hair and that she always wears a wig so people won't know her hair is bobbed and I said that Mary did not have bobbed hair because there would be no sense in her wearing a wig so people wouldn't know it was bobbed What good would it do her to have it bobbed if she always wore a wig so people wouldn't know it was bobbed? Please tell us what Mary's name was before she changed it to Mary Pickford

Many thanks JUST WE TWO

Ans—I noticed recently that Mary was thinking strongly of having her hair bobbed so it may be bobbed before you see this letter in the paper but she has not had it bobbed before this She is in Paris you know, and has been having difficulty in finding hats that fit her because of her long hair.

Mary was born Gladys Smith

ANSWERS TO Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I read your page every Sunday and enjoy it very much. In fact, I think it's about the first thing I read in The Star. You will see by that that I am an ardent movie fan. I've often wondered if the children of the movie stars always become movie actresses and actors like their parents. It seems that they would have every opportunity in the world to get on the screen if they wanted to do so. And then, too, the stars would know just what the requirements are for good screen players, and they could start their children on the right way just as soon as they were big enough, and could have them taught to swim, dance, and do everything else that seems to be necessary for a screen career.

Could you tell me any children besides Douglas Fairbanks, jr., of the actors, who have played on the screen?

Is Aileen Pringle married and if so to whom?

Can you tell me please, who played the male lead in "The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court?"

Is Creighton Hale married and if so to whom? What is his next picture?

Thanking you in advance for any courtesy you may give my letter, I remain, ARDENT FAN.

Ans.—Some of the children of the motion picture players are following in their parents' footsteps, but as a rule the players prefer other careers for their offsprings. The actors realize that their profession is not the "bed of roses" that it looks to be from the outside, and a great many of them do not even allow their families to visit the studios. Gloria Swanson is so opposed to having her young daughter become an actress that she will not even now, young as she is, allow her to be photographed for the benefit of the public.

Jackie Coogan's father is an actor, but it was Charlie Chaplin, and not Mr. Coogan, sr., who really started Jackie on his professional career. Jackie made his first stage appearance by eluding his governess and running on the stage unannounced, where his father was doing an act. Of course, Jackie had been taught a few stunts.

Dinkie Dean, the latest Charles Chaplin protege, is the son of Charles Reisner, the "bad man" of First National pictures.

Pat O'Malley's young daughter is occasionally cast in a picture, and Buster Keaton's son has already made his professional debut in his father's comedies.

Then, of course, we have Ralph Bushman, son of Francis; Lincoln Stedman, whose mother is Myrtle Stedman of screen fame, and Rush Hughes, whose father is author and director of motion pictures.

Billie Windsor, Claire's little boy, has played in a picture or two, but he doesn't care much for them, and Milton Sills daughter, who is in her teens, has no desire to become a movie star.

Miss Pringle has been married to a non-professional, but she's single at the present writing.

Harry Meyers was the featured player in "The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court."

Creighton Hale is married to a non-professional. His latest picture is "How to Educate a Wife."

Dear Movie Editor—I have a little matter of relationship that I would like to get straightened out for me today, if you can please. Is Richard Talmadge a brother to Norma, Constance and Natalie Talmadge? Are Ruth Clifford and Kathleen Clifford related. I saw Kathleen here on the Orpheum circuit a few years ago, and she was a blonde and I notice that Ruth is a blonde also. I remember Kathleen well, because she was so cute, and dressed in boys' clothes part of the time.

Is Muriel Dana, Viola Dana's little girl? And are Margaret and Cullen Landis related in anyway? I've heard that Cyril Ring was related to Thomas Meighan, but I don't know whether he's nephew, cousin, or just what the relationship is. And is Mickey Daniels a brother to Bebe Daniels? Is Kathlyn Williams the wife of Earle Williams, or is she related to him in any way.

I hope I have not asked you something that you have already answered, but I noticed you had a question on relationship a week or two ago, and I didn't notice any of my answers in it. Forgive me if they were and I didn't remember it. Yours truly, MARY K.

Ans.—I don't believe I have answered any of your questions relative to the relativity of the stars you mention recently. Richard Talmadge is not a brother of the famous Talmadge girls—in fact I am under the impression that that is not Richard's honest-to-goodness name. Anyhow he's not related to the sisters.

Ruth and Kathleen are not related, either, much as they may resemble each other in eyes and hair.

Muriel is not related to Viola. Viola's name is not Dana at all in real life. That's just a stage name. The Landis' are brother and sister and Cyril Ring is a brother to Frances Ring, who is Mrs. Thomas Meighan, so that would make him Tommy's brother-in-law.

Bebe Daniels is not related to Mickey, and Kathlyn is not married, nor even related to Earle Williams. She's Mrs. Charles Eyton.

Dear Madam: Will you kindly give me the cast for "The Spanish Dancer" and tell me who directed the picture? Is that the picture that Pola made that is so nearly like "Rosita." Who directed "Rosita?" Are they adapted from the same story? I didn't know that two companies ever made a picture at the same time from the same story. I shouldn't think they would be allowed to do that?

Isnt Pola going to make some pictures in America under the direction of that European director, Lubitsch or whatever his name is? If so, what is the picture going to be? Is it true that Pola is going back to Germany because the Americans are so cold to her. I heard that she was. Is she still engaged to Charlie Chaplin?

Hoping to see my letter in the Sunday paper, I remain, Yours truly, P. B. X.

Ans.—The cast for "The Spanish Dancer" is: "Maritana," Pola Negri; "Don Caesar de Bazan," Antonio Moreno; 'King Philip LV," Wallace Beery; "Queen Isabel de Bourbon," Kathlyn Williams; "Lazarillo," Gareth Hughes; "Don Sallusie," Adolphe Menjou; "Olivares," Henry Vogel; "Marquis de Rotondo," Edward Kipling; "Marchioness de Torondo," Rosita Marstini; "Don Carlos," Dawn O'Day; "Diego," Robert Brower; "Cardinal Ambassador," Charles A. Stevenson; "Captain of the Guard," Boyd Irwin; "Juan," Robert Agnew.

The picture was directed by Herbert Brendn, and Ernst Lubitsch, the German director, directed Mary Pickford in "Rosita." There is a great resemblance between the two pictures. The plots and even the big situations are very similar. "The Spanish Dancer" is an adaptation of "Don Caesar de Bazan" which was purchased as starring vehicle for Valentino by Famous Players-Lasky about two years ago.

"Rosita" was first started as "The Street Singer" and was supposedly an original which Lubitsch brought with him from Germany, and was written by two German men. In one picture Mary Pickford is seen as a street singer in Seville, and Pola Negri is a street dancer in Madrid in "The Spanish Dancer." The plot of the stories are practically the same throughout, even though the time of the Paramount picture is 200 years earlier than that of Mary Pickford's production.

Pola just completed a picture under the direction of Lubitsch. It is called "Montmartre" and has just been released.

Don't think there is any danger of Pola going back to her native land very soon. She has applied for citizenship papers in the U. S. A., so she must be a little bit fond of the Americans. She is no longer engaged to Mr. Chaplin—in fact she says she's not contemplating marriage with anyone at present, notwithstanding the rumors that seem to be afloat.

Dear Movie Editor—Please tell me who played the part of Louise in "The Red Warning" with Jack Hoxie. How old is she, what is her address? How old is little Bruce Guernin? Also how old is Miriam Batista and what color hair and eyes has she?

Will you please give me the addresses of Frank Borsage, Frank Lloyd, Wesley Ruggles, Al Santell and Mack Sennett? I want to write to them and see what they say about the prospects for a young man about twenty in the movies. I noticed in an article lately that there was more demand for young men in the movies than there was for girls, because most men are not as crazy about becoming stars as the girls are.

Thnaking you in advance, I am, Yours truly, N. J. A.

Ans.—Elinor Field had the leading role opposite Mr. Hoxie in "The Red Warning." She was born in Plymouth, Pa. twenty-two years ago, and is a graduate of the Los Angeles High School. She has hazel eyes and light hair. Address her at 827 Glendale Ave., Glendale, Calif.

Bruce is only four. Miriam has dark hair and eyes and is now ten. Address Mr. Borzage at 3974 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. Frank Lloyd lives at 1765 N. Vine St., Hollywood, Calif. Wesley Ruggles residence is located at 746 Crenshaw Bldg., Los Angeles, and Al Santell did live at the Cordova Hotel, Los Angeles. Mack Sennett can always be reached in care of his studio, 1712 Allesandro St., Los Angeles.

Dear Movie Editor—My friend and I have been having an argument and we would like to have you settle it for us. She says that Mary Pickford has bobbed hair and that she always wears a wig so people won't know her hair is bobbed, and I said that Mary did not have bobbed hair, because there would be no sense in her wearing a wig so people wouldn't know it was bobbed. What good would it do her to have it bobbed if she always wore a wig so people wouldn't know it was bobbed? Please tell us what Mary's name was before she changed it to Mary Pickford.

Many thanks, JUST WE TWO.

Ans.—I noticed recently that Mary was thinking strongly of having her hair bobbed, so it may be bobbed before you see this letter in the paper, but she has not had it bobbed before this. She is in Paris, you know, and has been having difficulty in finding hats that fit her because of her long hair.

Mary was born, Gladys Smith.

Screen Siftings

A Feature Role.—Ralph Lewis has been selected for one of the featured roles in the modern society sequences of the William Fox production, "Dante's Inferno."

Charlie On the Mountains—Charlie Chaplin is on location in the high Sierras, at Mt. Summit, where he is reproducing in comiv version the famous Alaskan gold rush. Charlie in his old scenery, big shoes, baggy trousers, little mustache and cane, play the role of hard-luck sourdough. The picture will be completed in the fall, and will be in eight reel.

Minerva's Mail

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

"An Order And a Word of Encouragement Would Make Us Happy," Says the Correspondent Today Who Signs Herself "A Lady Canvasser"—We Cannot All of Us Give the Order But Certainly We Can All Give the Word of Encouragement — Civility Costs Us Nothing—The Girl Who Feels Her Husband's Interest Waning Asks What To Do About It — Minerva Says To Provide a Bit of Jam and Cake Along With His Daily Bread, Literally and Figuratively.

Ladies Who Canvass.

Dear Minerva: Will you please say a few words in your dandy department for we ladies who canvass, thereby earning our living. Of course there are some fakes in this business as well as in other lines, but the most of us are on the square. Some people are most kind and courteous, others refuse to open the door but peek at us from behind the shade, some open the door a crack and glance at us How do they know but what this time next year they may be obliged to turn out and do the same thing? How would they feel? Do they realize that when we are refused a hearing or perhaps an order that we may have to go home and supperless to bed. Whereas an order and a kind word of encouragement would make us happy and we would be ready for the next day's work. I always sell a high-grade product and somethings not found in the stores.—Canvasser.

A. It is inexcusable for a housewife, busy though she may be, to act in a rude manner to the salesperson who comes to her door. She can always find some for the courteous dismissal, if dismissal be her desire. Personally I have great sympathy with the person who attempts to sell wares in the door-to-door fashion, but I do not care for the system. The housekeeper who apportions her time for each job and must work smoothly and quickly to keep up with her schedule, does not enjoy being interrupted repeatedly from her duties to respond to the requests to look into the wares offered at her door. Though many of them may be most worth the while and the money, when the salesperson calls at an inopportune moment, it is not surprising that it is difficult to attract and hold the attention of the housewife.

There are two sides to the question. But there is no excuse for incivility. There is every excuse for the housewife making a rule not to buy over the doorstep, if she conscientiously feels that she is better off for not doing so. And she must often be firm to the point of curtness to dismiss the canvasser at the door.

There is so much difference in the personality of the canvassers, and in the business firms they represent. I personally am a person quite lacking in backbone if a clever saleperson gets hold of me, and am likely to buy something I have no use for quite through the hypnosis of the moment. Or, that is, I have been such a person until I have made it a rule not to buy anything from anyone at the door. I believe I gain from this method. On the other hand I have friends who believe they get very decided bargains and clever utilities from canvassers and who never fail to examine their wares.

Surely it is a matter of opinion, and we are all justified in doing as we think best. But we can always be Christian and courteous in our dealings with others.

Home-Loving Girl.

Dear Minerva: I am writing to you for advice like hundreds of others do I am a home loving girl. As I am not well enough to enjoy pleasures such as swimming, dancing, walking and the like I don't have a chance to keep the home life happy. And, of course, lack of funds makes matters worse. I am happy doing my housework and what little I do get out I enjoy, and am contented that things can even be as good as they are. But my husband is very dissatisfied. We have bene married two years. At first he was just as happy as I was with everything, but now nothing I do seems to please him And worst of all, I am very affectionate and sentimental, and he does not show love like he used to and it breaks my heart because I crave devotion. I don't want you to think I like mushy love. I mean real devoted love. He used to say little things and show me in many different ways that he loved me. Now he does none of these things. How can I tell if he still loves me? He is a man that women flatter. Most of my women friends envy me, but they do not know what I suffer He is true (as far as I know) and never spends any time away from home. I think if we could have some of the pleasures of life, that he would be more contented, but I am unable to do those things, so what am I to do? Another thing, when we used to plan on things it would be "we" Now when there is a plan it is "I." He never includes me any more. For instance if he wished an auto trip somewhere he says "I wish I could take such and such a trip." He doesn't include me at all. Is he tired of me Should I give him his freedom since I can't do the things he'd like to do? He used to be home-loving etc. But now he wants the opposite My house is always neat and clean, his clothes are always in the right place and mended. And I don't spend one cent extra than what is needed for necessities. And still I a mnot apreciated Most me admire a flapper and want a home girl for a wife But when a wife is devted and does her part in full then a man thinks less of her. That is the view I am taking of life now. I am a cheerful person and always have a smile for him, but when I don't get one in return I am very sad. Please Minerva help me if you can. And I will try to do what is right if I am wrong. We married for love and I want it to be love because with love all else can be endured. Sentimental.

A. A man may apreciate that bread is the staff of life, and that bread and butter is a nourishing and body building food. But he will nevertheless crave jam on his bread and butter, and a piece of pie as a side line. He wants variety and spice with his daily meals instead of a monotonous round of nourishing edibles.

Isn't it possible that you are being a bit too bread-and-buttery? That you are so satisfied with your own virtues and efficiency that you are neglecting the ornamental and purely frothy side of life?

You say your health does not permit you to engage in any social activities or sports of a strenuous nature. But if you have the strength to keep up your home as you say you have, you are also able to have attractive though inexpensive little dinners for your friends, to have groups in to play cards, all very simply and without ostentation or undue effort, and to otherwise provide merriment and variety which every young person craves and needs.

And as to your state of health? Are you convinced that you are organically impaired so you cannot enjoy the activities you mention? Or have you given up to this semi-invalidism too easily? Isn't there much that you can conquer if you will do so?

We do not get much out of life by demanding service and love from others, and in brooding over our hurts and wrongs when we do not receive this love in the measure with which we think it should be given us All we can do is to serve as our own love prompts us, and to be alert to discover that which our loved ones would like to receive from us.

Perhaps you have fallen into a way of talking too much of your ills. Do you keep your mind active and up-to-date? Are you entertaining and snappy, charming and captivating?

Instead of worrying over your husband's lack of interest in you, set out to charm him into fresh interest in you.

Tomorrow when you cook that efficient, economical, delicious dinner, set the table extra attractively, and some bright flowers in a quaint bowl, see that you yourself are good to look upon. And devote some time during the day to plan some bright things to talk about, things that will interest your husband. Surely that is legitimate subterfuge. Don't just let the evenings drift along into boredom But assume the responsibility of brightening up the evenings you spend together

"The Winged Wind."

Dear Minerva: I wonder if someone of our readers have the poem entitled "The Winged Winds," the first verse of which, I think, is as follows:

"Tell me, ye winged wings, that about my pathway roar,
Do ye not know some spot where mortals weep no more;
Some lone and pleasant dell, some valley in the west,
Where free from toil and pain a weary soul might hest?
The loud wings dwindled to a whisper low
And signed for pity as they answered "No."

My mother recited this poem to me years ago, but I have forgotten a part of it, and will be most grateful to see it in print. Thanking you, I am, B. V. G. D.

A. Can some kind reader supply this poem? We will gladly publish it.

Needs a Chaperone.

Dear Minerva: I am a girl of fourteen years and I am considered very pretty. I am popular and I know how to act when I am out anywhere. I have lots of friends and I have been out with boys but never any of this mushy and soft kind. I hate that kind. I never did know what it was to be kissed and I never want to know either. Only the other night a boy that I thought was a very respectable boy offered to take me home and I went. My mother happened to know more about him than I did and she was very angry. And now she will not allow me to go to church, party, dance, or anywhere unless she goes along Do you think this is right? I do not because I've had the experience that most girls around here lack.

I like your Mail very much only when some old hen of a great grandmother says something that she thought of and never heard of. Mary Lee.

A. I am afraid you are a headstrong little girl, and need your mother's close chaperonage. I heartily disapprove of a girl of your tender years having 'dates' with boys and becoming sophisticated and generally hardened through premature experience Your mother acts only in your best interests when she insist on a protective chaperonage for you.

Insurance For Mother.

Dear Minerva: I have carried insurance for the last four years and had my mother as my beneficiary. Now I have been married about a year and think that I ought to change it to my husband. My mother has asked me to leave it in her name. What shall I do? Do you think it is proper to have in a husband's name? Perplexed

A. I advise you to leave it in your mother's name. Her need is greater, surely, for the husband is naturally more self supporting and independent. At least we hope he is if he has taken unto himself a wife. Moreover it is showing a lack of respect to take this from your mother's name when she wishes it left as it is And your mother deserves every particle of respect and consideration that you can show her.

Wesleyan Affairs

The algebra contest, which was left undecided at the close of the high school contests at Nebraska Wesleyan university on April 25, has just been repeated by the taking of a much more difficult examination. The following are the results as announced by Prof. J. C. Jensen, chairman of the committee in charge:

First, Winslow Willis, Lincoln, second, John Schonrock, Fairbury; third, Susan Lau, Lincoln; honorables mention, Lieben Parks, Greenwood; Loretta Granzer, Havelock; Constance Doremus, Aurora and Blanche Johnson, Havelock.

Dr. James E. Wagner of the First Methodist of Omaha will deliver the baccalaureate address in place of Chancellor I. B. Schreckengast on June 1 as the chancellor will not be able to undertake that service, due to the illness of Mrs. Schreckengast.

Dean F. A. Alabaster of the Wesleyan liberal arts college will address the men of the First Methodist church of Crete, Monday evening, May 19.

Chancellor I. B. Schreckengast has written to Wesleyan campus workers that Mrs. Shereckengast has recovered sufficiently to stand for a few minutes. Shortly after reaching Lowell, Mass., she fell down stairs at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Jackma. The chancellor has gone to the quadrennial meeting of the Methodists at Springfield, Mass Both Mr. and Mrs. Jackma are graduates of Wesleyan university. The latter was Helen Hinson, daughter of Rev. O. A. Hinson who is one of the Nebraska delegates to the Springfield meeting. Mr. Jackma is engaged in pastoral work at Lowell. H. B. Shedrik who was graduated at Wesleyan in 1922 is also engaged in pastoral work at Lowell. Chancellor Schreckengast was interested in observing his work among the foreign population of the city.

Dean F. A. Alabaster has prepared an application blank to be sent prospective students. The Wesleyan faculty has ruled that students hereafter must make application for admission to the unviersity.

William Crossland, '13 of Laurel, Fred Aden '15 of Boulder, Colo., and Everett Hosman, '10 of University Place were campus visitors Monday. These young men formed the Theo Trio when they were in school. This they have maintained ever since. They were introduced to the student body at chapel.

Dr. S. S. Hilscher, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church in Lincoln, addressed the Wesleyan convocation Wednesday. His subject was "A Young Person's Life Work." He said, "Every young person is looking towards his life work. That young person may have to change his plans. Paul had to change his several times. A life program is of no essential good unless it is approved of God.

"The time to make a life-program is at the beginning and not at the end. The world is not interested in the life program of an old person. The life program depends upon the one who is to live it The question should be 'What am I', not 'What am I doing.' It is what God sees and not what man sees that counts. Character is not divorced from conduct. Young people should heed today Paul's advice to Timothy to shun profane things. The whole life should be given to the testimony of right living if we are to win the applause of God and man."

Mrs Ada Davis Guy, '12, Nebraska Wesleyan, is teaching commercial work in the high school at Cowles. She will be superintendent of the consolidated school at Eckley next year.

Miss Grace Lenfest, alumnus of Wesleyan, plans to return for the annual annual banquet, June 2. She is attending the university of Illinois. Miss Georgia North is also attending that university.

Rev. John Starr, '11, Nebraska Wesleyan, of San Jose, Illinois, writes that he and his wife are recovering from illness.

The chemistry club held initiation of members May 7. The address of welcome was made by Prof. H A Durham. The members initiated were Ed Loder, Waverly; Charles Paine, Grand Island; Wilber Cass, Aurora; Charles Clark, North Loup; Faith Madden, Pawnee City; Mildred Larson, Upland; Ellen Douglas, Elmwood, Yunching Lui, China; Otis Cole, Shelby; Earl Gibson, Cozad; Clair Johnson, Norfolk; Ross King, University Place; Ruth McClanhan, Beatrice; Omer Seng, University Place; Grant Wernimont, University Place, and Lawrence Whistler, Farragut, Ia.

The Wesleyan men's glee club went to Omaha May 9 for the last concerts of the season. They sang Friday evening in the Pearl Memorial church and presented concerts Saturday and Sunday in the First M. E. church. Both concerts are broadcast over W. O. A. W.

Visitors on the Wesleyan campus who attended the May festival this week were Mrs. P. E. Spangler, Weeping Water; Joe Wiesman, Osceola; W. S Auten, North Bend; Cal McCormick, Lewellen; Mrs A. Teselle, Hickman.

A gospel team from Nebraska Wesleyan had charge of the Sunday morning service at the Emerald M. E. church Sunday morning. Members of the team were Florence Wing, Ethel Evans, Geneva George, Ruth Jacks and Merrill Norlin. The same team supplemented by Irving Wiltse, James Buxton, Gladys and Winona Buxton took charge of the evening meeting.

"There are three phases to human nature" said Dr. Bennett M. Hollowell, professor of English Literature at Wesleyan, in addressing the Monday convocation. "These are the biological, the sentimental and the classic or Christian. It is not equality so much that the downtrodden want as the chance to snub those who have been snubbing them. Give a man a chance to develop his own personality and he will grow up as he wants to. There were two beliefs in Greek religion, the Stoic and Epicurean. The Stoics believed they should do good because it was the right thing to do; the Epicureans believed that to be good was right because it would bring about the ultimate happiness of everyone."

Miss Ada Wilcox, '17, writes Wesleyan friends that her address after May 23 will be Kimball, Neb

ARE YOU NERVOUS?

Do You Have Headache, Backache? Hear What Mrs. Banks Has to Say.

Des Moines, Iowa.—"I was all run down in health. I would have spells of nervousness, headache and backache so I could hardly stand on my feet sometimes, and could not eat nor sleep. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which I did, and it completely cured me and I have been well ever since. I can eat and sleep good now and the 'Favorite Prescription' is the cause of it. I am delighted to recommend this medicine to all suffering women."—Mrs. Ruby Banks, 605 E 16th Street.

NEW METHOD OF REDUCING FAT

A news item from abroad informs us that the American method of producing a slim, trim figure is meeting with astonishing success. This system, that has made such a wonderful impression over there, must be the Marmola Prescription Tablet method of reducing fat. It is safe to say that we have nothing better for this purpose in this country. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh steadily and easily without injury to the stomach, the causing of wrinkles, the help of exercising or dieting, or interference with one's meals is a very important and useful addition to civilization's necessities Just such a catalogue of good results follow the use of these pleasant, harmless and economical little fat reducers. We say economical because Marmola Prescription Tablets (made in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription) can be obtained of any druggist the world over or from the Marmola Company, General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich., for one dollar a box, which is a decidedly economical price, considering the number of tablets each box contains They are harmless —Advertisement

Minerva's Mail

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

"An Order And a Word of Encouragement Would Make Us Happy," Says the Correspondent Today Who Signs Herself "A Lady Canvasser"—We Cannot All of Us Give the Order But Certainly We Can All Give the Word of Encouragement — Civility Costs Us Nothing—The Girl Who Feels Her Husband's Interest Waning Asks What To Do About It — Minerva Says To Provide a Bit of Jam and Cake Along With His Daily Bread, Literally and Figuratively.

Ladies Who Canvass.

Dear Minerva: Will you please say a few words in your dandy department for we ladies who canvass, thereby earning our living. Of course there are some fakes in this business as well as in other lines, but the most of us are on the square. Some people are most kind and courteous, others refuse to open the door but peek at us from behind the shade, some open the door a crack and glance at us. How do they know but what this time next year they may be obliged to turn out and do the same thing? How would they feel? Do they realize that when we are refused a hearing or perhaps an order that we may have to go home and supperless to bed. Whereas an order and a kind word of encouragemen t would make us happy and we would be ready for the next day's work. I always sell a high-grade product and somethings not found in the stores.—Canvasser.

A. It is inexcusable for a housewife, busy though she may be, to act in a rude manner to the salesperson who comes to her door. She can always find aime for the courteous dismissal, if dismissal be her desire. Personally I have great sympathy with the person who attempts to sell wares in the door-to-door fashion, but I do not care for the system. The housekeeper who apportions her time for each job and must work smoothly and quickly to keep up with her schedule, does not enjoy being interrupted repeatedly from her duties to respond to the requests to look into the wares offered at her door. Though many of them may be most worth the while and the money, when the salesperson calls at an inopportune moment, it is not surprising that it is difficult to attract and hold the attention of the housewife.

There are two sides to the question. But there is no excuse for incivility. There is every excuse for the housewife making a rule not to buy over the doorstep, if she conscientiously feels that she is better off for not doing so. And she must often be firm to the point of curtness to dismiss the canvasser at the door.

There is so much difference in the personality of the canvassers, and in the business firms they represent. I personally am a person quite lacking in backbone if a clever saleperson gets hold of me, and am likely to buy something I have no use for quite through the hypnosis of the moment. Or, that is, I have been such a person until I have made it a rule not to buy anything from anyone at the door. I believe I gain from this method. On the other hand I have friends who believe they get very decided bargains and clever utilities from canvassers and who never fail to examine their wares.

Surely it is a matter of opinion, and we are all justified in doing as we think best. But we can always be Christian and courteous in our dealings with others.

Home-Loving Girl.

Dear Minerva: I am writing to you for advice like hundreds of others do.

I am a home loving girl. As I am not well enough to enjoy pleasures such as swimming, dancing, walking and the like. I don't have a chance to keep the home life happy. And, of course, lack of funds makes matters worse. I am happy doing my housework and what little I do get out I enjoy, and am contented that things can even be as good as they are. But my husband is very dissatisfied. We have bene married two years. At first he was just as happy as I was with everything, but now nothing I do seems to please him. And worst of all, I am very affectionate and sentimental, and he does not show love like he used to and it breaks my heart because I crave devotion. I don't want you to think I like mushy love. I mean real devoted love. He used to say little things and show me in many different ways that he loved me. Now he does none of these things.

How can I tell if he still loves me? He is a man that women flatter. Most of my women friends envy me, but they do not know what I suffer. He is true (as far as I know) and never spends any time away from home. I think if we could have some of the pleasures of life, that he would be more contented, but I am unable to do those things, so what am I to do? Another thing, when we used to plan on things it would be "we." Now when there is a plan it is "I." He never includes me any more. For instance if he wished an auto trip somewhere he says "I wish I could take such and such a trip." He doesn't include me at all. Is he tired of me? Should I give him his freedom since I can't do the things he'd like to do? He used to be home-loving etc. But now he wants the opposite. My house is always neat and clean, his clothes are always in the right place and mended. And I don't spend one cent extra than what is needed for necessities. And still I a mnot apreciated. Most me admire a flapper and want a home girl for a wife. But when a wife is devted and does her part in full then a man thinks less of her. That is the view I am taking of life now. I am a cheerful person and always have a smile for him, but when I don't get one in return I am very sad. Please Minerva help me if you can. And I will try to do what is right if I am wrong. We married for love and I want it to be love because with love all else can be endured. Sentimental.

A. A man may apreciate that bread is the staff of life, and that bread and butter is a nourishing and body building food. But he will nevertheless crave jam on his bread and butter, and a piece of pie as a side line. He wants variety and spice with his daily meals instead of a monotonous round of nourishing edibles.

Isn't it possible that you are being a bit too bread-and-buttery? That you are so satisfied with your own virtues and efficiency that you are neglecting the ornamental and purely frothy side of life?

You say your health does not permit you to engage in any social activities or sports of a strenuous nature. But if you have the strength to keep up your home as you say you have, you are also able to have attractive though inexpensive little dinners for your friends, to have groups in to play cards, all very simply and without ostentation or undue effort, and to otherwise provide merriment and variety which every young person craves and needs.

And as to your state of health? Are you convinced that you are organically impaired so you cannot enjoy the activities you mention? Or have you given up to this semi-invalidism too easily? Isn't there much that you can conquer if you will do so?

We do not get much out of life by demanding service and love from others, and in brooding over our hurts and wrongs when we do not receive this love in the measure with which we think it should be given us. All we can do is to serve as our own love prompts us, and to be alert to discover that which our loved ones would like to receive from us.

Perhaps you have fallen into a way of talking too much of your ills. Do you keep your mind active and up-to-date? Are you entertaining and snappy, charming and captivating?

Instead of worrying over your husband's lack of interest in you, set out to charm him into fresh interest in you.

Tomorrow when you cook that efficient, economical, delicious dinner, set the table extra attractively, and some bright flowers in a quaint bowl, see that you yourself are good to look upon. And devote some time during the day to plan some bright things to talk about, things that will interest your husband. Surely that is legitimate subterfuge. Don't just let the evenings drift along into boredom. But assume the responsibility of brightening up the evenings you spend together.

"The Winged Wind."

Dear Minerva: I wonder if someone of our readers have the poem entitled "The Winged Winds," the first verse of which, I think, is as follows:

"Tell me, ye winged wings, that about my pathway roar,
Do ye not know some spot where mortals weep no more;
Some lone and pleasant dell, some valley in the west,
Where free from toil and pain a weary soul might hest?
The loud wings dwindled to a whisper low
And signed for pity as they answered "No."

My mother recited this poem to me years ago, but I have forgotten a part of it, and will be most grateful to see it in print. Thanking you, I am, B. V. G. D.

A. Can some kind reader supply his poem? We will gladly publish it.

Needs a Chaperone.

Dear Minerva: I am a girl of fourteen years and I am considered very pretty. I am popular and I know how to act when I am out anywhere. I have lots of friends and I have been out with boys but never any of this mushy and soft kind. I hate that kind. I never did know what it was to be kissed and I never want to know either. Only the other night a boy that I thought was a very respectable boy offered to take me home and I went. My mother happened to know more about him than I did and she was very angry. And now she will not allow me to go to church, party, dance, or anywhere unless she goes along. Do you think this is right? I do not because I've had the experience that most girls around here lack.

I like your Mail very much only when some old hen of a great grandmother says something that she thought of and never heard of. Mary Lee.

A. I am afraid you are a headstrong little girl, and need your mother's close chaperonage. I heartily disapprove of a girl of your tender years having 'dates' with boys and becoming sophisticated and generally hardened through premature experience. Your mother acts only in your best interests when she insist on a protective chaperonage for you.

Insurance For Mother.

Dear Minerva: I have carried insurance for the last four years and had my mother as my beneficiary. Now I have been married about a year and think that I ought to change it to my husband. My mother has asked me to leave it in her name. What shall I do? Do you think it is proper to have in a husband's name? Perplexed.

A. I advise you to leave it in your mother's name. Her need is greater, surely, for the husband is naturally more self supporting and independent. At least we hope he is if he has taken unto himself a wife. Moreover it is showing a lack of respect to take this from your mother's name when she wishes it left as it is. And your mother deserves every particle of respect and consideration that you can show her.

Wesleyan Affairs

The algebra contest, which was left undecided at the close of the high school contests at Nebraska Wesleyan university on April 25, has just been repeated by the taking of a much more difficult examination. The following are the results as announced by Prof. J. C. Jensen, chairman of the committee in charge:

First, Winslow Willis, Lincoln; second, John Schonrock, Fairbury; third, Susan Lau, Lincoln; honorable mention, Lieben Parks, Greenwood; Loretta Granzer, Havelock; Constance Doremus, Aurora and Blanche Johnson, Havelock.

Dr. James E. Wagner of the First Methodist of Omaha will deliver the baccalaureate address in place of Chancellor I. B. Schreckengast on June 1 as the chancellor will not be able to undertake that service, due to the illness of Mrs. Schreckengast.

Dean F. A. Alabaster of the Wesleyan liberal arts college will address the men of the First Methodist church of Crete, Monday evening, May 19.

Chancellor I. B. Schreckengast has written to Wesleyan campus workers that Mrs. Shcreckengast has recovered sufficiently to stand for a few minutes. Shortly after reaching Lowell, Mass., she fell down stairs at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Jackma. The chancellor has gone to the quadrennial meeting of the Methodists at Springfield, Mass. Both Mr. and Mrs. Jackma are graduates of Wesleyan university. The latter was Helen Hinson, daughter of Rev. O. A. Hinson who is one of the Nebraska delegates to the Springfield meeting. Mr. Jackma is engaged in pastoral work at Lowell. H. B. Shedrik who was graduated at Wesleyan in 1922 is also engaged in pastoral work at Lowell. Chancellor Schreckengast was interested in observing his work among the foreign population of the city.

Dean F. A. Alabaster has prepared an application blank to be sent prospective students. The Wesleyan faculty has ruled that students hereafter must make application for admission to the unviersity.

William Crossland, '13 of Laurel, Fred Aden '15 of Boulder, Colo., and Everett Hosman, '10 of University Place were campus visitors Monday. These young men formed the Theo Trio when they were in school. This they have maintained ever since. They were introduced to the student body at chapel.

Dr. S. S. Hilscher, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church in Lincoln, addressed the Wesleyan convocation Wednesday. His subject was "A Young Person's Life Work." He said, "Every young person is looking towards his life work. That young person may have to change his plans. Paul had to change his several times. A life program is of no essential good unless it is approved of God.

"The time to make a life program is at the beginning and not at the end. The world is not interested in the life program of an old person. The life program depends upon the one who is to live it. The question should be 'What am I', not 'What am I doing.' It is what God sees and not what man sees that counts. Character is not divorced from conduct. Young people should heed today Paul's advice to Timothy to shun profane things. The whole life should be given to the testimony of right living if we are to win the applause of God and man."

Mrs. Ada Davis Guy, '12, Nebraska Wesleyan, is teaching commercial work in the high school at Cowles. She will be superintendent of the consolidated school at Eckley next year.

Miss Grace Lenfest, alumnus of Wesleyan, plans to return for the annual annual banquet, June 2. She is attending the university of Illinois. Miss Georgia North is also attending that university.

Rev. John Starr, '11, Nebraska Wesleyan, of San Jose, Illinois, writes that he and his wife are recovering from illness.

The chemistry club held initiation of members May 7. The address of welcome was made by Prof. H. A. Durham. The members initiated were Ed Loder, Waverly; Charles Paine, Grand Island; Wilber Cass, Aurora; Charles Clark, North Loup; Faith Madden, Pawnee City; Mildred Larson, Upland; Ellen Douglas, Elmwood; Yuhching Lui, China; Otis Cole, Shelby; Earl Gibson, Cozad; Clair Johnson, Norfolk; Ross King, University Place; Ruth McClanhan, Beatrice; Omer Seng, University Place; Grant Wernimont, University Place, and Lawrence Whistler, Farragut, Ia.

The Wesleyan men's glee club went to Omaha May 9 for the last concerts of the season. They sang Friday evening in the Pearl Memorial church and presented concerts Saturday and Sunday in the First M .E. church. Both concerts are broadcast over W. O. A. W.

Visitors on the Wesleyan campus who attended the May festival this week were Mrs. P. E. Spangler, Weeping Water; Joe Wiesman, Osceola; W. S. Auten, North Bend; Cal McCormick, Lewellen; Mrs. A. Te-Selle, Hickman.

A gospel team from Nebraska Wesleyan had charge of the Sunday morning service at the Emerald M. E. church Sunday morning. Members of the team were Florence Wing, Ethel Evans, Geneva George, Ruth Jacks and Merrill Norlin. The same team supplemented by Irving Wiltse, James Buxton, Gladys and Winona Buxton took charge of the evening meeting.

"There are three phases to human nature" said Dr. Bennett M. Hollowell, professor of English Literature at Wesleyan, in addressing the Monday convocation. "These are the biological, the sentimental and the classic or Christian. It is not equality so much that the downtrodden want as the chance to snub those who have been snubbing them. Give a man a chance to develop his own personality and he will grow up as he wants to. There were two beliefs in Greek religion, the Stoic and Epicurean. The Stoics believed they should do good because it was the right thing to do; the Epicureans believed that to be good was right because it would bring about the ultimate happiness of everyone."

Miss Ada Wilcox, '17, writes Wesleyan friends that her address after May 23 will be Kimball, Neb.
